

Seal. See Great Seal.

Second Reading; of bills, 528, 640;
of resolutions, 423.

Schedules to Bills; 511; when considered in committee of the whole, 542.

Seigniorial Tenure; established, 4-5; abolished, 33.

SENATE: Its constitution, 58-59; present organization, 105; qualifications of senators, 106, 108; renewal of declaration of property qualification, 106-107; addition to number, 107; vacancies, 108; reporting of same, ib.; questions of qualification and vacancies, how determined, ib.; introduction of new senators, 109; members must not be interested in certain contracts, 134, 135-136; attendance, 145-146; indemnity, 146; places, 155; speaker, how appointed, 158; his functions, 158; clerk, 158-159; clerk assistant, 159-160; gentleman usher of the black rod, 160; serjeant-at-arms, ib.; chaplain, ib.; committee of contingencies, 160-161; accounts, ib.; audited, 509; minutes of proceedings, 161; journal, 162; admission to galleries, 162, 172; official reports, 181; privileges, immunities and powers, 187 et seq.; rules, orders and usages, 210-211; revision of same, 213; use of the French language, 217-219; proceedings at opening of parliament, 221-223; after an appointment of new speaker, 222, 223; the mace, 222; proceedings on election of Commons' Speaker, 225-226; consideration of speech, 223-224, 235-236; prorogation, 236-237; days and hours of meeting, 241; adjournment over holidays, 241-242; long adjournments, 242; decease of members, 243; adjournment during pleasure, 246; quorum, 247; prayers, 248; order of business, 250, 252; urgency given to government measures, 258 n.; presentation of petitions, 260-261; form of same, 263; money petitions, 268; reflections on house, 270; orders and addresses for papers, 274, 278; papers refused, 281 n.; printing, 286-287; addresses to queen or governor-general, 292, 293, 294; joint addresses, 294-295; of congratulation, 296; on retirement of governor-general, 297-299; messages from governor-general 301, 302 n.; respecting pecuniary aid, 304; notices of motion, 307-308; questions of privilege, 316; questions put by members, 321-323; amendments, 325 et seq.; deportment of senators whilst speaking or in their places, 342-343; their precedence in debate, 345; rules limiting debate, 353-354; manner of addressing other senators, 361; rules for the preservation of order, 363-364; words taken down, 363, 374 n.; taking a division, 384 et seq.; senators having a direct interest in a question do not vote thereon, 395-396; messages to house by clerks, 397-398; requesting attendance of a member of Commons as witness, 398; leave given to senators or officers to attend committees of the Commons, 399; conference with Commons, 399 et seq.; joint committee on library and printing, 403; puts committee of its own in communication with one of the Commons, ib.; interchange of documents with other house, 404; questions of expenditure and taxation, 406-408; Commons bills rejected, 409-410; rule respecting tacks to money or other bills, 410, 500; initiation of measures therein, 411-412; committee of the whole, 415, 416, 421, 541; select and sessional committees, 427 et seq.; on private bills, 620; refer private bills to supreme court to consider questions of jurisdiction, 605; to select committees, 607; may impose rates and tolls in private bills, 664; its proceedings with respect to divorce bills, 668-679. See Clerk, Parliament.

SENATE—continued.

Serjeant-at-arms; appointed in the Senate by committee of contin-