THE 12TH AT OAK LEAF.

The ordinarily quiet little burg of Oak Leaf was the scene of a great gathering on the 12th, when the battle of the Boyne and the memory of King William were duly commemorated. The different lodges of the district and visiting lodges with their bands and banners arrived in good season and quite an imposing procession was formed. After marching and counter-marching, all assembled in the grove where a platform had been erected and other preparations made for spending a pleasant day.

Dinner was served in excellent style by the ladies, who had provided an abundance of good things for the occasion. After dinner the program was adopted, and the County Master, Mr. R. Harvery, Lyndhurst, who opened the proceedings with an appropriate address in which he felicitated the members of L.O.L.
