MURDER OF CORK MAYOR DENOUNCED FROM THE PULPITS

How Brother-in-Law Escaped at Scene of Crime

Increase in Police Force — Line of Mourners Two Miles Long — Revenge for Slaying of Policemen Suggested as Motive for Assassination.

Cork, March 22.—The Catholic bishop in Cork, in the cathedral yesterday, said the country had received a terrible shock in the murder of the lord mayor, but he advised that no reprisals be made. Ireland's cause could not be advanced by outrages, he said. The only party to derive advantage from the crime wave in Ireland was the party which always had refused and still was refusing freedom for Ireland. The bishop denounced the search by the military of houses after the murders of Lord Mayor MacCurran and Constable Murtagh were passed. The resolutions expressed the hope that the government would restore order and security to life.

At a meeting of the Cork Unionist Association, presided over by the Earl of Bandon, resolutions expressing horror at the murders of Lord Mayor MacCurran and Constable Murtagh were passed. The resolutions expressed the hope that the government would restore order and security to life.

James Walsh, a brother-in-law of Lord Mayor MacCurran, was sleeping in MacCurran's home on the night of the murder. Several shots were fired at him. He says he escaped by putting out a lighted candle and lying on the floor. Walsh also declares that there were some men in the street near the lord mayor's house while the murderers were inside. These men, he said, were armed and disguised, and they held up several persons and threatened them with death if they moved within half an hour.

The police force of Cork will be increased today by large drafts of men from various districts.

A procession of mourners two miles long followed the hearse when the body of the lord mayor was conveyed from his residence to the town hall. Bishop Colahan walked in front of the first body of the Cork Sinn Féin volunteers, which acted as a bodyguard and which furnished the guard of honor in the town hall during the night.

A proclamation, printed in English and Gaelic, and signed by the Rev. John MacCurran, chaplain of the Republican Guard, was posted about the city. It said: "With a heavy heart, I announce to you the death of our lord mayor, Thomas MacCurran, commander of the Cork first brigade of the army of the republic. The public will observe Monday as a civic holiday to afford the citizens an opportunity of doing honor to their chief citizen and their horror at the brutal and cowardly manner in which he was done to death. Let no provocation move our citizens to retaliation or to any unseemly act."

The only reason suggested for the assassination of the lord mayor is revenge for the slaying of policemen. Some persons today expressed the belief that it meant the beginning of a campaign of retaliation for the killing of numerous members of the royal constabulary and soldiers, for which acts no one yet has been punished.

The inquest into the death of the lord mayor was begun, but adjourned after brief formalities. The solicitor for Lord Mayor MacCurran's family requested that no former policeman should serve on the coroner's jury.

Alderman MacCabe, M. P. for South Cligo, who had been released from prison after having served a sentence imposed last year on a charge of inciting to disorder and unlawful assembly, has been re-arrested and sentenced to three months' imprisonment for inviting citizens to subscribe to the Sinn Féin loan. MacCabe has spent almost five years in jail for political offences.

Sinn Féin flags are flying over the evacuated constabulary barracks at Shercock, County Cavan. Sinn Féin policemen are in charge there.

Effect in Various Places.
London, March 22.—Despatches from Ireland during the week-end show the murder of the lord mayor of Cork to have produced an intense, if subdued, sensation throughout Ireland. This tragedy says the London Times correspondent in Dublin, closed one of the blackest weeks since the rebellion of 1916. It gives a long list of outrages in various parts of the island, including five murders of policemen and others, and an attempt to kill Professor Stockley of Cork.

In Dublin the citizens are looking to the future with anxiety and alarm. The motive of the Cork murder continues as mysterious as ever. No arrests have been reported. Among the theories advanced is one that the lord mayor was murdered as a warning to others because he recently had the courage publicly to denounce an attempt to murder a policeman in Cork.

London has been deeply stirred, and newspapers, which, while unreservedly condemning the crime, maintain it does not differ from those which have long terrorized Ireland. It is declared that Ireland, for the moment, is largely under the domination of secret murder societies, the members of which are sworn to kill those whom they believe to stand in their way, but who the conspirators are puzzles the police as much as the public. It is remarked as a phenomenon that where murder societies exist, members after a while begin to be suspected of murdering each other.
