SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but Paid for It.
Chicago, Ill., was suffered from a female trouble, and she was in a state of nervous prostration. She had tried every medicine, but nothing did her any good. She was so weak that she could not get up in the morning. She was so nervous that she could not sleep. She was so tired that she could not do any work. She was so miserable that she was ready to give up. She was so desperate that she was willing to try anything. She was so lucky that she found the cure. She was so happy that she was able to get up in the morning. She was so strong that she could do any work. She was so healthy that she was able to sleep. She was so content that she was able to enjoy life. She was so grateful that she was able to thank God for His mercy. She was so happy that she was able to tell her friends. She was so proud that she was able to show them. She was so glad that she was able to tell the world. She was so satisfied that she was able to say, "I got what I wanted." This is the age of auto-education, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit. Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of these distressing ailments peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

GROWTH OF RUBBER TRADE

(Montreal Gazette)
The Census of Production returns for the United Kingdom for the 1907-1908 period furnish some interesting facts as to the development of the rubber trade, which is so rapidly increasing its importance in the business of the country. Although 1910 was distinctively the year of the rubber boom, evidence of the forward step in the development of the trade was evident three years earlier, when the gross output of the Indian rubber factories reached, according to the Census of Production returns, a total of $8,908,000. The number of persons employed in the trade that year, 1907, was 26,069. How rapidly the development has proceeded since 1901 may be judged from the following figures of the value of raw rubber imports into the United Kingdom:
1907..... $4,824,000
1908..... $7,700,000
1909..... 14,138,254
1910..... 26,066,859
That is, in each of the last three years the value of the imports has come close to doubling the value of imports of the preceding year and between 1907 and 1910 the increase is about 450 per cent. The Census of Production returns of 1907-1908 are of value in indicating clearly the lines along which the development has been proceeding. In Great Britain the demand for rubber for use in the manufacture of automobiles has been of steady growth and the manufacture of rubber tires had become by the year of the returns quoted so profitable an addition to the country's industries that it accounted for the most profitable of the trades reported on in Part 8 of the tables of results. Tires for motor cars, for carriages, cycles and motor vehicles totalled only a little less than a third of the gross output of the year, namely $2,280,000 in pneumatic and $2,613,000 in solid tires, a total of $4,893,000 out of a gross output of $8,908,000. The growth of the trade in other directions is also apparent. Waterproof piece goods, garments, etc., represented a value of $1,611,000; elastic thread and cord, $246,000; sports requisites and toys, $247,000; hose, $298,000; while many other branches were accounted for by the rest of the output. The facts given in these returns show very clearly when taken side by side with the increase in imports from $4,824,000 in 1907 to $29,096,988 in 1910 and with allowance made for the increase in value of the raw material the remarkable development that may be expected in the next census returns. The trade in the United Kingdom has been greatly stimulated by the automobile demands from other countries, particularly the United States, and this demand is expected to increase considerably with the steady expansion of the motor car industry. Production is increasing rapidly at the sources of supply. The Federated Malay States, which sent out 1,146,269 pounds of rubber in the first three months of 1909, sent out in the same period of 1910 2,960,684 pounds and in the first quarter of the present year 4,736,238 pounds. The figures quoted afford some reason for the speculative excitement of the "rubber boom" of the last few years.

THAT TIRING SPRING FEELING

I got it early, got it hard, My peace of mind is greatly marred, All roads to happiness seem barred, I have that tired spring feeling.
When skies are blue and days are fair I simply want to roll on air, And feel no jolting anywhere, I have that tired spring feeling.
When skies are gray and sunlight hid, I do not feel as once I did, I want to bask, I want to skip, I have that tired spring feeling.
I've lost my calm, my equipoise, At oddest times of weep or joy, I want to blow up with a noise, I have that tired spring feeling.
I have that tired spring feeling, —Melancthon Wilson in New York Sun.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

A YOUNG MAN, previously much respected and liked in his community, was convicted of forging a check.
Said the young man's former friend: "I'm not a friend to him now. He was deceived in him. And yet no wonder we were. Look at the care he took of his mother, and how nice he was to his sisters and how courteous to old people and generous to anyone in trouble. And to think, it was all hypocrisy, and that he was like this underneath. Well, it shows you never can tell."

A young woman of excellent standing and good family made a fatal mistake because she loved "not wisely, but too well."
Among her acquaintances the conversation ran like this: "Would you ever have thought it about Elizabeth?"
"No, she's the last person I would ever have believed the of."
"She had such ideas about things and thought so much of people who were really good. It just shows that often times the people who pretend to be so good are much worse than other people."
"I believe you. I always mistrusted Elizabeth, anyway."
So the two communities decided that they had been greatly mistaken in seeing good traits in the young man and in Elizabeth, and sadly came to the conclusion that human-kind are much more unregenerate than we realize.

That is, some same to the conclusion sadly, but more with the smirking, smug machineworked, but none the less, keen sense of gratification with which erring men and women discover faults in those they had feared were better than they.
But the point is that as a whole, these two communities condemned these two people, and wondered how they could ever be so deceived in them.
All of which is a commonplace happening in every community. But there's something I wonder, it's this: If a convict should suddenly do some astonishingly good deed why shouldn't we all join in saying: "And to think, we thought he was a forger," or "To think, we thought he could have tried to kill a man, etc. How mistaken we were. We must take him out of prison at once and reinstate him. A man who does anything so good as that can't have any bad in him. The bad must have been pretense."
Wouldn't that be quite as logical as our wholesale condemnation of the young man who forged the check or the girl who made a cruel mistake?
No human being is all good or all bad. Most of us are Jewels and Hydes. When the Hyde in a man or woman violently offends public morality, as in the case of the woman, or breaks the law, as in the case of the man, that does not necessarily mean that the Jewell is not just as real and desirable and lovable as it ever was.

