

less unseaworthy, in which he was making his way from island to island to the atoll where the exiled king, Mataaja, was at that time imprisoned. In my husband's last prayer, the night before his death, he asked that we should be given strength to bear the loss of this dear friend, should such a sorrow befall us.