A MODEL HOUSEWIFE.

She Must Have Good Temper, Pa tience and Domestic Knowledge. Good temper, patience and a knowledge of domestic matters come first in the list of requirements for a model housewife.

The mistress of a family commands daily a small realm of which she is queen. Let her rule with justice, meekqueen. Let her rule with justice, meekness and quietness. The most self governed person will always govern best, and we would have fewer servants if they were all under the firm and patient training of an employer who understood what their duties really were and required the best fulfillment of them compatible with the frailty of human nature.

On the mistress of the house devolves the task of providing food for her household. When she is a "model" it is her care that no waste nor ignorant misuse squanders the property of her husband and that/nothing is lost by carelessness or bad cookery.

She takes care that there is no lack through fault of hers nor any drawback to domestic comfort through injudicious rule, no neglect caused by love of idle

It is the watchful eye of the mistress that keeps the home beautiful with the freshness of cleanliness and the calm of repose, and through her vigilance alone will the servants prove faithful in the performance of their duty.

It is her thoughtfulness that provides, often her self denial that purchases, the comfort of others.

THE CHARM WORKED.

A Story Which Reveals the Key to Good Housekeeping.

The Germans have a story which the home loving people love to repeat. A cather when his daughter became a bride gave her a golden casket, with the injunction not to pass it into other hands, for it held a charm which in her keeping would be of inestimable value to her as the mistress of a house.

Not only was she to have the entire care of it, but she was to take it every norning to the cellar, the kitchen, the dining room, the library, the bedroom, and to remain with it in each place for five minutes, looking carefully about. After the lapse of three years the father was to send the key that the secret talisman might be revealed.

The key was sent. The casket was opened. It was found to contain an old parchment on which were written these words: "The eyes of the mistress are worth a hundred pairs of servants' hands."

The wise father knew that a practice of inspection followed faithfully for three years would become a habit and be self perpetuated; that the golden casket and the hidden charm would have accomplished their mission.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Care of the Hair.

Women make a mistake when they go on the theory that the frequent shampoo is detrimental to the hair, says a writer in the Washington Post, cluster a half-descent La foot care. says a writer in the Washington Post, quoting a hairdresser. In fact, some such advice has appeared in print from time to time, but the theory is absurd, since above all the hair must be clean to be glossy. Then one should take the trouble vigorously to brush the hair each night before retiring. But the same brush should never be used twice without cleansing. Since it is necessary to have more than one brush, it is well to have them vary, short and long bristles, as this aids in ridding the scalp of that loose, fine dandruff so ugly to see scattered through the hair. In brushing the hair the strokes should be firm and long. Violent, spasmodic brushing is not only irritating to the scalp, but disastrous to the hair as well.

The Gentlewoman.

A woman to be well dressed must, first of all, be exquisitely neat and clean. Her clothing may not always be of the handsomest, but there is something in the way in which she puts on her clothes, in her careful attention to detail, that marks her as the well dressed woman. Even though others outshine her in the costliness of their attire, there is something so fresh and unsullied in her appearance that she has a greater charm than her most expensively dressed sisters. The neat woman never neglects her daily bath. She pays scrupulous attention to her hair and scalp. Her teeth are well cared for, and her hands, clean and white, with well kept nails, bespeak the gentlewoman.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine was especially prepared for the children by one of the most skilful and conscentious doctors that has ever practiced medicine.

Expetience taught Dr. Chase that some of the simplest products of the vegetable kingdom possessed most extraordinary curative properties and he succeeded in so combining these in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as to make a medicine that is at once pleasant to the taste and wonderfully effective.

Croup, Bron.bitts, Whooping Cough, asthma, severe chest colds and painfulful coughs, yield to this great medicine when ord-mary treatments have no effect.

In England the Lord Chancelior, by cirtue of his office, has a right to inspect all public asylums and hospitals. One day, while the late Lord Herschell was paying a visit at the house of a friend near Norwich, he went for an afternoon stroll, and, happening to pass by the great insane asylum at that place, the thought struck him that it was a good time to perform an official duty, incidentally, it may be said that Herschell bors the reputation of being somewhat pompous at times. He knocked at the door, which, after a long delay, was opened by an attendant.

