Question No. 234—Mrs. Campbell (South West Nova):

Have our negotiators at the GATT indicated specific areas which may adversely affect Canadians after the GATT is signed and, if so, what is the list of specific adversities?

Mr. André Plourde (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister for International Trade): No. It is not possible to pinpoint specific areas or sectors within the Canadian economy which may be adversely affected by the Uruguay round trade negotiations because the level of

The expectation of our negotiators is that whatever depth of barrier reduction is agreed in specific areas—and indeed Canada is pressing for barrier elimination in a number of resource and advanced technology sectors of export interest to it—every effort will be made to ensure that the changes will be introduced gradually so as to permit Canadians to take advantage of and to adjust to the new market conditions.

Question No. 238—Mr. Mifflin:

What is the per capita defence spending by province for each of the years 1970 to 1991?

Hon. Marcel Masse (Minister of National Defence): It should be noted that figures are unavailable for 1970–71 (the methodology for capturing Department of National Defence spending by province was changed in 1971) and for 1991–92 (the current fiscal year is not yet complete).
