INTRICACIES OF THE MADDEN CASE

The Story of a Horse Race Between a Liquor Man and a Preacher—Never Called Aldermen Thieves.

When he fined Madden for fast driving Mr. Sweeney told him that Madden had been racing with a preacher and the horse got away from him. The preacher got off and the runner got soaked, said Mr. Fowler. He had never spoken of the city aldermen as thieves or blacklegs. He sometimes had differences with the aldermen. Mr. Fowler quoted from the press Kay's criticism of the city council and witnesses said that there was a controversy on that at the time over the Scott Act. In one Scott Act case Mr. Fowler sought to prove that a drunk was given his liberty on consideration of a witness's evidence, but witness said that he had no knowledge of this. In one Scott Act case he had convicted a party on unsupported testimony of a so-called spotter, though three witnesses swore against him.

White Plains, N. The signing of the order sending Thaw back to Matteawan, a formal which is to take place tomorrow morning in Justice Mills' chambers at Mount Vernon, is all that remains to complete the failure of his latest appeal to the courts.

RECOMMITMENT ORDER

The order for Thaw's recommitment will be presented to Justice Mills tomorrow morning by Deputy Attorney General Ezra P. Fretwell and attorney Morschauer will then have a chance to oppose it or strive for a modification. Such action, however, will, it is believed, be purely formal in view of the decisive nature of the opinion handed down today.

For Some Time, Aviators Announce That Short Hops Will Only Be Attempted.

Special to The Standard. Petewawa, Ont., Aug. 12.—Canada's own flying machine Baddeck 1, with John A. D. McCurdy at the controlling wheel, made her first ascent from the ground this afternoon, at a quarter past five. True the ascent was neither a high nor a long one, being only a rise of ten feet and a hop of a hundred feet in length, but it served to illustrate to the large crowd present that the drome was capable of leaving terra firma.

At 4:55 this afternoon the plane was again taken out of her shed. This time Mr. McCurdy announced that he would only make a short hop. He mounted the seat and about a hundred yards from the shed W. McDonald, the machinist, started the propeller. The machine started off like a shot down the road, attaining a high speed with great quickness. The engine ran smoothly and only the loud whir of the propeller could be heard. After going about two hundred yards Mr. McCurdy was seen to give the controller a quick jerk upward, the drome responding beautifully. It soared into the air a short distance, and still keeping up its high speed, went through space, alighting a hundred feet or further on with ease. The drome skimming over the surface of the ground for perhaps an eighth of a mile.
