HAYWOOD TRIAL PUT OVER TILL NEXT WEEK

Panel Exhausted and Not One

Talesman Secured—Everything

Orderly About Court House.

BOISE, Idaho, May 9.—William D. Haywood, the first of the alleged participants in the conspiracy of revenge by which it is averred the assassination of ex-Governor Frank Steunenberg was plotted and executed, was placed upon trial for his life to-day, before Judge Wood.

Counsel for state and prisoner entered at once upon the examination of the talesman and kept steadily at the task for five hours. No talesman was accepted as jurors, but substantial progress was made, and the indications are that a jury may be obtained by the end of next week.

The opening day of the trial was extremely businesslike. Its chief feature was the absence of crowds and demonstrations. At no time was the courtroom more than half filled, and the absence of the public was contained not a single letter.

Haywood was brought to the courtroom in the morning. He found his family seated at the right of his seat, in front of which were his counsel. He devoted more attention to his youngest daughter than to anyone else.

The questioning by the defence took a much wider range than that by the state. It dealt with the possible effect upon the minds of the jury of the speech in Boise of Senator Haywood, and the admission of the Idaho legislature in appropriate money for the prosecution of the three prisoners.

The talesman all swore that they had not been influenced by President Roosevelt's letter or speeches of other officials, national or state. A majority of them said they were Republicans.

The chief concern of the court for the state was the men's attitude toward circumstantial evidence; the effort was made in which the evidence, proper and improper, was brought out, and the men's views as to the death penalty for murder in the first degree were ascertained.

Part of the Railways Play. Ontario is a large market, than Quebec. This province is more populous and more wealthy and both population and wealth is so distributed that its demands are larger.

Moreover, the Province of Ontario and the people of Toronto discovered and opened up a vast country to the westward, which with its wide stretches of avarice and destined to contain a population making money and spreading it to the westward.

With the legitimate development of Montreal, the people of Toronto can have no quarrel. They will rejoice in the growth of Montreal, as they rejoice in the growth of Halifax, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

But the question to be decided by the people of Ontario, is this: Shall Montreal be unreasonably developed and swollen to the size of Toronto?

Montreal's Kind Friends. The railway companies naturally desire the longest possible haul. They are not so much interested in the ocean, and therefore as far as possible from the centre of population, they do not desire to see the waterways for it is water competition which furnishes the only effective check upon their greed.

These two great railway systems are backed in this enterprise by two great financial powers—the Dominion government and the bank of the Dominion government, to wit, the Bank of Montreal. The Dominion government has extended to the Montreal harbor a credit of $3,000,000. The minister of marine and fisheries is a resident of Montreal, as was his predecessor. It is an open secret that the resources of the government are to be called upon without limit to develop the so-called "St. Lawrence route," which means the St. Lawrence, east of Montreal.

One most important thing therefore for Toronto to look into is the building up of the St. Lawrence route from Montreal to Kingston. Another thing even more important is the building up of a harbor at Toronto. It is a mistake to reflect that the harbor of Toronto receives and transmits less than any other harbor in the North American continent. The Dominion government has $2,000,000 for Montreal, $500,000 for Toronto, and $1,000,000 for Kingston.

Chief Justice to Officiate. MONTREAL, May 9.—(Special.)—Passenger business of this port will reach record proportions during this season. The big passenger carrying outfit of the Dominion government is being increased to capacity for second and third-class passengers has been reserved as far ahead as August.

Chief Justice to Officiate. MONTREAL, May 9.—(Special.)—Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice of the supreme court, and administrator, will unveil the Strathcona Horse monument in Dominion Square on Victoria Day.

LAURIER HAS KEPT ORDER

Given Credit for Having Prevented Collision Between Australian Premier and Home Government.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

LONDON, May 9.—As the conference of premiers draws to a close one thing emerges from the obscurity which surrounds it, and that is the great influence which Laurier has wielded over its deliberations. An instance occurs to-day in the proceedings when it is to be observed that Deacon first and then Lloyd-George succumbed to his pressure on the question of the tax on foreign imports for the purpose of the improvement of imperial trade communications which the persistent Australian premier unexpectedly brought forward. But apart from this, the whole trend of the debates on other phases of the conference indicates that between the ardent Deakin and the fiery Jameson on one side and the immovable representative of the home government on the other, Laurier acted as a buffer, preventing any possibility of an unfortunate collision.

Cause of Discord. Winston Churchill on Tuesday gave a hint at differences which have not appeared in the sub-edited daily reports when he said that the preference question had been the subject of discussion in the conference. Perhaps when the full report of the proceedings is published the proper importance will be given all round to Laurier's statesmanlike clearheadedness in recognizing that nothing could be done with the government in the matter of reciprocity and, acting with due suavity, in accordance with that recognition. His intervention between the "legals" of eager preferentialists and the freetrade wall behind which the present British governments rests, possibly by of untold benefit to future relations.

Another point may be made clear. Not only the conference itself, but the public statements of Deakin, Laurier and the other premiers have given an immense impetus to the movement towards reciprocity here. Three months ago the movement was scarcely in its infancy. To-day it is admitted that the Liberal press was not only "dead, but damned." To-day it is admitted that the Liberal press is the main issue in party politics.

