TO BE CHOSEN AS PRESIDENT OF THE KITCHENS

Theodore Roosevelt's Successor Must Receive at Least 242 Electoral Votes.

As most people are aware, the President of the United States is not elected by the direct vote of the people, but by the "Electoral College." To form this college each state is entitled to as many electors as it has senators and representatives in Congress.

Each state (big or little) has two senators, but its representatives—or members of the House—are appointed according to population.

Rhode Island has as many senators as New York, but "Little Rhody" has only four representatives, while "The Empire State" has 39.

The legislature of each state determines how the members of the Electoral College shall be chosen, which is done on the same day throughout the Union.

These electors meet in their respective states and ballot for president and vice-president, sending a tabulated statement or certificate of the result to the president of the United States.

The next Electoral College will be composed of 483 electors. Therefore it will require 242 electoral votes to make the requisite majority.

Whoever is elected president of the United States will have to receive at least 242 electoral votes to be declared the president and vice-president of the United States.

These 483 electoral votes will thus be distributed among 46 states, Oklahoma, with seven votes, being in the game for the first time.

Alabama, 9; Nevada, 3; Arkansas, 7; New Hampshire, 4; California, 10; New Jersey, 7; Connecticut, 7; North Carolina, 12; Delaware, 3; Indiana, 11; Florida, 9; Ohio, 21; Georgia, 12; Pennsylvania, 21; Idaho, 3; Vermont, 3; Illinois, 27; Oklahoma, 7; Iowa, 7; Kansas, 10; South Dakota, 4; Kentucky, 12; Tennessee, 10; Louisiana, 9; Texas, 23; Maine, 4; Utah, 4; Massachusetts, 11; Virginia, 12; Michigan, 11; West Virginia, 7; Minnesota, 10; Wisconsin, 12; Missouri, 10; Montana, 3; Nebraska, 3; Total, 483.

The great total of 483 electoral votes is 38 more than were cast in 1900, the second episode of the candidacies of William Jennings Bryan, Oklahoma came into the sisterhood of states with a complement of seven votes, which is more than several of the much older states.

By the rearrangement of districts or by the election of Congressmen-at-large, upon the basis of the census of 1900, the following states gained an additional congressman and electors: Arkansas, 1; California, 1; Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Illinois, 3; Louisiana, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Minnesota, 1; Michigan, 1; Missouri, 1; New Jersey, 1; North Carolina, 1; North Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 2; Texas, 3; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 1; Wisconsin, 1.

Whether or not he will be willing to get the child at the cost of revealing the name of the woman mentioned as co-respondent will be seen from his actions of the next few days. He is at present throwing a great mystery about his movements, and only his closest friends know when to expect him, as it has purposely been announced that he is to arrive on two different steamers.

The complaint, unless he surrenders the child, will contain the name of the mysterious co-respondent whose identity has been successfully concealed by all parties concerned in the suit thus far.

Mrs. Hackett Wants Child. Miss Manning is very anxious to retain possession of their only child, however, and it is said that if Mr. Hackett will relinquish his claim to the custody of the child, she will be willing to give up the child to her mother.

These two suits are similar in many respects. Mrs. Vanderbilt sued for and obtained the custody of her child, and the name of the co-respondent, who was said to be a woman of considerable prominence in the Vanderbilt set, was never officially revealed.

On June 1, three days prior to Mr. Hackett's departure for Europe, he was served with a writ of habeas corpus. This was the first legal step taken by Mrs. Manning to have the courts award her the custody of the child.

Baby the Crux of Suit. The baby had been taken to the Hackett Theatre to see its father by a sister of Miss Manning. Mr. Hackett carried the child to his home in West Ninety-fourth street instead of returning it to its mother. Miss Manning was greatly excited through fear that she was going to lose the child, and immediately swooped out the writ which was served on Hackett just before he left New York, through the efforts of his wife's attorney, William R. Wilder, No. 45 Cedar street.

Mr. Hackett was told that if he surrendered the child without resistance every effort would be made to avoid publicity. The baby was immediately turned over to Miss Manning and has been with her since at the Presada apartments, No. 50 Central Park West. Mr. Hackett was also served with the summons in the divorce suit a day later. His wife has until today to file her complaint, which will be done as soon as he makes his position on the custody of the child plain.

TO TELL PUBLIC OF THE KITCHENS

The Dissatisfied Parisian Waiters Adopt Nevel Plan for Revenge.

