VALUABLE DISCOVERY.—A late notable discovery is that of a process for transforming plaster of Paris into marble, pure and white, or of whatever grain, and scarcely varying from real marble in weight, while it is impervious to wet and cold, and is susceptible of the highest polish. This discovery has been made by one of our New York artists, Mr. Wallace Wetherston, the landscape painter. It has (in its products) been critically examined by leading builders and marble-workers, and pronounced the desideratum. Mr. Wetherston conceived his idea while sojourning in Italy, and after several months' chemical experiment, has fully realized it. It will give the sculptor a means of casting his bust or statue in the most perfect counterfeits of marble, while it is adapted for walls and ceilings of dwellings, and will give the builder power to put up the most elaborate mantel and other ornaments at a third of the cost of real marble. In truth, plaster of Paris promises, like flax cotton, to create a revolution in a branch of trade and industry.—New York Mirror.

ANECDOTE OF THE SULTAN.—A Story is told, which I cannot vouch for as being more than a report. It is said, that the Sultan has been so struck with the fact of English ladies charitably devoting themselves to the good of the soldiers as they have done here, that he came to the conclusion it must be "their Book," which made such a difference between them and the Turkish females. So he has begun to read the Bible, in order to compare its teaching with that of the Koran! Whether this be the true version or not, it would certainly be a matter of incalculable importance, if English Christians out here were to be seen and noted as epistles of Christ indeed. Very quickly do the Turks perceive the difference between the old Armenian nominal Christians and those Armenians who are truly converted by the Protestant missionaries. Very soon, too, will they observe and appreciate, as the case may be, the character of English Christianity; and much must, therefore, depend on the specimens which may now be exhibited hereabouts as samples of the material.—Evangelical Christendom.

POLITENESS FOR LADIES.—Ladies complain that gentlemen pass them by in the streets unmolested, when in fact the fault arises from their own breach of politeness. It is their duty to do the amiable first, for it is a privilege which the ladies enjoy of choosing their own associations or acquaintance. No gentleman likes the risk of being cut in the streets by a lady through a premature salute. Too many ladies, it would seem, "don't know their trade" of politeness. Meeting ladies in the streets whom one has casually met in company, they never bow, unless he bows first, and when a gentleman never departs from the rules of good breeding except occasionally by way of experiment, his acquaintance do not multiply, but he stands probably charged with rudeness. This rule is plain. A lady must be civil to a gentleman in whose company she is casually brought, but a gentleman is not upon this to presume upon acquaintanceship the first time he afterwards meets her in the street. It is he who will, she gives some token of recognition, when the gentleman may bow; otherwise he must pass on and consider himself a stranger. No lady need hesitate to bow to a gentleman, for he will promptly answer, even if he has forgotten his fair saluter. None but a brute can do otherwise—should he pass on rudely, his character is declared and there is a cheap riddance. Politeness or good breeding is like law, the reason of things.

NEGRO WIT.—There is a tradition that one of the old negroes in Malden, Massachusetts, had a slave who had been in the family, until he was about 70 years of age. Perceiving there was not much more work left in the old man, the equities took him one day, and made him a somewhat pompous address, to the following effect:—"You have been a faithful servant to me and my father before me. I have long been thinking what I should do to reward you for your service. I give you your freedom! You are your own man." Upon this the old negro shook his grizzly head, and with a sly glance, showing that he saw through the master's intentions, quietly replied, "No, no, massa; you eat de meat, and now you must pick de bone!"

THE WIFE.—That woman deserves not a husband's generous love, who will not greet him with smiles as he returns from the labors of the day—who will not try to chain him to his home by the enchantment of a cheerful heart. There is not one in a thousand so unfeeling as to withstand such influence and break away from such a home.

RIGHTEOUS RETRIBUTION.—The Journal de Constantinople says:—"It was on the 8th September, 1851, that the Russians entered Warsaw, and it was on the 8th September, 1855, that the allied armies entered Sebastopol by the Malakoff Tower. There are thus great expiations in the history of nations."

NOTARIES.—The use of notarial seals would seem to be of English origin. The French, like the Spanish, have adopted in their stead, a pen-and-ink device which they call a "paraph," and which is generally of a very intricate and inimitable form. As the use of seals has become in England the ordinary method of authenticating public documents, so has the "paraph" in France, with this difference, that the difficulty of counterfeiting the latter affords a greater security against any attempt at forgery. "Paraphes" are now commonly used throughout the Continent, not only by notaries and public men, but by persons of every class; and even the ladies seldom sign their names without attempting a "flourish" of some sort. With a foreigner, the "paraph" is as necessary an appendage to his signature as the moustache is to his face.—Notes and Queries.

TRANS-ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—We have heard of people endeavouring to move Heaven and Earth to accomplish an object. Precisely in this condition are our friends in the neighbouring Republic. They want an Electric Telegraph from Europe to the United States, independently, if possible, of passing through British territory; to effect which they contemplate the circuitous route of Greenland, Iceland, and the Faro Islands. Brother Jonathan can neither turn to the right or the left but he finds Old Bull in his way. Now these confounded Colonies, embracing Nova Scotia and New Brunswick stand directly in his road; hence he seeks a route through dreary and savage regions, whose eternal snows and savage Esquimaux, set bounds to his aspirations. What a pity it is, that the Great Republic, when it new-modelled the Constitution of the Mother Country, had not been vouchsafed the privilege of changing the geographical localities of the world. All would have been perfection. But, as it is, our younger brother must be content to play second fiddle to the Old Gentleman across the water, for a few Centuries more; he can't fix it just yet.—St John Chronicle.

THE LATE MAJOR WELSFORD.—The following letter was written by this late lamented officer within an hour of being blown to atoms from the cannon's mouth.—Camp, Sept. 8. My dear B ———— This is about to be an eventful day to some of us, as we are to storm the Redan, the French the Malakoff; and, as you say, 'would it were bed time, Hal, and all were well.' But I trust in Providence, all will be well, and that I will be instrumental in making her Majesty a present of the Redan, as I am to lead the Light Division storming party, and, if God spare me, to be the first in and first up. This is to be done by escalade. I am glad her Majesty has seen my photographs, and I now send you some more like them. No time for writing more, as the drums are going. Remember me to Lady.— They asked me if I liked the idea of active service; I will tell them more about it when this day is over. God bless you, my dear B ———. Believe me truly yours, A.F. WELSFORD."

A GEM FROM AN OLD BOOK.—It has been eloquently and truly said, that if Christianity were compelled to flee from the mansions of the great, the academies of philosophers, the halls of legislators, or the throngs of busy men, we should find her last retreat with women at the fireside. Her last audience would be the children gathering round the knee of a mother; the last sacrifice, the secret prayer, escaping in silence from her lips, and heard, perhaps, only at the throne of God.
