Incidents That Explain the Why and Wherefore of Many Things. Mr. Spurgeon has always been perfectly appalling in his readiness to deal with in-solence in the house of God. The finest case on record is perhaps one in which three young fellows came in and settled themselves conspicuously in the gallery with their hats on. In vain the officials re-quested them to uncover. Of course, Mr. Spurgeon's eye was soon upon them, and leading his discourse around to the respect which all Christians are bound to show for the feelings of others. "My friends," he said. "the other day I went into a Jewish synagogue, and I naturally uncovered my head: but on looking around I perceived that all the rest wore their hats, and so, not wishing to offend against what I sup-posed to be their reverent practice, though contrary to my own, I confirmed to Jewish use and put on my hat. I will now ask those three young Jews up in the gallery to show the same deference to our Christian practice in the house of God as I was pre-pared to show them when I visited their synagogue, and take off their hats." He would, indeed, be a pedant or a prig who could refuse a sympathetic smile of appro-val, even in the sanctuary, to a rebuke so genial, so witty, and so just! A regiment of reedy people sponged on Total Disability-Hundreds of Visitors. ' Total Disability-Hundreds of Visitors. ' Toronto Daily Globe, July 25.—This is an age of doubt, especially in regard to tures by patent medicines, and not without reason, for too often have the sick and their near and dear loved ones been de-ceived by highly recommended nostrums y that were swallowed to be of less avail than as much water. The old, old fable of the boy and the wolf applies also too fre-quently to many of the specific concoctions for curing the ills that flesh is heir to; and when a real cure is effected by a genuine remedy those who might be benefited fight shy of it, saying "it was "cure, cure" so often before that I won't try it." When such a state of affairs exists it is advisable that assurance should be made doubly sure.

out, taking a few miles constitutional up town. Mrs. Marshall, with smile-wreathed face, and looking as happy and light-hearted as upon her wedding day, wel-comed her visitor and appeared delighted to have the opportunity of telling frankly and fully--while awaiting Mr. Marshall's return-what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for her husband. "It was a happy day for me," she said, "the Mr. Marshall tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Many's the weary day I had before that. Look at all these things we bought, hoping they would cure him," and the good lady turned with an armful of straps and tacklings ot all kinds. There was a combination of harness and attach-ments of leather used for the "suspensory treatment," by which the crippled man was hung in the barn by his body with his feet but a few inches from the floor. There was enough belts, bandages, supporters and soles to set up a good-sized store. Then Mrs. Marshall showed a collection of crutches and sticks which her husband had used. The whole collection was a large and remarkable one. Mrs. Marshall showed a letter received that day from New York State, in which was a query similar to many that had pre-viously been received by Mr. Marshall, "Write me if it is a fact or only an adver-tisement."