Paris, July 14.—Cafe waiters here who are dissatisfied with the conditions of their employment have hit on a novel plan of action for enforcing their demands on the restaurant proprietors.

Should the latter hold out against all other forms of "management 'garrison'" will reveal to the public the mysterious workings of the kitchen.

Efforts have been made by the discontented men to enlist the active sympathy of the public, but in vain. So long as they get their four meals a day reasonably and promptly the ordinary Parisian gives a rap about the internal management of his favorite restaurant or the justice or injustice of the waiter's lot.

Open air meetings have been held, but no one except waiters put in an appearance. The question of a general strike has been discussed, but the consensus of opinion appears to be that such action would only alienate the moral support of that small portion of the public which is supposed to sympathize. At last the waiters seem to have struck out. Already the bosses are quaking in their shoes.

"If we should tell the public under what fearful conditions their food is cooked," said one, "there would be a popular uprising that would soon bring our employers to their feet. We would not have to go beyond the subject of saucers, of French, there are so many known to French cooking. Every action of the Parisian is supposed to sympathize. At last the waiters seem to have struck out. Already the bosses are quaking in their shoes.

"Some of the restaurants never cook a single dish themselves. I could take you to a well-known establishment in the Rue Royale where every dish sold is made up from left-over food brought from a nearby and larger restaurant. It is shoved into an oven, heated and served up to the unsuspecting customer."

HACKETT, TO SHIELD WOMAN, RACES HOME

Actor to Fight Wife's Suit and Seek Custody of Child. New York, July 14.—James K. Hackett, the matinee idol, is racing back to New York from Europe to make a determined fight against his wife's divorce suit, and, if possible, to retain the custody of their single child, and, at the same time, protect the name of the woman mentioned as co-respondent.

He will reach the harbor today and as soon as he arrives an effort will be made to serve him with the complaint in the suit. His wife, Mary Manning, must file her complaint today, and, unless Mr. Hackett can prevent it, the "other woman's" name may thus become public.

Whether or not he will be willing to get the child at the cost of revealing the name of the woman mentioned as co-respondent will be seen from his actions of the next few days. He is at present throwing a great mystery about his movements, and only his closest friends know when to expect him, as it has purposely been announced that he is to arrive on two different steamers.

HAPPENINGS OF A DAY IN BUSY EAST LONDON

SWIMMING POND FOR BOYS IS NEEDED

Alderman Suggests That One Be Made in Queen's Park. A certain alderman is again bringing the matter of a swimming pond to the front, as the river is a very dangerous place for the inexperienced swimmer.

The alderman's opinion is that the small pond at Queen's Park should be enlarged and fitted for swimming purposes. The sheds beneath the grand stands could be used for dressing, as they are but a few feet from the pond.

It would be necessary to deepen the pond, and to make it a little larger, but this would not cost over $100.

It is evident that some place is needed for the children, as they must have a pond or go to the Thames. The two drownings in five days ought to impress the necessity of such a place upon the council.

DUST IS VERY BAD ON RECTORY STREET

People Complain of Nuisance South of the G. T. R. The residents of Rectory street south of the Grand Trunk tracks are having troubles with the dusty streets there.

A sewer was put down there this summer and consequently the dust and loose sand is several inches thick. The street cars and each gust of wind hurries the dust in clouds until it is impossible to see.

It being now too late to petition the council for street watering, the residents are considering the advisability of taking up a collection to defray the expenses for the remainder of the season.

RECTORY STREET BOY MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

Little Willis Gould Hurt While Playing. Little Willis Gould, a 5-year-old boy, of 319 Rectory street, was the victim of a rather painful accident while playing with several other boys last evening.

While playing near his home the little fellow was struck on the forehead with a sharp stone which injured him deeply.

His companion who threw the stone ran home when he found what he had done. Although the cut was not serious it was very painful.

EAST END PICNIC COMMITTEE HEADLESS

A Little Hitch in Regard to the Chairmanship. Some trouble is being met with by the officers and committee members of the East End Picnic Association.

Although it was understood at the inaugural meeting when the appointments were made that the first man named should be chairman, some of the committees are without the head.

They have not been able to get together to appoint a chairman, and consequently no progress is being made with the preparations.

Several of those who started the picnic proposition are now in favor of dropping the whole thing, and sending their money on the street decorations for Old Boys week.