"You can't come in "the

"You can't come in," he was in-formed. "It's not visiting hours."
"That makes no difference, I shall inspect this institution just the same."

"Indeed, but you'll not."
"Come, come, iny good man, I'm the Lord Chancellor," Hershell exthe Lord Unancellor, Hersnell ar-postulated. "Oh, that's all right," answered the functionary, "we've four of you inside already."

When going about officially Lord Wolseley was very particular about appearing in uniform and expected all officers invited to meet him to come similarly attired. Some years ago he arrived at a certain town to inspect the troops, and some people in the neighborhood gave a large dinner party in his honor, to which the principal officers in the garrison were invited. One of these officers told me that when he informed his soldier servant he should dress at a certain hour, as he was going out to dinner, the man at once inquired whether he was going as "an officer or a gentleman." I may add that as he was invited to meet Lord Wolseley, he west as an officer.—London M. A. P. How Ho West.

After having tried many different remedies without any success, I finally decided, os the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

Money! Money!

THE TOO KIND MOTHER.

She Does an Injustice to Both Her-self and Her Daughters. It is all very well for a woman to ook after the interests of her children. and it is perfectly natural for her to want to have the best of everything for them. But if the accomplishing of these desires means the mother's giving up everything that gives her any pleas are and making herself merely a fam-ily drudge for the honor and glory of her offspring it should not be done. Many a mother will not buy herself a new gown for fear she would be taking money that could be used to better advantage in r.raying her daughters in festive entrmes. Mother doesn't "care about going out anyway, and the girls do, so they might just as well have the things." That is the way it is with everything, and before very long mother arrives at the start ing stage of no having even a "company" go en for the house, while the daug_ters have really more than they need and make the trast between the appearance of their mother and themselves all the more noticeable than if they were all dressed more alike.

The daughters are relieved of allihousehold duties that they may keep their hands in good condition and have time for learning to time for learning to appear accom-plished. Very few girls, if any, can be brought up this way and still be true women in the proper meaning of the word. The "too kind mether" is not nearly so common as she used to be, and let us hope that in a few more years she will have passed into utter oblivion and a new mother, who believes in equal rights between mother and daughters, reign in her place.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

The Growing Boy. Few people take the trouble to think about the boy who is leaving childhood behind him, but he requires as much care as his sister of the same stage People say he is clumsy and awkward, that his feet and hands are all out of proportion, and they quite ignore the fact that this "ugly duckling" will very probably develop into the "swan" of s ciety. The growing boy is exceedingly sensitive, though you may not think it, and to be ridiculed for his changing voice or roughly reproved for his unin-tentional awkwardness is almost agony to him. Praise and encouragement will bring out the best that is in him. No lad with conscientious instincts would dream of doing a mean action no matter how much his playmates may try to ter how much his playmates may try to goad him on, but nagging and "scolding" parents will do a great deal to hurt his pride and crush his spirit. If his conduct merits reproof administer a quiet word or two in private and then let the matter drop. He will see and understand that you trust him and will try to live up to your standard.

Good Looks.

Not many girls are born beautiful, but every girl living can make berself attractive. Unsightly teeth may be improved by the dentist's art. A wide, irregular mouth with thick lips may be cultured into such an expression of sweetness and refinement that it will be really beautiful. An ungraceful walk and figure may be entirely made over by persevering in gymnastic exercises. A muddy, rough skin ean be made clear and satin smooth by bathing, by frequent applications of a soft made clear and safin smooth by bathing, by frequent applications of a soft scrubbing brush, a healthful skin lotton and hygienic observances like taking plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Of mere physical beauty health is the foundation, and if you want to be lovely cultivate first of all robust health, which will enable you to be always cheerful and in high spirits. No good looks can long exist with bad health.

Fried Bananas.

A variation in fried bananas for a dessert is to fry them croquette fashion. The skin is removed, and they are cut in two, leaving square ends so they will stand upright. They are then rolled in flour and fried in hot fat. An excellent sauce to serve with them is a sittle currant jelly diluted with boiling water and added to it a little shredded candled orange peel. A lemon sauce may be used if preferred. The liking for cooked bananas seems to be a cultivated one, but it is worth while to encourage the taste, for the fruit as a food is wholesome and nutritious.
