SUPERANNUATION FOR TEACHERS.

A deputation recently waited upon Premier Ross of Ontario, with a scheme for the establishment of a superannuation system for school teachers in that province. The suggestion is one demanding consideration in every province in Canada.

Considering the great importance of their work and the qualifications necessary for success, school teachers are ridiculously underpaid. As an inevitable result fewer are offering for the service every year and few remain in it long enough to become more than novices. Statistics show that a large proportion of teachers retire within three years. If they show any ability there are always opportunities offering in other lines of work and few others are so poorly paid as school-teaching.

Only a few can hope for more than a bare living during their working years with a surer of being cast aside as soon as the years of capacity are past. In view of such conditions the wonder is, not that good teachers are scarce, but that there are any left at all. Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the necessity of capable instructors for the young. Upon this, more than upon any one thing, depends the well-being of the nation. The teaching profession must be so managed as not only to induce good and efficient men and women to enter it, but to keep them there. Experience in this profession more than any other is essential to good work. Something in the nature of a substantial pension ensuring the work-worn teacher of freedom from want after the years of service, would tend to reduce the desertions that are now threatening the efficiency of the teaching staff of every province.

THE LAW AND FAITH CURSE.

In finding a Christian Science father who let his child die of diphtheria without medical attendance, guilty of a misdemeanor, the New York Court of Appeals gives a decision which will fall of public favor only because the denunciation of the offense as a misdemeanor does not allow for sufficient punishment.

In dealing with the defendant's contention that he was acting in accordance with his conscientious belief and could not be prosecuted without being denied the constitutional right of religious liberty, the court gives its opinion as follows:

Full and free enjoyment of religious profession and worship is guaranteed, but acts which are not worship are not. A person cannot, under the guise of religious belief, practice polygamy and still be protected from our statutes constituting the crime of bigamy. He cannot, under the belief or profession of belief that he should be relieved from the care of children, be excused from punishment for slaying those who have been born to him.

But the law of nature as well as the common law, devolves upon the parents the duty of caring for their young in sickness and in health, and of doing whatever may be necessary for their care, maintenance and preservation, including medical attendance if necessary. An omission to do this is a public wrong which the state, under its police powers, may prevent.

The Standard Oil Co. yesterday advanced the wholesale price of oil one cent per gallon. So says a Cleveland despatch. John D. must be saving to endow another college with our money.

Now that the city grocers are forming themselves into a union it seems to be up to the purchasers to also enter into some kind of combine for self-protection.

It is to be hoped that at the resumption of Premier Tweedie's investigation into the charges made against the asylum management full opportunity will be granted for the giving of evidence of all who have complaints to make. Either the asylum attendants should be fully cleared of the suspicion under which they lie, or measures should be taken for their more thorough trial.

It was decided by the safety board yesterday that in the event of another fire in the Orange street dump, the public works department could borrow hose from the director of public safety to put the fire out. The existence of a department which is generally supposed to be for the purpose of fighting fires is ignored.

THE ST. JOHN REVISION.

The Globe has a daily fling at the revisors of the voters' lists and at all who are interesting themselves in obtaining a correct roll of qualified electors. One would suppose by reading these attacks that it was a crime to strike from the St. John list of voters the names of men who have no right to vote in another county. Yet it was considered a measure of reform when the law allowing only one vote to one man was passed. The Rotheysa forgery was made easy by the fact that the law permitted registration without residence. Out of that crime grew the agitation which forced the government to adopt the policy, which had previously been advocated by Mr. Hazen, and which was believed was demanded by the Globe. It is under this law that the names of non-residents of St. John county are removed from the city lists.

If the law is good the removal of the names, which is merely the application of the law, is the duty of the revisors. If they have made the mistake of not giving proper notice to those whose names are struck out, Alderman Robinson, Alderman Hamm and Revisor O'Brien, are not the men to do such a thing intentionally, and they appear to be perfectly willing to correct any mistakes that they have made. In the case of Mr. Milligan, whose name was removed, there appears to have been a mistake. That gentleman, who could have had it set right by informing the revisors of their error, thought it necessary to publish an open letter threatening action for damages. It will be remembered the government refused to apply the "one-man-one-vote" principle to residents of the St. John county constituency, who, though the two ridings are altogether separate, retain a vote in both if they are real estate owners in the city. This piece of special legislation, in the interest of the surveyor general, was, we believe, condemned by the Globe at the time, and it is under it that Mr. Milligan gets the right to vote in two constituencies. In his case it is one man two votes. However, since the law allows it the revisors must allow it. But in regard to those others, who do not reside in St. John, and have no right to vote here, the revisors have a duty to perform. If they leave their names off the roll, whether they are the names of liberal or conservative, they violate their trust, disregard their oath of office, and become conspirators against the rights and liberties of genuine electors. One would suppose from some of the criticisms of the work of the revisors, that it was their duty to assist the preparation of a bogus list after the style of the Rotheysa forgery.—Sun.

LOW-LIE-DOWN.

John-a-Dreams and Harum-Scarum Came a-riding through the town:

At the Sign of the Jug and Jorum There they met the low-lie-down.

Brave in shoes of Romney leather, Bodice blue and gaily gown,

And a cap of fur and feather, In the inn sat Low-lie-down.

Harum-Scarum kissed her lightly, Smiled into her eyes of brown,

Clasped her waist and held her tightly, Saying, "Love me, Low-lie-down."

Then with many an oath and swaggar, As a man of great renown,

On the board he clapped his dagger, Called for drinks and sat him down.

So a while they laughed together; Then he rose and with a frown

Sighed, "While still 'tis pleasant weather I must leave thee Low-lie-down."

So away rode Harum-Scarum, Singing rode he from the town:

At the Sign of the Jug and Jorum Weeping lingered Low-lie-down.

Then this John-a-dreams, in tatters, In his pocket not a crown,

Touched her, saying, "Wench, what matters? Dry your eyes and come, sit down."

"Here's my hand; we'll roam together Far away from thorp and town. Here's my heart for any weather. And my dreams, too, Low-lie-down."

"Some men call me dreamer, poet; Some men call me fool and clown; What I am but you shall know it—Only you, sweet Low-lie-down."

—Madison Cawlin in Lippincott's.
