ROBT. TEMPLETON

On Tipping.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever know anyone who did not think that tipping, as it is practiced in this country, was an evil?

I am sure I never did. And yet the evil keeps on growing. Every year tips get bigger, and every year we add to the list of those who are supposed to be tipped. I presume the time is coming when you will tip a newsboy a nickel when you buy a penny paper of him. Indeed I don't doubt that there are some who do that now-a-days.

Tipping is to me one of the most offensive manifestations of the twentieth century spirit of pretense and display. Many people say they give gratuities because they know that those whom they tip do not receive a living wage, and are partially dependent on such gifts. I wonder how many really tip from that laudable motive? Ask yourself honestly the next time you give a waiter a quarter, which you don't really want to part with, if you would have given it to him if payment were made in such a way that neither he nor anyone around you knew whether you tipped him or not. Suppose payment were made at the desks, and all tips were laid aside and given the waiters at the close of the day, and they had no idea which of their customers tipped and which did not. Do you think we should give up our hard earned quarters and halves so readily?

Personally I don't. I am afraid the generosity motive is not so strong as we like to think it. I suspect that the real reason most of us give larger tips than we can afford is that we are afraid people will know we can't afford them.

Aside from the heavy tax it levies upon the person of moderate means, I hate tipping for another reason. And that is because this custom discounts the value of so much kindness. Again and again I have felt my heart glow at some bit of kindness which was shown me, and then felt that glow grow cold before the chilling thought, "Perhaps he or she did it for a tip." It isn't really because I don't want to give the tip,—at least I think it isn't,—it's because I want to think that I am receiving old-fashioned, simple, pure kindness, and not that miserable imitation which is adulterated and spoiled by hope of gain.

Of course one would loath to join an anti-tipping crusade because of the hardship such a crusade would undoubtedly put upon many workers under this miserable system by which various kinds of corporations force the public to pay their employees for them.

Nevertheless one cannot help feeling that if pressure of public opinion could in some way be brought to bear upon these employers, they would find a way to pay their employees themselves. Doubtless the ultimate consumer would be indirectly taxed to do it. But I am sure the public would rather have such indirect taxation, and I should think the employees would vastly prefer that method of payment.

Lightning.

By H. L. RANN.

Lightning is the business end of a thunderbolt and can penetrate farther than any other known illuminant. It has been known to cast its rays through the person of a ruminative milch cow and then bounce off onto a barbed wire fence and burn a large, white hole through a new red barn. Nobody but an electrician is able to play with lightning without being superseded by a card of thanks.

Lightning is caused by two thunderbolts coming together in a rear-end collision and throwing off long, jagged sparks, which are then allowed to fall to the earth and annoy people who get in the way. After a person has stood in the pathway of one of these sparks once and had it come out through his hip pocket, he will not care whether the White Sox land in the first division or the cellar.

It is said that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. This is because people who have been struck once generally manage to see it coming first. A favorite point of attack for lightning is a decrepit dwelling which is insured for four times the value of the house and lot. Every year hundreds of aged barns are destroyed by lightning on bright moonlight nights, yielding enough revenue to put up a new structure and cement the cellar.

Lightning is always followed by a deep rumbling noise, which informs people who have their heads under the bedclothes that they are safe until the next collision. This noise is caused by water-logged clouds trying to buck each other off the right of way, and is very depressing to people whose accident insurance has expired.

The lightning rod is an ornamental spire which is attached to a house in the hope that lightning will find it before it gets to any of the immediate family. As this happens about once in about twelve million times, people who put their trust in the lightning rod would do better to climb into the coal bin and try to think of some good deed done.

Wigs on The Green.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—There are wigs on the green among the Tories in this district, on account of some of their heeleders being dissatisfied with the "pickings" they got the last four years, and now want to knife Downey and call out another man to run for the district. They got up a requisition and had it quietly sent around, but when the people found out what was going on, I tell you there was something doing and much torn paper as a result. It went all right when it was thought that Mr. Downey did not intend to contest the district, but when it was discovered that our present member intended to stand again and that this requisition was got up by an individual who came to the country some years ago with all his belongings tied up in a pocket handkerchief, and because he got some gear together by skinning the fishermen and imagines he is a strong supporter of the party, wants everything in sight, the people declined with thanks to have anything more to do with it.

Yours truly,
 YOUNG VOTER.

Housework Drudgery!

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and as Mrs. Briggs and others testify:

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, it tranquillizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit.

Mrs. BRAZILL, Boston, of 829 N. Washington St., Delphos, Ohio, writes: "Having taken your 'Favorite Prescription' for a bad case of intestinal disease and constipation with woman's ailments, for which I was almost unable to do anything, I think I am safe in saying that there are no remedies in the world like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Purifying Lotion Tablets.' I am now enjoying the best of health, and thank Dr. Pierce for his wonderful medicines which have done me a world of good."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

Household Notes.