A meeting of the east end decorations men will be held on Thursday evening, and the newest idea brought up is that it is not thought that the decoration idea will be considered at the expense of the projectors. It is not known what use is to be made of it by its new owners, who it is said, are backed by a Pittsburg Real estate company.

BACK TO THE RESERVATION.

Rapid City, S. D., July 15.—Five hundred Ute Indians, who revolted from and terrorized the country after fleeing from their reservation in Utah, will have a 900-mile trek back from here Friday under the escort of a captain and ten United States cavalrymen. The agreement to return is the outcome of a conference between the chief and President Roosevelt. The chief promised the President that the Indians would henceforth be good.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF SMOKE NUISANCE

In the Vicinity of the Grand Trunk Railway Roundhouse. The residents of the vicinity of the Grand Trunk roundhouse on Rectory street are complaining about the smoke nuisance caused by the spot from the boilers there.

There are now three boilers there which are kept in operation almost continually, and on some days the smoke is very dense.

The damage caused is considerable, and the residents in that section may present a petition to the council asking that the company be compelled to place a consumer on the boilers.

STRAY SHOT WENT THROUGH THE WINDOW

Of an East End Residence Last Evening. A stray shot, evidently from an anti-rifle, crashed through the window in the rear of the home of Mr. Wm. Galbreath, at 562 Queen's avenue last evening while the family was seated on the front lawn.

They heard the noise and investigating found the bullet had penetrated the glass. The person who fired the shot could not be located.

Had any person been in the room at the time the result might have been more serious.

MERCHANTS ARE ASKED TO DECORATE

City Wants Premises in East End To Look Well for Old Boys. The merchants of the East End have received requests from the mayor, asking all to decorate their places of business for Old Boys week.

They are in favor of the move to decorate, and before the notices were received they had arranged plans to be submitted at the next meeting of the association on tomorrow evening.

The East Enders are anxious to spend the money, but they think that the council should assist them in making the streets of that section as attractive as any other.

EAST LONDON NOTES.

The annual picnic of the Centennial Methodist Church choir is being held to Port Stanley today. A big sports programme has been arranged, and with good weather, the affair is certain of being a success.

Miss Mina Taylor and Miss Bessie McLeod are holidaying in Thamesford. Ald. Robert Parsons, wife and daughter, left this morning on a two-weeks' holiday trip to Orillia.

The picnics of the Egerton and Adelaide Street Baptist Church Sunday Schools are being held to Port Stanley today. The outings are annual, and although the picnickers are going to gether in different parts of the city, they have been prepared. The London Baptist Sunday School is also at the lakeside.

Mrs. W. C. Clark, of Bay City, Mich., is visiting with Mr. Richard Greenleaves, of Queen's avenue east. Louis Greenleaves, of Dundas street east, is spending his vacation with relatives in Blythe.

Miss May Meeker, of Detroit, is visiting her friend, Miss Klizzie Richards, of Dundas street east. Master Ernest Shaw, of 670 Dundas street, and Walter and Mazie Chalcraft are holidaying in Port Stanley. Mrs. J. C. Parks, of Dundas street east, is spending her holidays in Port Stanley.

THE HORSES STAMPEDED

The Mounted Police Have an Exciting Time at Calgary. Regina, Sask., July 14.—A wild west scene was enacted here when the contingent of mounted police were entertaining last evening on their way to attend the tercentenary at Quebec, where they will have the honor of acting as a bodyguard for the Prince of Wales. Many excellent new mounts have recently been purchased, and when the men and horses assembled to entrain, instead of corraling the horses, as is the usual custom, four horses were placed in charge of one man. In shutting the train the engineer drove right down in front of the bunch, blowing the steam off suddenly, with the result that all but eleven of the forty horses broke away and made a wild rush through the city for their stables at the barracks. Every available policeman was soon on the war-path, and for a time a wild west ranch show was performed in real earnest. Most of the animals reached their stables in safety, with the exception of a mare, Kitty, the pet of the barracks, and the champion pushball horse, which was badly injured. Eight riders were sent out to herd up the missing animals, and up to 1:30 a.m. all but one horse had been secured.

The horses were brought back to Regina, and kept under proper control, and left by the special train en route for Brandon at 5:30 a.m. Among the horses that will be taken is George, the mount used by the prince during his visit to Canada in 1901. The animal has since that time been used by Assistant Commissioner McLeod, and is now being taken down by special request for the use of the prince during the Quebec celebration.
