

Tabling of Fifth Report

Statistics Canada are useless, misleading and need to be looked at with a jaundiced eye. In all fairness, since the minister and the associate deputy minister believe it, will he now take up this matter with the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce who is responsible for Statistics Canada, in order that he may investigate this matter and report to the House. Surely, the minister can do that.

Mr. Cullen: Mr. Speaker, much as I respect the hon. member's views, merely because he says something is nonsense does not make it so. I was speaking of facts. He might be interested in another fact. The Canadian labour market—

An hon. Member: Yes, give us the facts.

Mr. Cullen: The Canadian labour market—

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Cullen: Does the hon. member for Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton not want the answer?

Mr. Dick: Yes, but we want facts.

Mr. Cullen: The Canadian labour market is extremely dynamic. Over three million full-time jobs open up each year, something of which hon. members should be aware.

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Dick: Answer the question.

Mr. Speaker: Order, please.