Could Not Walk Ten Yards Without Resting

WEAK HEART WAS THE CAUSE.
Mrs. Robinson Collins, Rogersville, N.B., writes: "I am enjoying the best of health after having used your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was troubled with a weak heart and I was afraid to draw a long breath. I could not walk ten yards without resting myself. I cannot speak too highly of your Heart and Nerve Pills, for they are the greatest pill I have ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."
Thousands of people go about their daily work on the verge of death and yet do not know it.
Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart, or the simple reason that one thinks it will right itself, but there is where the mistake is made. It is only when a violent shock comes that the weakness of the heart becomes apparent.
On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nervous system, or of physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a quick and permanent cure.

THREE FIRES

Yesterday was the quietest day for some time with the members of the fire department, particularly the north and west departments. About 4:30 o'clock the roof of Wm. Crockett's house, Main street, caught fire and the blaze spread to the roof of Miss Carlin's house adjoining. About 4:40 damage was done but it is covered by insurance.
Before this fire had been extinguished, a second alarm was sounded from box 123, for a slight fire in a blacksmith shop owned by the street railway company in the rear of the car sheds.
About 10 o'clock last night an alarm from box 8 was rung for a fire in a wood shed owned by Harris Gilbert in Mill street. It is believed that this fire was started by a couple of boys.
UNKIND KINDNESS
The servants were abed, and the doctor answered the bell himself. A colored man stood on the steps holding a large package. "Is Miss Matilda, the cook, at home, sah?" asked the man.
"Yes, but she has retired," returned the doctor.
"Can I leeb dis for her, sah?" "Certainly," said the doctor.
He took the bundle from which flowers and books were protruding, and after bidding the man good night, carefully carried it to the kitchen, where he deposited it and all in a pan of water.
The doctor thought nothing more of the matter until he heard Matilda's angry voice raised in conversation with the maid.
"Ef I had de pusion heah," cried the cook, "dat put mah new spring lat in dis er dishpan, I'd scold 'im for sho!"

SET-BACK FOR SOCIALISTS

People of Australia Decline to Let Government Take Sweeping Powers Sought

(Toronto Mail and Empire)
The results of the recent referendum in Australia are deeply interesting to all observers of the working and tendencies of democracy. After that vote the adverse critics of the referendum idea will be less ready to deny that the people will take the trouble to go to the polls to settle questions referred to them.
As the commonwealth has a population of about 4,500,000 and as about 1,130,000 votes were cast on each of the questions, it cannot be said that the people neglected their civic duty in this case. Noteworthy also was the decided preponderance of Conservative opinion, as signified by the voting.
The Socialist-Labor government threw the weight of its influence on the side of the proposed amendments to the constitution, but the total vote against these amendments was greater than that in their favor. One amendment was to give the federal government power over all matters when an emergency exists, the purpose being to facilitate the carrying out of national schemes of socialism. The other amendment was to enable the federal government to acquire any business that parliament might declare to be monopolistic in its nature.
But the people said nay. The government found that it had miscalculated. The country was not prepared to put such broad sweeping powers in the constitution. The vote is also a victory for the federal system under federal systems to oppose the centralization of authority and keep as much as possible in the hands of the component states or provinces.

THE FIRST MARCH OUT

A splendid showing was made last night by the 62nd regiment in their first turnout of the season. Lieut. Col. McAvity, in command, numbering 400 strong, headed by the drum and bugle corps, the regiment marched about the principal streets, while many people watched the parade with interest.
On their return to the shed the men were addressed by Lieut. Col. McAvity, who, after giving the orders for the week, mentioned some of the proposed trip to Boston and requested a full attendance at all the coming drills. He said that all the men were not up to their full strength and in this respect he again reminded the men all recruits would have to be called before Monday evening next.

Another Ferry Hitch

Although the ferry superintendent and the government inspectors reported that the steamer Newport was satisfactory in every way for the service here, the common council yesterday afternoon decided not to purchase the boat. As an expenditure of money was made to purchase the boat, it was necessary. There were fourteen aldermen present and eleven voted for the purchase of the boat. The boat would cost $33,000 landed here. It is probable that another meeting will be held in an effort will be made to get the required two-thirds vote.
Those who voted for the purchase were: Ald. J. B. Jones, Smith, Wigmore, MacLeod, Elkin, Cozier, Wilson, Hayes, Kierstead, C. T. Jones and Buchanan against Ald. Christie, Green and Elliott.

THE SANITARIUM

The tuberculosis commission met at River Glade yesterday to look over the sanitarium with a view of making some improvements. Architect Brodie will prepare plans which will be submitted to the commission at a later date. Mrs. J. A. Hon, C. W. Robinson and Dr. McAvity will leave for New England next week to study the mode of running such institutions.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Several farmers living on the road between Norridgewock and Skowhegan, Me., are said to be picking up a little extra money by pulling automobiles out of a hole in the road. The road is in very good condition excepting in one place, and the appearance here is so deceptive that the automobilist is caught before he realizes it, the car sinking to its axle. The farmer who finds an automobilist in this predicament charges $1 for pulling the car out.
