orts From West Flanders Indicate That Deadlock Still Continues.

LONDON, Nov. 13, 9.40 p.m.-While battle in West Flanders continues hold the public attention because the desperate character of the fightthe numbers of men engaged and territory at stake, military men now look upon East Prussia as the centre of gravity of the war. In this latter field of operations t battle is developing. The Rus-us are pushing vigorously a great veloping movement. They are enthe northeast, thru Goldap and ruglanken, which is well within the ragic of lakes, down to Soldau in the

On to Danzig.
Httary observers say the German have apparently checked their retreat in Poland and by counter attacks are woring to create a diversion. They however, that the Russians are not to be turned from their pian, which is believed to be an attack on Danzig. They argue that the Germans will have to either allow East Prussia to be overrun the second time or bring us reinforcements and that they can hardly weaken their army along the relian frontier, for that would leave Ruen and Sijesia open to invasion. The allies naturally are hoping that us aftort will be made to relieve East russia at a sacrifice to the German armies in Beigium and France.

In any fighting in their own country the Germans will have the advantage over the Russians, as they have a notwork of strategic railways to etwork of strategic railways to their troops quickly, and besides,

Prussian Guards Smashed Thru at Three Points Before Retiring, Leaving Seven Hundred Dead in Front of Trenches-British Endured Heaviest Bombardment Yet Experienced.

(BRITISH OFFICIAL)

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Nov. 18, 11.30 p.m.

—The official press bureau issued the following communication at 11 o'clock tonight:

"A very severe attack against the portion of the line held by the first army corps before Ypres was delivered on the eleventh by a Prussian guard corps. The enemy made an especial effort on this occasion to break the line, which they hoped already had been weakened by attacks of infantry of the line.

"Our troops were subjected "Our troops were subjected to the heaviest bombardment that we have yet experienced, from dawn for three hours. This was at once followed by an assault in force, carried out by the first and fourth brigades of the Prussian guard corps. It is understood that these picked troops had been brought up specially to act against us in order to force their way thru at points where previous efforts made by the infantry of the line had falled.

Broke Lines in Vain.

"The attack was pressed with greatest bravery and determination. Owing to the gallantry of our troops and their splendid resistance against great odds, attempt to penetrate to Ypres was repulsed, but the weight of the enemy's advance enabled them to break thru our lines at three points. They were, however, hurled back and prevented from gaining further ground.

"An immense loss had been inflicted on the Germans, seven hundred of their dead having been found on the ground behind our front trenches alone. The casualties suffered by them in advancing up to our line under direct and enfliaded fire must have been enormous. Our casualties also were heavy.

"The action of our troops on this as well as on previous occasions cannot be praised too highly."

Chief Justice Falconbridge did not deliver his address to the jury in the assizes yesterday in the Toronto Street Railway overcrowding case behe did not see why it was necessary to send the case to the jury, as General Manager Fleming had admitted in his evidence that overcrowding was pre-valent. H. E. Dewart, K.C., counsel for the defence, however, objected and ommenced his address to the jury.

If the people would only walk a block or so Church and York streets might be used with great advantage, but they will not. Also the transfer system is too broad and we have little or no control over it. If the city was to pass a bylaw limiting the number of passengers to a car and changing the transfer system there might be a way to overcome this difficulty." Crown Attorney E. E. A. DuVernet, K.C., in cross-examining Manager Fleming poked a little fun at him by asking if there was any crowding when he was mayor. He admitted that there was, and that today it was also prevalent.

"I thought that things would be different now," asked the crown attorney.
"I am still trying to serve the public," replied the manager amid a roar of laughter in the court room.

It had been expected that a certain amount of reinforcements would be sant along with the second contingent but the request for two mouths reinforcements for all infantry to go with the main body will mean that an extra transition of the line is intact, but the situation further south remains obscure. It seems that the Germans have made dight advances before Yores, but it is doubtful if they can hold the Village of Sainteloi, which they claim to have occupied, efficially.

ARTILLERY FIRE CONCENTRATED.

At La Bassee, as at Antwerp, the Germans are attempting to drive a wedge into the allies' line by concentrated heavy artillery fire. We know that many heavy guns are at Givenchy, whence they are bombarding Bethuse. In a month the Germans have gained five kilometres from La Bassee, and the time it would take the kaiser's troopy for each the channel at this rate of progress can be easily estimated. There has been a considerable bulge in the line at La Bassee for some time. North and south of it the allied troops hold positions on either flank.

On Wednesday the Prussian Guard launched an attack against the English positions at Armentieres, but was unable to make any headway because of the deadly shooting of our men. They were supported efficiently by guns firing shrapnel. The attack was courageous, but finally petered out.

FOUGHT TO A STANDSTILL.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The invaders' attempts to pierce the allied lines and secure control of the coast have not advanced. They are being fought to a standstill.

The fury of the German attack lessened somewhat today, and there was a general lull all along the front, as compared to the activity of the past few days. It is believed that the enormous losses by the Germans in the past few weeks have contributed to this slackening of the assault.

mounted infantry are mobilizing, the they do not form part of the second army division. Mobilization has not yet begun of certain parts of the socond contingent, including the line of communication which will require 464 men for the division ammunition park, 205 for supply column, 289 men and 358 horses for reserve park, 92 men for field bakery, 20 men for field butchery, 61 for railway supply detachment and 26 for depot units of supply.

Of the past few days. It is believed that the enormous losses by the Germans in the past few weeks have contributed to this slackening of the assault.

North, east and south of Ypres the British have thrown back on-slaughts in great force, and continue to hold all of their positions. French and British troops are defending every foot of ground on the Belgian front with a tenacious resistance that has completely baffled the kaiser's troops. They have absolutely nothing to show for weeks of campaigning, and their tenure is extremely precarious in the positions won.

Canadian Press Despatch.

PANAMA, Nov. 13.—A warship, believed to be the British cruiser Suffolk, has been sighted 25 miles off Colon. She was steaming with lights out. Her destination was not ascertained.

WARSHIPS IN ACTION.

Lombaertzyde, recently taken by the allies, was the scene of germans striving to drive back its defenders. The town is of great strategic value. Nieuport is again the centre of a fierce engagement, the Belgians being supported by a steady play of the allied fleet's big guns. German submarines are reported to have made several attempts to clear away the big sea fighters, but without result.

Letters found on German prisoners show that the infantry and artillery ammunition of the invaders is running low, the men having been advised to husband their supply whenever possible. Other letters and orders found on men and prisoners show that great masses of second and third line troops have been in Flanders for ten days, the German leaders hoping to break thru the wall of steel which confronts them by sheer weight of numbers. In order to meet this condition, the allied lines have been heavily reinforced by French infantry, including some of the best regiments in the service and several of the chasseur battalions which have rendered such distinguished service on the centre. centre.

CASUALTY LIST 90,000.

No less than 90,000 killed, wounded and prisoners have been captured say that some regiments were simply wiped out, less than one hundred men coming back from the trenches out of an original 3000. The Prusians suffered an overwhelming disaster at Ypres. They were sent forward, when all other troops had failed, with orders to take the place regardless of anything. Their courage was magnificent, but the British riflemen and machine gun crews calmly mowed down the Prussians until nothing human could stand before the British fire. There are many indications of a resumption of the fierce fighting along the Aisne, which has been stilled while the Flanders operations were in progress. The French have retaken Tracy-le-Val and
