The Rev. F. B. Meyer says:

"Let our young men and women read this book and it will set them on fire."

"The Spectator" says:

"Adam Dorward was a truly remarkable man. He laboured with a courage and an energy that, as Mr. Broomhall says, will 'for ever associate his name with pioneer work in that province.'"

"The Scotsman" says:

"A well-written and concise record of thirty years' heavy toil and labour."

"The Friend" says:

"There are many lessons for the Christian Church in Pioneer Work in Hunan, but none so plain as love serves and love wins."

"The Monthly Record of United Free Church of Scotland" says:

"We could hardly have within the limits a more complete, succinct, and touching record of the toils and sufferings by which Hunan has been opened for the Gospel."
