

A photograph capturing a scene of devastation in Kuito, Angola. In the foreground, a woman is walking from left to right, carrying a young child on her back and a large white bundle on her head. She is using a long, thin wooden staff as a walking stick. She is dressed in a colorful, patterned wrap. Behind her is a concrete wall topped with a wire fence. In the background, a white wall is heavily damaged with numerous bullet holes and a large rectangular opening. The sky is a clear, deep blue.

À Kuito, en Angola, une survivante et son enfant.