A delicious cake-filling is made of sugar and cream bottled together and thickened with finely ground peanuts.

Slip an old pillow case over the leaf of your sewing machine and fasten it tightly if you would keep materials from slipping.

A rose conserve is made by filling a jar with layers of rose petals and sugar covering tightly and setting away for three months.

When a child bumps itself, and the skin is not broken, apply cloths wet in a solution of arnica and water, or very hot water alone.

An old pocketbook will look like new if you rub the leather with beaten white of an egg, then polish with beeswax and turpentine.

If you wish to use plaster of Paris for filling cracks in walls, mix with vinegar instead of water; then it can be handled like putty.

Every member of the family should possess bedroom slippers as a precaution, not only against cold, but against possible tacks, etc.

To perfume handkerchiefs, it is said to be a good plan to boil them in orris water for 15 minutes. Use 1/2 ounce orris root for 3 pints of water.

Creamed celery is best made from root celery. Cut roots in small cubes, boil half an hour in salted water, drain and cream as you would potatoes.

Never, if you can help it, hang pictures so that the wires will show, and do let the pictures hang against the wall as if they were really and truly decoration.

To test the freshness of eggs, observe the shell—it should be rough if the egg is right. Another test is putting the egg in cold water—if fresh, it will sink.

Peeled and quartered baked apples make a good dessert, chilled and placed in shells with a teaspoonful of ground nuts on top and a spoonful of whipped cream on top of that.

A delicious "sweet jar" may be made of heliotrope, syringa petals, lilacs and violets, leaves of lemon, verbena and clove pink, put together just as roses are treated for pot pourri.

Okra or gumbo is an important ingredient of the vegetable garden. Five cents' worth of seed will provide enough tender young pods for the summer's soups, stews and seasonings.

A homemade clothes sprinkler is the cork of a large bottle, which has slittings cut in its sides lengthwise. Fill the bottle with water and fit in the cork, then shake the bottle over the clothes.

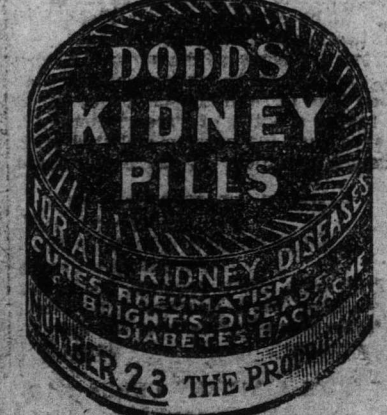

Rose flavoring for house use is easily made by filling jars with rose petals, packed down as tightly as possible and submerged in fresh alcohol. In a few weeks the alcohol will be thoroughly impregnated with the flavor of the roses.

Marguerites are made by mixing the whites of two eggs stiffly beaten with a cupful of powdered sugar. Beat again, add a cupful of chopped English walnuts spread on small wafers, and bake in the oven until the mixture is a golden brown.

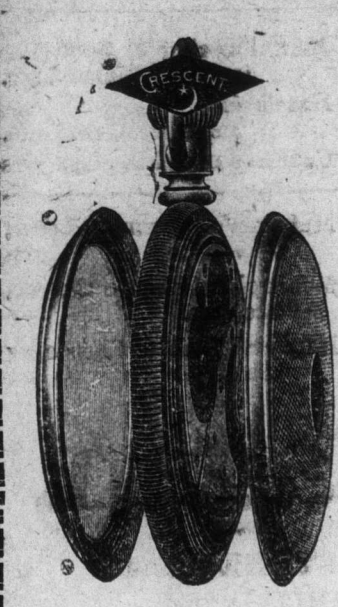

An economical dish of left-overs is made of cold boiled rice, a cupful of stewed tomatoes, a small onion, 3 green peppers, salt and butter. Chop the onion and tomato and mix with the other ingredients in a baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and bake 20 minutes.

Grape sponge makes a good dessert. Dissolve a cupful of grape jelly in 3 cupfuls of hot water. Soak two table-spoonfuls gelatin in cold water. Add the jelly water, stir until dissolved and set to cool. Beat in the whites of one egg, some sugar and wine to flavor; then beat vigorously till stiff and snowy.

Service and Sureness in Dunlop Traction Tread.

If ALL the cars in a certain Garage were fitted with a certain tire the fact does not help you in deciding which is the best and which is the one you want.

It may have been to that garage, owner's profit to boost that certain tire.

When you equip your car with tires you want to be assured you are going to get the maximum of service with the minimum possibility of skidding.

DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD assures you the longest service, because it is made of live rubber gum, moulded as a unit.

The TRACTION TREAD assures you and yours against the dangers of skidding with its possibilities of disaster.

It's of truth the "Non-Skid." The official mileage tests tell the whole story. Let us show you.
