

Nantes, after taking my leave of Mr. Leffeville, where I arrived on the eighth of August. I found Mr. Prud'homme, Mr. B and Mr. Trainfort at supper together; they informed me that they daily expected to hear from Martinico, which they were surpris'd at not having done before, especially as a vessel had arrived from thence, a month after the dispatches they had sent had been received.

I went the next day to visit Miss D, in whom I found a great alteration, she was become very thin and seem'd to be in a decline, and in short, in six weeks afterwards
