

A GREAT RAILWAY.—The Grand Trunk Railway, in Canada, is to be 1,100 miles in length; of this, 392 miles are completed, and the rest is in course of construction. The debt of Canada is $24,350,000, the most of which has been contracted for this railroad. The part of it which has been built, and now in running order, pays very good dividends.

A man went over Niagara Falls, on the 23d of June. He was in the act of landing a skiff, just above the rapids when he was carried away by the current and his boat capsized. His name is unknown, but he is supposed to have been on his way from Canada, with vegetables.

The Grand Jury of Boston found indictments against six persons for enlisting men for the Crimea, and against one for being engaged in the slave trade.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Wednesday, July 18, 1855.

We would take the liberty of reminding our readers and their friends that the Charlotte-town Horticultural Society's show will take place this day week (Wednesday 25th July) on the lawn in front of Government House. The society has already effected a desirable change in our market. Every year, vegetable productions different in kind and superior in quality, are being exhibited during the season, and at earlier periods every successive spring and summer. On the last market day, there were cucumbers, new potatoes, green peas and young carrots in Mr. Lewis's stall, all excellent of their kind. This is a great improvement. Still much remains to be done. Situated as Charlottetown is with as fertile a soil surrounding it, as ever City or Town was ever blessed with, and every facility of transport, whether by land or water; there ought not to be a single article of vegetable growth wanting for the sustenance, comfort or luxury of its inhabitants. It is a state of things positively disgraceful, that we are indebted to the States of America for supplies of fruit, which we might ourselves raise of a far superior quality, for we should remember, that the best fruit is saved for their own market. If any one doubts this, let him examine the apples that come to us from Boston, particularly those that arrive early in the season, and he will find that nine out of ten have been attacked by the fly and that a worm is in the core of each. All are more or less bruised, and all become more or less heated by being kept for a week or ten days in the close hold of a vessel, and the flavor deteriorated from being exposed to the fumes of bilge water.

Our farmers are beginning gradually to appreciate the advantages to be derived from raising fruit, and willing to incur the necessary outlay of capital, in order to be provided with good varieties of grafted trees. If proper pains be taken, particularly in planting, they will assuredly reap a plentiful reward.

In the meantime, we trust that the efforts made by the Charlotte-town Horticultural Society will be duly appreciated and seconded, and that there will be a numerous gathering on Wednesday next. The price of admission is made purposely low, in order that a greater number may be attracted, and when it is reflected, that the whole is spent in the service of the public (none of the officers being paid) few will be found, we trust, unwilling to contribute the 18d. or 9d. towards augmenting a fund destined to encourage industry and foster the development of the resources of the vegetable wealth of the Island. The Committee of management were in hopes to procure the attendance of the band and we trust they will be successful. All will appreciate the kindness of His Excellency and Lady in allowing the Government House grounds to be used on this occasion, and the willingness with which the whole family have lent themselves to the promotion of the views of the society.

CORNELL'S GEOGRAPHY.

Cornell's Primary and Intermediate Geography, forming parts first and second of a systematic series of School Geographies, New York, D. Appleton and Company, 346 and 348 Broadway, 1855.

It was our intention to have noticed these valuable works some time previously and we apologize for the omission.

A competent knowledge of Geography is more essentially a necessary requisite of education than ever. Steam has opened up new or enlarged the old channels of commerce to such a degree, that countries which were unknown to our forefathers have become places of every day resort. We have much pleasure therefore in calling the attention of our readers to the two publications, the titles to which head this article as adapted to facilitate the extension of this knowledge. They are equally well calculated for the school and the private family, and if the third division of the subject which is promised under the title "High School Geography and Companion Atlas" be as well executed as those already published, there will be little left to wish for. The maps are suitable to each work and to the capacity of the pupils for whom they are intended, and the engravings which are numerous and well calculated to impress on the mind of the learner a correct knowledge of the physical as well as artificial productions of the different countries are far superior to what we generally meet with in works of this nature. When we shall have been favoured with Part 3, we will give a more extended notice of the whole work.

POSTPONEMENT.—The Picnic under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance, will be postponed until Thursday the 26th July, inst.

TO THE EDITOR OF HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

MR. EDITOR;

I have just seen the School Visitor's Report, in which I find the following statement relative to the New Perth School, Lot 51. "Registered, 44; present, 11; Reading, defective; Analysis, seldom; Writing, mediocre; Arithmetic, creditable in the common rules; Grammar, several have more than average knowledge of rules. A very low standard of order, cleanliness and method exhibited here."

Now, Mr. Editor, of the 11 present, there were only 3 above 10 years of age, eight being new beginners. These three must be the several who Mr. Stark reports as having "more than average knowledge of rules of Grammar; and as they were the only pupils present who could be classed, the Visitor must refer to them when he says, 'Reading defective.' Now I fearlessly assert, that the statement is not correct, they did not read defectively. One of these defective readers was elected to a Scholarship in the Central Academy, and is now enjoying the benefit of that excellent institution, and the other two, read rather better than he.

The charge of a low standard of cleanliness, must refer either to the Scholars, or to the Schoolhouse. It cannot be applied with truth to the pupils, as all who are acquainted with this flourishing settlement, know that the scholars are as neat in their persons and cleanly in their habits, as any children of any district in this Island. It is equally at variance with truth, as it respects the Schoolhouse, which is a well-finished frame building and plastered inside. On the evening preceding Mr. Stark's visit, a large congregation assembled to hear a Sermon, and as the benches were not sufficient to accommodate the people, a few extra-seats were made, by placing boards upon blocks of wood and stone. In the morning, before we had time to remove the blocks and sweep the house, the Visitor came to examine the School, contrary to law, without giving notice to the Trustees. Now I do not ask the public, if it was gentlemanly, but I do ask them if it was honest in Mr. Stark, to make such a charge after being made acquainted with the facts of the case by the Teacher of the school? Fortunately the Visitor's report on this head can do no harm as the school happens to be proverbial for its cleanliness ever since its erection.

The last charge is "low standard of method." We who have been trained under the "No System" Act, must be so deeply sensible of our deficiencies that we dare not aspire to anything like a rivalry with the precocious genius of the new order of things. While I admire humility and honor it as a mark of true merit, I confess my curiosity sometimes gets the better of my humility; and I am sure, it will gratify the former and add greatly to the amount of the latter, if Mr. Stark will condescend to answer the following question.

How can the School Visitor, by visiting a School once in 12 months, and spending 15 minutes with 8 young children and three others, know the method pursued, the order kept, the cleanliness observed and the progress made by 44 of all ages from 5 to 26 years of age?

If Mr. Stark will give a satisfactory answer to this question, it will enlighten me and many others much, and possibly aid us in acquiring a higher standard of method. He must have calculated largely on the subsistence of the Teachers, when he penned such reports, but he will find the Teachers not quite enough to submit to such misrepresentation. I have said enough to prove, that the charges are unfounded and that the Visitor can be no judge of the true character of the School, from the fact that he was only in it once in 12 months, and that he spent only about 15 minutes in it on that occasion.

Wishing the Visitor greater diligence in the discharge of his own peculiar duties, that he may be more thoroughly acquainted with Schoolhouses and Scholars, so that he may display more wisdom in the manufacture of his Reports, and enjoy as much of the public confidence, as he does of the public purse, I beg to subscribe myself,

Your most obt. servant,
JOHN McNEILL,
Teacher of the New Perth School