Deakin's Resolution. To-day the precise is a lengthy one. Deakin's resolution proposing a resolution recommending the government to provide funds for developing trade and commerce and means of communication and transport within the empire, a duty of one per cent, on all foreign imports should be levied, or an equivalent contribution made by each of its legislative branches after consultation between their representatives in conference a common fund should be devoted to co-operative projects approved by the government and to be applied to the promotion of the industrial forces of the empire, and to promote its growth and unity.

Premier Deakin stated that the refusal by the home government to favor the colonies in the matter of reciprocity had to be "most definitely" recorded, but they had been given to understand that the home government would authorize any action, outside of the jurisdiction of the government.

It is probable, however, that a number of suits will be brought against the government in the near future, and whether they are successful or not, the alliance is determined to fight to the bitter end every attempt to violate Sunday.

Division Unfair. Lloyd-George said there would be no more to be said for the scheme if the fund was to be applied to imperial defence. He felt it difficult to see the resolution as a businesslike proposition. On import figures for 1905 the colonies received an approximate contribution from the United Kingdom of $4,500,000, while the contribution from Australia would be only $1,000,000, from New Zealand $200,000, from Cape Colony $400,000, and Natal $25,000. Thus the United Kingdom would pay 75 per cent of the cost of the self-governing colonies together. The resolution at any rate served to show what proportion of cost the self-governing colonies should bear, and Deakin's opinion, he borne by the mother country and the self-governing colonies respectively. The scheme was also unfair between the colonies themselves, as Canada would be paying four times as much as Australia, either her population or her resources being taken into account. He also maintained that it would be unsatisfactory to raise a fund and then to consider on what it should be spent.

Laurier's Objections. Laurier said it was not desirable to pass such a resolution. He believed that for any practical scheme for improving cable communication, navigation, which would tend to produce unity in the various colonies, would be prepared to vote money and that these should be dealt with on their merits.

Winnipeg opposed the idea, while Jameson and Moor supported it. Bond opposed it on the ground of Newfoundland's position being a special one. Such duty as suggested was quite inadmissible in his case.

Lloyd-George said he did not wish the conference to infer that the government's attitude towards the resolutions contained in the resolution was purely negative, so he proposed an amendment which would be a declaration of the desirability of devising means for systematic consultation between representatives of the various parts of the empire to further the objects in view.

Laurier again objected to Deakin's scheme, pointing out that it would be an admission that the government was in a position of constitutional government to provide money in advance without voting it for a particular purpose. He was not altogether satisfied with Lloyd-George's amendment, and wished the question to stand over.

To Be Considered Again. Deakin thereupon agreed that the objects he had in view might properly form a matter for a subsidiary conference to stand over.

OUTBREAK IN INDIA LIKELY

Bands of Rustics Are Arming and There is Every Indication of Coming Revolt—To Prevent Sedition.

LAHORE, British India, May 9.—Everything seems to point to the imminence of a native outbreak here, and the authorities are taking all the steps possible to suppress it by force of arms. The political unrest is hourly assuming graver proportions. Bands of stalwart rustics armed with bludgeons, who have been misled by the leaders of the sedition, are crowding into the native city, and troops of all arms and bodies of police, mounted and dismounted, are being drafted from the City of Lahore from all parts of the province. The fortifications of Lahore have been subjected to a special inspection and the artillerymen have been reinforced.

The lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, Sir Dhanoo Lal, is taking active measures to circumvent any possible outbreak. He has issued a proclamation prohibiting meetings of every kind and solemnly warning the public not to attend any assemblies under pain of severe punishment. In addition the lieutenant-governor has struck at the root of the revolutionary movement by causing the arrest this afternoon of a prominent lawyer, Lal Chand, who has been a leader of the sedition in the Punjab, and who practised in the chief court of the Punjab, and who was the leader, financier and organizer of most of the sedition demonstrations and revolutionary riots in the Punjab. Immediately after being taken into custody Lal Chand was deported to another province. Another revolutionary leader, for whose arrest a warrant has been issued, received an intimation of the action taken by the authorities, escaped from Lahore and is now hiding.

RIOTS IN BENGAL. CALCUTTA, May 9.—Serious rioting has broken out in East Bengal. A band of two thousand Darvits looted the town of Dewanganj, burned down some adjacent villages, and set fire to the town of Tarakanda, ten miles from Dewanganj, capital of Mysore district. Many of the rioters were arrested.

"PEDLAR" PALMER GUILTY. Preliminary Trial Holds That He Committed Murder.

LONDON, May 9.—A verdict of murder was returned in the Croydon Police Court to-day against Pedlar Palmer, the English pugilist, who it is alleged, killed a man named Robert Cheat on April 24, by beating him while they were returning from the races in a railroad car.

When Palmer heard the decision he shrieked loudly and fainted in the dock. His wife and sister, who were in the room, also fainted. The prisoner was formally committed for trial at the central criminal court.
