in Progress. Conservatives Divided Regarding Irish Legislation.

Sensational Charges by an Ex-Governor-

London, Nov. 16.-The Queen has abandoned the idea of going to the theaters this season, but, by way of compensating some people for the disappointment thus caused, she has arranged for a performance at Windsor Castle on Nov. 26 by Signor Lango's company of Mascagni's opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana." The Queen comes south from Balmoral next Friday, and it is probable that early in the spring she will spend some time near Mentone in the Riviera. She is determined, apparently, to do as little as possible to help London tradesmen, so the Liberal newspapers say.

HOZIER AND HIS WIFE. Yielding to pressure, Col. Hozier has withdrawn the charges which he made against his wife, Lady Blanche, and thus a second time her ladyship has escaped an appearance in the Divorce Court. People, however, are getting rather tired of the colonel's jealous fancies, and the domestic squabbles of the pair are voted by their own set to be a positive bore.

THE GREAT LIBERAL GAIN.

The great Liberal gain of 2,901 votes in Devonshire and the return of a Gladstonian to fill the seat previously occupied by s Dissident has caused great rejoicing among the supporters of the Liberal leader. Many messages and letters have been sent Mr. Gladstone, congratulating him upon the success of Mr. Lambert. AT SIXES AND SEVENS. A pretty quarrel seems to be brewing in the Tory party arising out of the old burning question of local government for Ireland. The Tories are pledged to bring in an Irish local government bill at the next session, and if the pledge should be broken many Liberal Unionists would, in all probability, revolt against the Government. On the other hand, there is loud talk of mutiny in the Tory ranks should a bill be brought in, and for the moment, at any rate, the Government is between the devil and the deep sea. Members of the Irish Tory party, led by Col. Saunderson, have never disguised their antipathy to the proposed legislation, and most of them openly declare that they would rather have home rule and take their chances in a Dublin Parliament than their chances in a Dublin Parliament than to be a minority in numerous county to make the form of the first pouncils which will be established if the new system of local government in England be applied to Ireland. This feeling can be understood easily. In a home rule Parliament the Tories and Protestants generally would be represented by a compact body of members, who would exercise great, if not paramount, influence, because it is assumed that the Nationalists would be split into several parties or factors on most questions, save the supreme in the first parameters of the first parameters and so on.

There would be an additional advantage to the majority because of the inevitable pub-licity of Parliamentary proceedings. In the county councils the same advantages would not be present, and the auti-Home Rulers claim they would be at the mercy of heredi-tary opponents.

tary opponents. Col. Saunderson and his men will there-Col. Saunderson and his men will therefore fight a local government bill. In view of this determination it is important to note that it is approved by a body of British Tories powerful enough to command the support of the Standard, the most influential Conservative newspaper. On Saturday the Standard gave the place of honor to an editorial calling on the Government to abandon the idea of introducting a local government bill for Ireland, not so much out of regard for the interests of the Protestant minority, but on account of the dissatisfaction which would be caused among British electors by the spectacle among British electors by the spectacle of another session given up to Irish affairs while there were so many English grievances needing redress. The Standard does not worry its editorial conscience about such things as broken pledges. "Surely," it says, "a de-claration that a certain course was con-templated in the fitth year of a Parliament cannot be construed as a pledge which binds a Cabinet to fulfill it without the slightest regard to other circumstances. In the following session, which must be the last, there is nothing in the condition of Ireland to make the extension of local selfgovernment urgent, but there is much to make its introduction inopportune." Read between the lines the Standard's editorial amounts to an appeal of the Government to devote the last session of this Parlia-ment to labor legislation, designed to catch ment to labor legislation, votes.

Light may be thrown upon the matter next Wednesday, when Mr. Chamberlain will deliver his annual address to his constituents as Birmingham. If the Government has dead to contemplate taking any in South Leeds, has placed himself beside John Morley, in opposition to the eightment has dared to contemplete taking any step without previously consulting that attute gentleman the country is likely to be deprived of a touching spectacle arranged by party managers at Birmingham on Nov. 24, when Lord Salisbary is to lunch with the Liberal Unionists and have bealth proposed by Joseph Chambert, when the same interesting occasion Mrs. Chamberties the sealth proposed by Joseph Chamberties of output and cheapness, of which the other nations could take prompt

His newspaper correspondence has revealed Lord Churchill as a man of narrow mind and shallow chatacter, full of petty jealousies and unreasonable prejudices, and eaten up with personal vanity and selfishness. He has becomes the public laughingstock and the Tories say they no longer fear him. It is not surprising to hear rumors of Churchill's intended retirement from political life. The prospects of the Conservative party are not cheering, so that Churchill will lose little by retiring, at least for a few years.

LANDLORDS WHO WISH TO SELL.

