Lucky Days.

Today that brings a chance to you
Be it a fallow day
Embrace the opportunity
Your luck will be just grand
Each day we speak a cheering word,
"Encourage smile or song,
Each day we praise the good we find,
Keep alert of the wrong;
When we act the good Samaritan
Without a thought of pay,
Blind as a fellow creature's wounds,
Ah, that's a lucky day,
And if some time the happy day
Should ever come along
That we might a fellow man
Whom we meet on our way,
Will prove beyond a shade of doubt
That was a lucky day.
When we make our disappointments
Stepping stones to wiser ways,
That still we have learned and realize,
That all are lucky days.

The Dog That Saved Another.

The harbor of Sydney is claimed to be the most beautiful in the world. One Saturday morning not long ago, when the business of the city was at its height, a little Scotch terrier fell into the harbor at Circular Quay, and was unable to reach the land. He managed, however, to clamber into a storm-water pipe, and made his way through it to the grating in the footpath at Parliament Ferry. Here he was blocked by the grating, however, and being unable to reach the street, he began to howl miserably. Passers-by paid little heed to the dog's cry, but at last a sheep-dog came by, and gazing through the bars, saw the difficulty of his little Scotch friend. The sheep-dog became quite excited, and barking loudly, rushed across towards the Custom House, dodging the trams, to where a big policeman was standing. The dog rushed at the sergeant, and jumped upon him, standing on his hind legs and placing his paws on the officer's chest. It then turned round, and raced back to where the dog was in trouble, saying, in everything except language, that the assistance of the police was needed.

Two police officers followed the excited sheep-dog, and saw the imprisoned terrier, and with the aid of an iron crowbar, the grating was pulled up and the prisoner released, to the evident joy of the sheep-dog.—Ex

The Cackle of a Hen.

Listen for the cackle of your hen. It has a money value to you. When the winter season approaches, then the price of eggs will advance and the cackle will become of even greater significance to you. Plan for the cackle, feed the hen in accordance with the demands of nature as propounded by the experts who have spent their life in the work. If the cackle is not heard with sufficient frequency, ask yourself why. Dig down and study the subject, for the more you study the oftener the hen will cackle, and cackling means more eggs and a bigger bank account. It is the law of nature that a hen should lay, and cackle. She should lay oftener and do much cackling, for that is her nature's law. But she will not lay unless she receives proper food and care, and there lies the wisdom of the man who thinks before he acts. Get hold of some good literature, read up on the subject of egg production, apply the knowledge you thus obtain, and in the end you will learn to experience a keen delight in every cackle of your hen. Your hen wants to cackle—she will cackle if you give her a chance. And there's more to the cackle of a hen.

'It Might Hae Been Waur.'

A story is told of an old village worthy who was an optimist of the most pronounced type. No matter what calamity or catastrophe when Sandy heard of it his invariable answer was, "Ah, well, it might hae been waur." Man were the traps laid to catch Sandy, but to no purpose. Two or three of his comrades put their heads together with the following result:—One of them approached Sandy. "Man," says he, "I had an awful dream about ye last night." "Ay," says Sandy, "what was that?" "I dreamt the del' came in person and took ye awa' in his clut ches." Sandy was nonplussed for a moment, then came the answer. "Weel, it might hae been waur." "But, think, Sandy," said his companion in huffed accents, "whit could be waur than that?" "Ah, weel," said Sandy with a triumphant gleam in his eye, "it might hae been true."

The Rev. Edwin Smith pastor of a Presbyterian Church, Tilsonburg, Ont., has accepted a commission as Lieutenant in the Royal Navy. He has been released from his congregation till the end of the war. He is about to add to his varied experiences that of submarine chasing on the Atlantic. Mr. Smith is a native of Merigonish and has labored in the Province of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Language as a Servant

Canadian writer in critic's-d bed he uses the word Fall instead of autumn. He is told that Fall is Americanism. It may be so—but imagine that the Americans who about the Fall must have brought word from England. There is nothing very striking and poetical contrast between Spring and Fall. We are not bigoted or prejudiced about the use of one or the other. We enjoy the language as a servant.

The poet has to speak of the falling leaves. That is, he must suggest the idea of a Fall. And when he says, "The old man's must die," he is breaking a rule of grammar. Either the noun or the preposition is superfluous—the grammarian says. All right. Then let us use grammar as our servant, not obey as our master; and let us say Fall or Autumn if it may serve the need of poetry or prose.

Is Sweet Clover a Weed?

