At any rate, it cannot be denied that and the readings for May, 1906:

May was not as it used to be. The weather man in the local observatory Date. gives figures to prove it. During the menth just closed there were no less than eleven days on which the thermometer went below the freezing point. The month opened cold, and with the exception of half a dozen days it did not serve up what might be called real comfortable weather. On only sixteen 10 days did the thermometer pass the 60 11 degree mark. Then, to remind one of 12 the uncertainty of things, there was a 14 fall of snow on the 10th measuring one 15 and a quarter inches. Where under 16 ordinary conditions gardens would be 17 well advanced now, there is very little growth, and the man with the horti- 20 cultural bee has visions of some pre- 24 cious varieties flowering a month later than usual.

In May, a year ago, there were only 25 two days on which freezing was re- 26 corded at the observatory-and those 27 days were in the second week. While 28 last month there were only six instances where 70 degrees or over were31
