

THE FORMULA OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Is On the Outside of Every Box For All the World to See

Every user of "Fruit-a-tives" knows exactly what is being taken. The formula of this famous fruit medicine is printed plainly on the outside of every box. We have stated many times—and it is true—that "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juice of apples, oranges, lemons, and prunes, with valuable heart and nerve tonic and antiseptic.

Everyone knows that fruit juice is healthful—but perhaps some do not understand why this is true.

Fruit juice contains about 91 per cent water, 8 per cent of sweet principle, and 1 per cent of a bitter substance. It is the quantity of bitter principle in fruit that gives the fruit value as a medicine. An eminent physician of Ottawa, after years of experimenting, found a method of increasing the bitter principle in fruit juice, thus increasing the medicinal or curative qualities.

The juices are first extracted from fresh, ripe apples, oranges, lemons and prunes. By a secret process, some of the sweet atoms are replaced by the bitter principle. Then tonics and antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets, now known far and wide as "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices, and is one of the few remedies that have let their composition be known from their introduction to the public.

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's stimulant for the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin. In cases of obstinate Constipation, Liver Trouble, Indigestion, Backache, Rheumatism, Headache and Impure Blood, this wonderful fruit medicine cures when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere at 60c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CONSUMPTION RARE IN QUARTER CENTURY

In twenty-five years consumption would be as rare in this country as leprosy was today, said Sir Lauder Brunton, at the annual congress of the Royal Institute of Public Health at Birmingham. But as one disease disappeared another came forward. Appendicitis was now much more frequent than it was twenty years ago, and he put forward the hypothesis that its increase coincides with the alteration in the method of grinding corn. Sleeping sickness, which fifteen or twenty years ago was an epidemic disease, was now natives only in a comparatively small part of Africa, had now become, through increased facilities of communication, a scourge which had not only devastated large districts, but threatened to spread along the whole coast of the Nile and even into Europe. But the more they knew about diseases the greater was their power to prevent them altogether.

EVANGELIST KNIGHT ON THE S. S. LESSON FOR SUNDAY

August 14—Matt. 23: 1-16.

The theme of the lesson would be better understood if given in the language of the present as:

A Strike for Higher Wages.

The parable may be briefly summarized as follows:

A certain fruit grower went to market early in the morning to hire help to harvest his grapes. Having hired several at a shilling a day, he sent them to his plantation. About nine o'clock he sent in another gang, whom he found looking around, looking for a job. He made no contract with them beyond a promise that he would settle with them reasonably and fairly. Another gang was sent in at noon and still another at three o'clock and at five o'clock he saw several others who seemed to have nothing to do, and said: "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" They said: "Because no man hath hired us," so he sent them in without making any stipulation as to wages.

In the evening after the day's work was over, he told the foreman to send them all in to settle. To the surprise of every one he paid a full day's wages to every man in the crowd. The distant thought of the impending strike could be heard in the murmuring of discontent that followed.

"The fellow who went in at five o'clock," they said, "why didn't I get twelve?" "If the gang who only worked quarter time got full pay, why didn't I get the same multiplied by four?"

And he said to them: "Did you not agree to work for a shilling (Rev. Ver.), a day?"—"Yes."

"Have I not fulfilled the terms of the contract?"—"Yes."

"Then what are you grumbling at? Away with you. What business is it of yours what wages I pay these other fellows. That is my look out." "The last shall be first and the first, last."

The story has a two-fold application, a dispensational as well as a personal one. The spirit of the first gang is the spirit of the older brother in the parable of the fig tree, on the spirit of the Jews who had the first opportunity of working for God in the world's great harvest field. But who when the Gentiles were given equal rights of service grumbled just as the older brother who was "angry" and "resentful" because he had been first to serve them, neither transgressed I at any time command yet you never gave me a bid. Nothing is more provoking to the Jews.

than the calling in of the Gentiles to share the privilege of serving God of which they had the monopoly for so long. To application to the individual Christian is full of meaning. The idea of personal salvation does not enter into the story from beginning to end.

"I will not work my soul to save, That work the Lord hath done, But I will work like any slave, For love of God's dear Son."

Only those who are born again and are growing up strong, sturdy sons of God, are fit for service in the world's great harvest field. It is to each that the arrow of truth is directed.

What's the matter with the old gang? They grumbled when Evan Roberts came in at the fifth hour and filled their church seats. They said: "We don't believe in all this sentiment." These people won't hold out. Spiritual effervescence is rarely long.

Their cold cynical criticism of the young converts did a lot of damage to the work, but I see in the story land the diadem of countless jewels awaiting the faithful servant who waits in an hour of need. What many an older Christian would not have gathered in a lifetime. Whose faith that many of his converts lacked? Ask the critics.

