HON. C. H. LABILLOIS VISITS I. N. R. SECTION

Says He will be Candidate in the Next
Provincial Elections—Found Country Prosperous and Growing.

Kedgwick, Sept. 16.—After spending a couple of days at St. Quentin, generally known as Anderson, and addressing a meeting of over seven hundred people, Hon. C. H. LaBillois of Dalhousie, N. B., former Commissioner of Public Works, in the Tweedie government, spoke to a large gathering here during his visit.

The meeting was held in the Public School and was very largely attended, people having driven from the different settlements to be present. Councillor Alex. Gauthier presided.

ed from all parts of the county to be a candidate at the next provincial elections, and as he had last year, given his old friends and supporters, to understand, that he would be in the field again, he would now state to prevent any misunderstanding that no inducement, never mind how great, would deter him from the reply given.

Mr. LaBillois said that in speaking thus, he did not claim to be any better nor to have more education, than many others, who might be inclined to be candidates, nor would he say a

HON. C. H. LABILLOIS

Mr. LaBillois spoke along patriotic lines. In connection with politics he said "That having been in the Legislature and Executive Council of N. B., when the charter was obtained for the construction of a line of railway between the I. C. R. at Campbellton and the C. P. R. at St. Leonards, in order to secure the provincial subsidy for the road, the members for Restigouche Co. and Madawaska had used the argument, that the opening up of the country between the Restigouche and St. John Rivers, would permit of the settlement of hundreds and thousands of people, and that before long, parishes and villages would be established. The dream of that day had been realized, and he was astonished, that after eight or nine years, three had been such wonderful progress made. He congratulated the people upon their great industry and courage, and told them that he had already ascertained that with roads and schools they would soon be on a splendid footing of prosperity. He had been ask-word against any aspirant. However, he said that he had to his credit what few men in N. B. possessed, if any, and that was thirty years of experience in the Legislative Assembly of his native province, sixteen years in the government, sixteen years as a member of the Board of Education, sixteen years as a commissioner of the Provincial Hospital, four years as head of the department of Agriculture, and from the success he had achieved in the administration of that department, he had been promoted, at the request of the late Hon. H. R. Emmerson, former Premier, to the great spending department, that of Public Works, and it was during his regime, that several steel bridges were erected in the county. Apart from his political and business experience, he was a native of Dalhousie, N. B., on account of the illness and early death of his parents, in his childhood days, he had been expatriated to the Province of Quebec, where he had learnt the French language and where he had become aware of the sentiments of the French people. It had also been his luck to reside in the old city of Quebec, he was there when the late regretted Sir Wilfred Laurier, had contested Quebec East, for the first time. Following his stay in Carleton, till the death of his late grand uncle, the late John Meagher, EX. M.P.P. for Bonaventure Co., a few months in St. Germain, Bellechasse Co. where he studied French, a city of experience in charge of a department, in the Jacques Cartier House, Quebec, he had spent the two years previous to his return to his native county, in Sept. 1881, in New Richmond, Bonaventure Co., and there, having been in the employ of a lumber merchant, in the large general store of R. H. Montgomery Esq., and having lived in his home for that period of time, he was well acquainted with the aspirations of the English people. When he accepted the honor though very responsible position of representing the County of Restigouche in the New Brunswick Legislature, he felt that he had to live and let live principles necessary to represent the interests of a mixed population. His public career was before the people, and he was not ashamed of it. It was with these sentiments and even stronger since the great war, that he would ask the people of Restigouche County to again honor him with their confidence, when an opportunity offered for the local House.

As to the formation of a ticket, he could not at this stage give any idea as to the future. The United Farmers were active, the laboring men were organized, and the women of our country, who had done so much during the great war, would be on the voters lists of New Brunswick, after Jan. 1st, 1920. He would therefore be a bold man, if he undertook to dictate to the people for the future. One thing he would tell the people and that was, that in view of our growing population, the great increase in our towns, our numerous industries, etc., the representation of the County of Restigouche at Fredericton, should be increased. He would accompany a delegation to the capital, before the next session of the Legislative Assembly, to impress upon the government the justice of adding to the representation of Restigouche County in the Local House. With at least another member, all sections and all interests of the county, would be fully represented. The population of the sections along the international Railway, formed about twenty-five per cent, of the entire population of the county, with prospects of increasing by leaps and bounds, and no doubt the industries and patriotic people of the new districts, would feel more at home if one of the members of parliament resided among them. The distances to the older parts of the county were great. If, unsuccessful in this undertaking of increased representation, then it would be the bounden duty of every elector in the county to give serious consideration to the situation, and to select two men, who would join with all the people in helping to develop the great heritage that had been handed down to us by a good Providence.

Mr. LaBillois concluded a long address, during which he was frequently applauded, by a patriotic reference to the grand work the people of the Co. of Restigouche, had done during the great war, the sacrifice of so many of our heroes, who had died on the battlefields of France and Flanders, that justice might reign over the world, and he trusted that the blood of our boys would not have been shed in vain. He appealed for harmony in all our dealings. Every body knew that he was a liberal. He was delighted with the wise choice that had been made at the recent great liberal convention. He knew W. L. Mackenzie King, personally. He had heard him speak, and followed his career, and he could assure the large audience, that he would prove to be a great leader of the liberal party and a great man for Canada. Although a liberal, Mr. LaBillois said that during his long public career, no conservative could say that he had done any injustice to any man because of his politics, religion or language. On the contrary, he had endeavored to do honor to the British flag, under which protection we should all be equal.

He had fairly puzzled the good villagers folk, had that clever ventriloquist, and now he was going to perform his last and greatest feat.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he announced, with a grand bow, "I will proceed to sing that famous ballad 'Goodbye' in a lady's voice, which will appear to proceed from the empty chair above your heads."

The minutes passed. Looks of strain and agony, doubt and anger, chased one another across the performer's face, but there was no song.

Then a voice suddenly broke the silence. "Tain't no good, guv'nor," it said, "I've bin an' lost the gramophone needle."
