

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THEATRES OF ST. JOHN

HARRY MOREY IN VITAGRAPH MONDAY

'A Bachelor's Children' Coming To the Imperial

Harry Morey, one of photoplays' most virile and forceful stars, tried Shakespearean roles and also musical comedy before finding his forte in moving pictures. He first faced the camera in Vitagraph's Brooklyn studio, and he has been with Vitagraph from that day. He is registered success from the start and is remembered first for his strong work with Alice Joyce in "Womanhood" and "Within the Law."

He is most happily cast, with Florence Devlin, in "A Bachelor's Children," the Blue Ribbon Feature which will be the attraction in the Imperial Theatre on Monday and Tuesday next. In this fascinating romance of love and millions, by William Addison Lathrop, he plays the part of a mining prospector, transported east, master of millions, who tries to give his fortune to a poor girl whose father his uncle had defrauded of mining claims. In the supporting cast are Alice Terry, Denton Vane, William Shea, Jessie Stevens and several of Vitagraph's precocious youngsters.

FEATURE NIGHT AT GEM

This is all-picture night at the Gem and there are two big features. The Eagle Eye episode shows Tom Rintoul and the plots to blow up shipping carrying supplies to the Allies. Then there is the recently Kitty Gordon in "Diana" and Peals, a big romantic story in five reels, a World-Bredy release, one of those that have given the Gem a high place in picture treats. Come tonight at 7.15 or 8.45. Prices five and ten cents.

ARMY WIFE'S YEAR TRIP

Journeyed 30,000 Miles to See Captain for Two Days.

Mineola, L. I., June 12.—After a chase of nearly four years and more than 30,000 miles, Mrs. William Whaling caught up with her army husband and Uncle Sam's army orders here a few days ago. Four years ago she became Mrs. Whaling, wife of Captain Whaling, a western army post. About two months after the wedding the war department ordered the husband to the Philippines, and he made arrangements for the bride to follow, after the rainy season in the islands. While she was in the middle of the Pacific Uncle Sam got busy and the captain passed his wife on the ocean. When she reached Manila, the army wife was so hot back for a month—and her husband was in San Francisco. When she finally reached France, the army wife ran down the gangplank into the arms of—disappointment! Uncle Sam had been busy again and her husband was in Alaska.

A telegram of warning to the army wife reached Seattle an hour after her boat had sailed north. Husband and wife passed each other on the ocean again, he on his way to St. Pasco. She had to wait another month for a boat back, but when she reached Texas she found the captain was in Mexico.

By this time she grew tired of travel and returned to her home at Kansas City. But her husband telegraphed that he was in San Antonio and there she went, only to find he was at the national army camp at Chillicothe, Ohio. It was no use. When she got there, he was at Camp Mills. This time she beat the army order by two days and then the 48-hour reunion was cut short by more orders.

"I don't know whether I'm still a bride, or a widow," said Mrs. Whaling after her husband had gone. "Being the wife of a regular army officer is about as bad as having a divorce."

BOHEMIA MAY BE BAR TO GERMAN MARCH TO EAST

Outbreaks of Czech-Slovaks are Hopeful Sign for Future of Middle-Europe—Aspirations That May Curb Teuton Policy of Grab

(Toronto Globe.)
News that Bohemia is averse with rebellion is important, as showing that the people of this oppressed section of the "ransackable empire" of Austria-Hungary are willing to strike for freedom, even at the risk of terrible punishment under the German heel. There have been signs for some time of an outbreak in Austria, for the distress of Czech-Slovaks (the race name for the people of Bohemia), have been in close touch with Italy, and not a few of them, captured by Austrian armies, have enrolled to fight for the allies. Thousands of others have been called to give them a larger place in the war against the Teutons is steadily gaining force.

