TELS OF EXPERIENCE IN SOVIET RUSSIA Jacob H. Rubin, a former socialist, in a very interesting address to the audience at Chateaux yesterday, related some of his experiences under Soviet rule in Russia, which had turned him into a disbeliever in Socialism. 1921-7-25

He went to Russia in 1919, he said. After two months spent in Odessa was thrown into prison, charged with being an American spy, and sentenced to be shot. He was released some time later, however, but refused to leave Russia. In April, 1920, he was ordered to Moscow and passed through a district which had been under different rules in two years. 1921-7-25

The food was of the poorest and Mr. Rubin found Moscow to be even more of a despotism rule it had ever suffered. While in the city Mr. Rubin interviewed Lenin about the war with Poland. The police force, he said, was made up of criminals and robbers were politely made in daylight under the name of confiscations. 1921-7-25
