THE LOUDEST NOISE EVER HEARD IN THE WORLD

Was During the Eruption of Krakatoa in 1883-Some Facts Concerning the Event.

GLASGOW, Jan. 25—Even Scotland is having its earthquakes. The other Sunday afternoon a few minutes past four o'clock a sharp shock took place at Alva. Everything was quiet at the time and the dull, heavy noise had a deafening effect. The lanscape for a second or two seemed like a picture out of focus, and this added to the trembling of the houses, the rattling of the windows, combined with a feeling of nausea left no doubt in the mind that a shock had been experienced. The noise sent a crowd into the streets and all turned to the hills from which the sound appeared to come. The earthquake was also felt at Menstrie.

W. Herbert Garrison, F. R. G. S., who has climbed volcanoes in all parts of the world and who the other day paid a flying visit to Edinburgh, has just been interviewed upon the subject of volcanoes. Here are some of the conclusions which he has arrived at:

"The greatest noise on record was made by the eruption of Krakatoa in the Straits of Bunda, between Java and Sumatra in 1883.

"It caused a cloud seventeen miles high.
"It was heard 3.000 miles away.

"It was heard 3,000 miles away. "If it had taken place in Edinburgh it could hade been heard in New York, Constantinople, St. Petersburg and

"The velocity of the explosion was three times that of the Armstrong three times that of the Armstrong gun.

"It raised tidal waves 100 feet high that invaded the land for five miles.

"It created dust finer than any rock can be ground by man.

"This dust was carried round the earth for three years in the air.

"It caused air waves that encircled the earth seven times.

"It broke windows 100 miles distant.

"The volcanoes of the world form a belt of fire round the globe and are rarely more than 300 miles from the sea. In the few exceptions to this rule the volcanoes are near large sheets of inland water. This tends to prove that the proximity of the water is one of the main factors in the cause of the eruptions, and that it is the percolaeruptions, and that it is the percolation of the water through the surface of the earth that leads to volcanic ac-