Recently Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, a great Slavonic scholar, arrived in the United States for the interests of his race in connection with the war. He began life as a hickamanager, but rose to be Professor of Philosophy in the University of Prague, before the war. He is now recognized as the foremost living Slavonic scholar. He early became interested in the democratic movement in Bohemia and soon became its leader. He was elected a member of the Austrian parliament, but gave it up to devote himself to the political education of his nation. Dr. Masaryk opposed Austria-Hungary, and at the outbreak of the war he was sentenced to death and all his property was seized. He escaped to Paris, where he founded the Czech-Slovak National Council, which now has branches in all the allied countries.

In Russia Dr. Masaryk has since organized the Czech-Slovak prisoners into an army of 50,000, which he expects to see transported to France. Some of the men are already at Vladivostok. The main problem is shipping.

To Block Germany's Path.
"What will put an end to Germany's dreams forever?" said Dr. Masaryk. "Buffer states between Germany and the East. Note Bohemia's position between Germany and Austria. It is a guarantee against Mitteleuropa, such as an unwritten treaty contains a plan of Germany's great bridge would drop out."

On the same subject a Czech-Slovak leader, Edward Benes, has recently been enlightening the people of Italy. His race, he points out, number 12,000,000 and inhabit the country containing 140,000 square kilometers. The formation of such a state as an independent Bohemia, he says, would present an insurmountable obstacle to the imperialistic projects of the Germans and Austria. He points to the Polish State on the north and the Yugoslav state on the south, thus forming a barrier against German expansion toward the east and west. The disintegration of Austria-Hungary as she is at present, a logical outcome of the application of the ideal of independence for all nations, would greatly weaken Germany and mark the end of an odious system, the source of which is the German desire to make such a barrier effectual. It would be necessary to work out a new political system for Central Europe which would replace the ancient Austria-Hungary linked to Germany.

Close Relations With Poland.
Bohemia under this regrouping of Central European States would be a long frontier in common with Poland, and surrounded as they would be by Germany and Austria, it would be a political and economic and military system, having the natural right to be a part of the world counter-balance the German forces on the east. These two nations would be the natural allies in the Polish-Czech-Slovak block a guarantee against German expansion toward the east and a substantial political system.

The formation of an economic Czech-Slovak block would impose a pan-European economic barrier to Mitteleuropa. From an economic point of view the Czechs were strong enough to resist Germany, and having access to Poland, where they would find new markets for their industries, they would themselves profit thereby and at the same time provide Poland with the means of resisting the economic policy of Germany and help her to set up a national industry. Otherwise Poland would not be in a position to resist German economic penetration and domination.

Work with Roumanians.
It was essential, the writer holds, for peace and the liberation of the continent that friendly relations should be established between Italy, Yugoslavia, and the Czech-Slovak, and that to this should be added an alliance with the great Roumanians, whose creation would result from the war. This way a circle would be formed round Austria-Hungary including that country to remain peaceful and not to allow itself to be the instrument of Pan-Germanist intrigues.

EVEN "POOR LO" CATCHES ON.
(From "Morning Gossip" in the New Bedford Mercury.)
An Indian in one of the western reservations was in the habit of bringing to Mrs. Gray each spring several baskets of wild berries, for which from time immemorial he had charged fifty cents a basket. A few days ago he paid his usual visit to Mrs. Gray's back door. The maid took the berries and tendered the usual payment. The Indian shook his head. "One dollar a basket now," he said. The maid called her mistress and explained the difficulty. Much surprised, Mrs. Gray again offered the money to the Indian, who once more refused to accept it. "Why is this?" asked Mrs. Gray. "The baskets are the same size as usual, are they not?"
"Yes."
"The berries are not scarce this year, I know, because I have seen bushes loaded down with them on my rides about the country here."
"Yes."
"Well, then, why isn't fifty cents a basket good enough?"
The Indian shifted from one foot to another quite calmly. "Hell big bird or consowher," he announced. "Berries $1 a basket now."

