Splendid Bearing of the Private Soldier a Bright Spot for Brits. Gaiard Sortie on Lombard's Kop Proof of Condition of Ladysmith Garrison. War Humanely Conducted But Isolated Instances of Boer Savagery.

New York, Dec. 10.—The London correspondent of the Tribune, reviewing the South African situation in a despatch dated Sunday morning, says: "England has renewed her faith in Tommy Atkins as her best general, and bears with fortitude and patience the continuous strains of the war, with its fiercesome excitement and its endless exaggeration of trivial details. It is not without a feeling of political fatalism, a conflict forced upon her by Kruger's ultimatum and extensive military preparations, be watched with something like evidences of weariness, it is because there is an utter lack of proportion between the minor incidents which fill the columns of the newspaper and the magnitude of the British armaments and efforts. John Bull suffers every day by the pin-pricking process by which skirmishes are enlarged into battles, and by the same process the most unimportant of the communications exaggerated into crises and defects in the supply department, a sign of war office mismanagement. The effect of the undue importance attached to the trivial details and the unceasing criticism of the management of the war is to induce irritability and nervousness.
