

In each one of the issues that I have been discussing, Canada has a policy which is forward looking and positive. In each case, Canada as an affluent and mature nation has been making an effective contribution to world peace and world economic development.

Canada's policy is balanced, responsible and based on reality. But it is no less imaginative for being balanced, no less independent for being based on reality, no less far-sighted for being responsible.