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN

Another Sidelight on Activities of Toronto's Health Department in Fighting Disease

(Toronto Star.)
Eight years ago a city nurse went into a home on a street off Spadina avenue and found there a boy who was dying of tuberculosis. The remainder of the family appeared to be free from infection, but they would not consent to examination. They lived in unclean surroundings, took no precaution and declined to co-operate with the health department. Since that date, the father, daughter of fifteen and a married sister, have died of tuberculosis, and at present all the rest of the family, including the mother, are infirm. This is merely one instance of the heart-breaking family records which the city nurses are uncovering in their fight against tuberculosis. They require public co-operation in order to cope with it. Its spread can only be diminished by educating the public to the importance of certain simple precautions.

The health department is handicapped in its fight against tuberculosis by the reluctance of families to admit that a member is afflicted. When families face the situation frankly, and take the precautions necessary to protect other members of the household, much can be done. Tuberculosis is a communicable disease. In certain stages and under certain circumstances it is curable. It is not inherited, but consumptive parents are likely to have weak offspring, and these may fall prey to tuberculosis or some other disease, but probably to tuberculosis, since the parents are apt to infect the children. The city's object is to remove sources of contagion (such as infected milk) and to educate the afflicted victims themselves to prevent the spread of the disease by exercising care with their sputum.

It has already been pointed out that the city requires the participation of all its citizens in the fight against tuberculosis. In certain stages and under certain circumstances it is curable. It is not inherited, but consumptive parents are likely to have weak offspring, and these may fall prey to tuberculosis or some other disease, but probably to tuberculosis, since the parents are apt to infect the children.

Patronization of milk is a preventive measure, but the health department cannot end there. The health department makes free examination of sputum in all cases. It is expected, and utilizes drug stores throughout the city as depots at which physicians make necessary examinations for the presence of tuberculosis, the health department takes measures to secure the patient's co-operation in preventing the spread of the disease to other members of the household. In certain cases, as they are particularly susceptible to infection, frequent washing of patient's hands is encouraged, and the patient is instructed in the proper use of a handkerchief. If he does not cover his mouth with a paper or cloth when he coughs, these to be burned afterwards. The healthfulness of open windows is explained, eight hours sleep is advised, and the diet is held to be of great importance. These are in the sick room. These are only a few of the things which the city nurses keep in mind in their work.

Free Clinics Are Provided By the City.
In conjunction with the health department free tuberculosis clinics are maintained at four city hospitals, including a clinic for children and a night clinic for patients who cannot leave their work during the day. Where the clinic physicians consider that the patient may safely remain at home, or cases which will receive free treatment and advice at the clinic if unable to pay a private physician. Medicine and sanitary supplies will be furnished free—or at the minimum cost if the patient can pay for a few cents.

The Hun's Limit.
Even the Hun has a limit in their depravity. The ghastly and macabre crime of sinking a hospital ship, murdering scores of nurses and other non-combatants engaged in a work of mercy seems to be as far as even the Hun is willing to go at present. Lying leaders and exploiters of the air have permitted the German press, and the fact that they have sufficient grace left to try to lie out of the most admirable thing we have heard of that treacherous race in a long time. But they have sunk pretty low when the willingness to be the most admirable quality which they can disclose.

GEORGE OF TONGA DEAD
Last of the Independent Kings of the Pacific—Daughter Succeeds Him.

London, July 6.—(Correspondence of the A. P.)—King George Tubou II. of Tonga, whose death is announced, was the last of the independent kings of the Pacific islands. He succeeded his grandfather in 1922. At the time he was a boy of twenty-one, and he was a New Zealand, fonder of cricket and rowing than of the science of government.

During his period as king he obstinately refused to keep within his official income of $800 a year, and he always succeeded in inducing the British treasury officials to endorse his overruns. For the first eight years of his reign he refused to marry, and he had many a quarrel with his chiefs and nobles on this subject. After throwing over the princess whom they picked for him, one after another he made his own choice, offending the nobility by picking out a girl of the common people named
