in that direction. We believe that next year we shall be better equipped than ever before for scientific investigational work in the Department of Medicine. Dr. Collip, who was associated with Banting in the discovery of Insulin and who is now Professor of Bio-chemistry at Alberta, is coming to us as successor to A. B. Macallum, who retires in May next. Dr. Babkin, a very distinguished Russian Physiologist, joins our staff in July as Research Professor in Physiology, while Dr. Penfield of New York comes to us as Professor of Neurological Surgery. These three additions to the staff should make for progress.

I shall be very glad to discuss with Dr. Martin the contents of your letters.

With all kind personal wishes,

I am,

Yours faithfully,

Principal.
