How little the bayonet is used by the offered again. However, there is always a "foker" somewhere. When the trouble is discovered the canvasser of course is nowhere to be found and when you write the company you are told they never authorized such a proposition. This is about the time of the year these "agents" operate and sev-

MOSA TREASURER DEAD

J. W. Watterworth Passes Away
After Nine Weeks' Illness.

The death of James Wellington Watterworth, treasurer of the township of Mosca, occurred at his home on the Longwoods Road, near Wards-ville, at 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning, following an illness of about nine weeks from arteriosclerosis, an affection partly of the heart. Mr. Watterworth throughout his illness was able to be up and about, his form of ailment taking him at recurrent spells with severe pain. He attended the last meeting of the council, held at Newbury on October 18th. He was able to meet his friends and converse cheerfully with them up to the evening before his death.

James Wellington Watterworth was a son of the late Benjamin Wat-terworth, one of the pioneer Reeves and clerks of Mosca township, and was in his 88th year. He leaves his widow, formerly Miss Mary Mitchell, and three sons—Bert, barber, of Appin; Howard, real estate dealer, of Winnipeg, and Dr. Frank, of Detroit. Five brothers and one sister also survive—John, building contractor, Duluth; Elijah, of the Dominion Building, Glencoe; Lorenzo and Wentworth, farmers, Mosca; Joseph, merchant, Dover Centre, and Mrs. Joseph Simpson, of Mosca. Another sister, Mrs.
John McCutcheon, of Croton, died a short time ago.

Mr. Watterworth has been treasurer of Mosca township for the last 22 years, and previous to his appointment to that office was collector for 10 years.
He had also been closely identified with the work of the Mosca and Elfrid Agricultural Society as president and director, and was president for some time of the West Middlesex Liberal Association. He was a member and recording secretary of the Wardsville Methodist church. In all the various duties of the different offices which he held Mr. Watterworth was methodical and painstaking and showed the strictest integrity. His books were always accurate and neatly kept.

The funeral takes place from his late residence on Friday afternoon at half-past one o'clock to Oakland cemetery.

Those not familiar with military tactics have a very vague idea as to how an army is surrounded. It is generally believed that the commander, who schemes to encircle his enemy with an impenetrable ring of guns and men must conceive some method of maneuvering his troops round to the rear of his opponent's army. It is possible, however, for a general well versed in field tactics to cleverly "roll up" a large body of troops by frontal attack alone.
This is accomplished by means of flanking movements.

For purposes of example let us imagine two armies facing one another drawn up in two long lines. Behind one of the battle lines a body of reserve troops stealthily make their way over to the right. Their purpose is to assaulted army. "It refuses its right," as military men say.

At the opposite end of the line a similar attack is launched, which has the effect of forcing back the enemy's right. An army which "refuses" almost at the same time its "left" and "right" wings is doomed. Unless a very speedy retreat is carried out the whole force is "rolled up," as both its flanks are forced back.

As the right and left flanks of the enemy give ground the attacking troops slowly force their way to the rear of the assaulted army, closing in the while. The result is that within a few hours the defeated force is entirely surrounded, although in the first instance it was attacked from its front alone.—Pearson's Weekly.

Poisonous Mushrooms.

The two most feared and deadly poisonous mushrooms the world over are the death cap (Amanita phalloides) and the fly cap (Amanita muscaria).

These two species in the same genus have destroyed several emperors, a pope and probably averaged 500 deaths annually in various parts of the world, to say nothing of innumerable mammals, birds, reptiles and insects, the latter being almost wholly destroyed by poisonous fungi.

Of the two deadly species, muscaria is most easily detected by the layman.
It is a large, showy mushroom, orange yellow in color, with what looks like warts over the cap. You see them in dooryards, where evergreens are growing, sometimes thousands of them, standing up, tall and splendid in the grass. Keep your hens in the hen-yard and your cow in the barn while these fellows are up, with their tempting appearance.

The species Amanita phalloides can readily be avoided. Whatever the color of the cap, white or gray, the under side of it, the gills, are pure white. The cap may or may not be covered with wartlike protuberances. The stem terminates in a bulb, usually wholly or partially beneath the soil. If a large, deep chunk of earth is taken out around, the bulb invariably will be found setting in a cup. Handle a poisonous mushroom as freely as you like, but do not experiment with one like the death cap. There are other species, both in the amanita genus and that of leptogaster, that closely resemble it and which may be deliciously edible. You cannot learn these differences from the books. Only an expert, with the several fresh species in hand, can teach you such differences.—New York Press.