What's the matter with the old gang? They still have their grudge. In twenty millions at the rate they are going. They call themselves Christians, but they are jealous of the good footing of those whom God consecrated to honor in service for Him.

Have I not fulfilled the terms of the contract?—Yes.

There is no time for looking for the night comes when no man can work. There is no reason for looking for the call to every one—"Go work in the vineyard." There are souls sadly in need of pruning, digging, dressing, watering, feeding, and praise. The opportunity is only for one short day of life. The reward is for all eternity.

Those who get most in the way of reward are not those who drive a bargain with their Lord as to what they should receive (like Peter who had just said "The Lord, what shall we have therefore?"). But those who have forsaken all and followed Him who will give us all according to reward to Him who will give us according to abundance above what we ask or think.

EXPERTS REVIEW SITUATION IN THE COTTON MARKET

Special Letter from E. & C. Randolph of New York to J. M. Robinson & Sons Here

The following special report, under date of August 9, on the cotton situation was received yesterday by J. M. Robinson & Sons, St. John, from E. and C. Randolph, New York.

The appearance of rain in the western belt checked the upward movement, following the August harvest, and a considerable reaction occurred with October contracts reacting from 13.88 to 13.48 as a result of more or less general realizing and some selling for short account.

But the rains proved to some extent disappointing. The precipitation in Oklahoma appears to have been sufficient to relieve the situation in that state, but Texas has not had enough rain; the weather turned clear and hot over the weekend, and yesterday all the active positions, with the exception of October which sold at 14 cents last December, made new high records for the season.

The break which followed the appearance of rain in the western belt undoubtedly left the market in a considerably healthier technical position from a speculative standpoint, while the character of the buying on a scale down was such as to indicate continued supplies, and the appearance of a good looking demand naturally checked all aggressive operations for short account.

The market consequently rallied very easily when it was seen that the weather was clearing up without any relief to the situation in South Texas, and taking the week as a whole nothing has developed to materially modify views as to the probable size of the coming crop.

Meanwhile receipts of new crop cotton continue very small, and the slow movement has evidently exerted a considerable influence on the August short interest, some effort is being made to secure a little more cotton in Liverpool for shipment here before the end of the month, and it is only the "peddling out" of cotton by the bull leaders on advances which holds the old crop price movement in check.

Continue Bull Deal?

While the bull leaders are letting go some of their August above 15-16c, they appear to be replacing with moderate purchases of September and October, and it is said that they are already quite heavily long of the early fall months at prices very considerably under present figures. The average. Their position in this respect has led to a theory that, owing to the slowness of the new crop movement and to the small estimates of the yield, they are planning a continuation of the bull deal and that they will take up more contracts on September and October contracts, even though they must market it in competition with an increasing new crop movement.

The idea is that the average price they have paid for their September and October contracts is so far below the present prices asked for early new crop shipment that they can take up the contracts, make a very considerable profit from the speculative short interest, and then be in a position to sell their spot supplies at a very reasonable price.

It is estimated, in this connection, that the remaining August short interest amounts to at least 100,000 bales, and it is reported in marine freight circles that ocean room has been engaged for shipments from the local stock about twenty months of August amounting to about 325,000 bales of which 40,000 bales have already been shipped out.

The stock of cotton already here is, of course, in the hands of bull leaders, and during yesterday's trading the market was plainly nervous over the position of the remaining August short interest. New England mills were said to be inquiring here for spot cotton, and it was reported that the local bulls have found it possible to advance their selling price.

But whether the old crop deal can be successfully extended into the new crop season, and particularly into October, will depend upon the character of future crop accounts and upon the development of a sharp competitive trade demand during the early autumn.

General Trade

Broadly speaking, general trade conditions are not yet showing a great deal of improvement, an unfavorable view being

Just Give Asepto a Chance at Your Washing

Asepto Soap Powder is more than a mere soap. It is a germicide as well. After all, despite what the maker claims for the purpose, soap is soap—all more or less the same—all made from the same basic material. It is all sold more or less at the same quantities for the same price.

While Asepto Soap Powder is all—contains all—any does all the work of the best soaps on the market, it is for its powerful germicidal qualities that it is to be chiefly recommended.

Not only will Asepto cleanse the most delicate fabrics—not only will it wash them, but it will harm them in any way—but it may also be safely used on woodwork—on pots—pans—and in every place where there is a single trace of germ life.

Asepto is not harmful to hands or clothes—will not cause paint or varnish to crack or peel—leaves no blue scum over woodwork, but abolishes dirt and chases disease germs like magic.