Is sweet clover a weed or a farm crop? In some cases it may be a weed, but in other cases it is a farm-crop and a valuable one. From the standpoint of a weed, sweet clover is not hard to get rid of. It produces seed the second year after sowing. That is the plant has to be left undisturbed two summers before it can produce seed. Even along roadsides thick with sweet clover, it does not spread into grain fields. It will fork into a meadow that is left a good many years. As a farm crop sweet clover has many advantages. Its vigorous growth under severe conditions makes it especially valuable for soil for adding nitrogen and humus, as well as for hay and pasture. On good soil other crops do well, so clover is not needed. Some, however, think that it has a mission under such conditions, too.—North-Dakota Agricultural College.

8 Boxes Cured Psoriasis

Mr. Nettie Mabury, Coonocott, Ontario, writes: "I have been afflicted with psoriasis for many years, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and an entirely cured—no sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

First Mail by Air Craft.

The New York World has had the first mail matter delivered by air craft. A big bundle of The World papers on the morning of May 25 was placed aboard a Curtiss flying machine in New York City and the aerial machine started for Washington, 225 miles, where it arrived in three hours and four minutes. The fastest express train between those cities has a record of five hours—so this aerial craft cut two hours off the best railway time. Government officials compute that this airman flew 237 miles. The time was from 7.23 a. m. to 10.27 a. m.

It was a surprise indeed to have the New York World delivered by this unique mode—unique in the history of newspaper delivery by all the World.

The pilot was Victor Christman. For two thirds the way he had a stiff head wind.

Lord Kitchener's Successor.

A despatch from London dated June 28th says: "Partly as a result of the activities on the various war fronts this week a widespread belief has taken hold that the next foreign secretary will be Lord Kitchener."

Memorials to the British public are asking that they be in the selection of a successor for Lord Kitchener. It is now generally thought certain that Chancellor Lloyd George will accept the offer of the post made by Premier Asquith.

General Henri Petain, who is directing with much singular skill and ability the defence of Verdun, is almost sixty years of age, but is possessed of marvellous vigor. He has a decided aversion to being photographed, and his invariable excuse being that his face is too much like Count Zepelin's.

Mr. Asquith recently celebrated his twentieth anniversary as Prime Minister. He has held his high office for a longer consecutive period than any Prime Minister since the passing of the Reform Act. For a parallel one has to go back to the days of Lord Liverpool.

Danger in Face Powder.

With the advent of hot sunshine and the use of powder to prevent the tender skin being burned, a word of warning is necessary. Some preparations of face powder are the cause of inflammation of the eyes. This form of inflammation occurs—from obvious reasons—almost exclusively in women. They will complain that the vision is blurred; that they cannot read or sew for any length of time; that the lids burn and itch, sometimes intolerably, and that rubbing the lids only aggravates the itching. The reason for this is that many of these toilet powders, commonly known as the "rice powder" or "Poudre de Riz," contains, in addition to the rice powder, other ingredients which irritate the delicate membrane of the eye. Sixteen samples of so-called rice powder were recently analyzed, and of this number only two contained entirely rice; and only six contained any rice at all. Women who are accustomed to using face powder should be careful to select only those preparations which are known to be pure, and free from harmful substitutes.

Sugar for Wounds.

German army doctors are using sugar with great success in the treatment of wounds. The method is as simple as possible. The wound is dressed with granulated sugar, and then bound. The sugar does not act as a disinfectant, and must not be applied until bleeding has been arrested. But when applied to a clean wound surface healing proceeds with astonishing rapidity. No washing of the wound is necessary when re-dressing, which is merely a matter of re-sowing the application of sugar every second or third day. The sugar-dressing has also the advantage that there is no adhesion to the flesh.

Paper Coal.

The problem of supplying the soldiers of Italy with fuel while they are battling up in the mountains wholly bare of wood is being met by patriotic girls and boys at home, which shows, too, that the ingenuity of the Germans in solving acute domestic and military problems is matched at least in this instance, in Italy. The new fuel, in the preparation of which thousands of children are concerned, is called "coal paper," though "paper coal" would do as well. It is well known that paper can be compressed to such a solidity that car wheels have been made from it. Such consistency of material should turn like coal, and, though information is lacking as to the specific quality of the emergency "coal," the compression is so great that it is a most slow-burning fuel.

Whooping Cough.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Licuad and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of producing piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Worse Still.

Someone ago an eminent physician requested an equally eminent physician to accompany him to see a distinguished patient, and he readily agreed. The patient (who was always very loath to pay his debt) was exceedingly polite to both the medical men, shaking hands with them and bowing them out of the room in the most affable manner. Soon after this professional visit the same physician called again on the surgeon, requesting him to see another patient. On their way thither the surgeon remarked: "I hope this patient will behave more liberally than the last did."