LANDLORDS WHO WISH TO SELL. The Duke of Fife's example in selling ancestral acres and investing the proceeds ancestral acres and investing the proceeds in securities quoted on the Stock Exchange, and, therefore, more easily converted, has become contagious. Several great landlords are preparing to follow the lead of the Prince of Wates' son-in-law, and the Duke of Sutherland has already applied to the Court of Sessions at Edinburgh for authority to disental some of his estates in order to be legally free to sell them. The Duke is a territorial magnate. He owns 176,343 acres in Sutherlandshire, 17,495 acres in Shropshire and 12,744 acres in Staffordshire. His tenants pay him £126,800 yearly in rent. The court is not likely to give him the desired permission, as his eldest son and heir, Marquis of Stafford, is opposing the disentailing, and the Duke of Westminster and, oddly enough, the Duke of Fife, have joined in this opposition as "curators" for the younger sons. The Duke of Sutherland has given no reason for seeking to upset things. Evidently he cannot urge the welfare of his younger sons, which is sometimes successfully pleaded as an excuse for disentailing, and he cannot allege personal poverty.

The Terrible accounts of famine in Russia in securities quoted on the Stock Exchange,

THE TERRIBLE FAMINE.

Terrible accounts of famine in Russia continue to reach English newspapers through indirect channels, but there is reason to believe that the worst has not been and never will be told. Prince Krapotkin, who as the leading Nihilist resident in London claims to receive trustworthy news from every part of Russia, declares that "the Russian nation is now passing through a period of calamity which has had no precedent in history, not even in mediaval times." THE TERRIBLE FAMINE.

A COSTLY SINECURE. The ancient ceremony of nominating high sheriffs of counties for the ensuing year took place last week at the Royal Courts of Justice, and the public enjoyed the rare privilege of seeing the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his official costume. Mr. Goschen, by virtue of his high office, presided, sitting in the Lord Chief Justice's chair, and very funny he looked, clad in an elaborate robe of rich moire silk, which a dowager-duchess might have envied. The front and sides of the robe were nearly covered with thick gold lace and embroidery. The office of high sheriff is a very dignified one, but fearfully expensive. No salary attaches to it, and the holder has to spend much money to maintain the dignity. took place last week at the Royal Courts of salary attaches to it, and the holder has to spend much money to maintain the dignity. The high sheriff is charged with the duty of selecting three names from the magistracy list of every county for submission to the Queen, who, afterward sitting in council, solemnly selects the first name in each trio, thus appointing the unhappy man to the office of high sheriff, which he is bound to accept or pay a fine of £500 in default. Lots of magistrates sent excuses on Thurs-

TREATMENT OF THE COLONIES.

The British political week has been further marked by a rather surprising apparation, namely, of a Liberal-Gladstonian peer, who is able to make a speech which attracts general attention. Lord Carrington, who till recently has been Governor of New South Wales, and who has been vaguely understood to be the coming viceroy of India if the Liberals are in power two years hence, uttered an attack on the Colonial Officeat Bristol Saturdaynight which hassent a responsive thrill all over England, and which will be felt to the uttermost extremities of the empire. He declared from his own great knowledge and experience of the subject that at the present day the colonies are being treated as stupidly and ignorantly as in the time of Lord North, and that nothing but the speedy triumph of democracy in England could prevent revolts all over the globe and the disruption of the British Empire. No responsible statesman has made a more sweeping charge against the Government in our time, and the Liberals view with enthusiasm the prospect it opens of a new issue for their party, in which they will have the backing of the English race the world over. The anniversary of the execution of the Chicago Anarchists was celebrated by their sympathizers throughout Europe in various clandestine ways, but the meetings were pounced upon and broken up by the police wherever intelligence could be had that they were to take place.

The latest emigration movement here has the merit of novelty. Englishmen with capital of from £1,200 to £1,500 find that they can do well as vine and olive farmers in the hill districts of Italy, and many are about to settle in that country.

The storm over Europe last week has had even more widespread effects than the hurricane of last month. The wrecks on the British coast alone on one day numbered 38 vessels, and the number of lives lost, so far as known, amounts to 87. France, Spain, Germany, Belgium and Holland have all suffered severely from the visitation.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 14.—Sam Small, the noted evangelist, was attacked Thursday morning and severely beaten by Tom Miner, an Atlanta saloon-keeper, and the sensational preacher came out of the encounter with a split lip and badly-bruised nose. Last Sunday the reverend gentleman delivered an address to a large crowd at Prohibition Hall in Atlanta, and after attacking the character of several whisky dealers he charged Tom Miner with having deserted his family, leaving them to starve. Miner saw Small enter a barber shop and followed him. As Small hung his overcoat up and started toward a chair Miner struck him on the nose. Small fell to the floor, and before he could rise Miner kicked him in the face. Small's face is badly bruised, his under lip is cut and he has lost Increasing Demand for Water-Lord and Lady Abordeen's Visit.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The average daily consumption during the fortnight was 19, 880,735 gallons, as compared with 16,492,747, the average for November, 1890. The explanation made is that the use of water for elevators and manufacturing purposes has become very common, water power being cheaper than fuel. It was calculated that $77,872 would run the main pumping station for the year. Already $119,219 has been spent. If from this is taken $25,000, the value of the coal bought this year, and carried forward to next year's account, it will be seen that this one part of the service will cost at least $25,000 more than the estimate.
