Poctrn. WORKING MEN. List, ye stern, hard-handed toilers-Ye who suffer-ye who strive-Time has been when your despoilers Gave ye lash, and task, and gyve; Time has been when each low murmus Brought the scourge upon your flesh-

Ye were then the bond and vassal, And your master's will obeyed-Though ye built his lordly castle, And his arms and armor made : Even the chains with which he galled you, Your own fingers did create-And the very power that thralled you From yourselves was delegate!

When each struggle fixed ye firmer

In your tyrant's cunning mesh!

Thus ye soffered-still unknowing-Still in doubt and darkness toiled-Still your sweat and blood were flowing-Still your tyrants wronged and spoiled; For ye thought that ye were minions, And that lords were nobler things-And your faith was old opinions And the holy right of kings.

But one firm and bold endeavor Broke your chains like threads of wax -And a shield was raised forever 'Gainst the Wronger's fell attacks ! Now ye feel that glorious labors Stain not man's immortal soul : Iron ploughs must rule the sabres,

Sledges must the crowns control !

Still ye raise the shaft to heaven-Still ye force each mighty toil; Still by you the waves are riven-Still by you is rent the soil; But we feel that we no longer Are the slaves that once ye were-Feel that ye are purer-stronger-Feel that ye can wait-and bear !

COUNTY DIVISION BILL. We have reason to believe that the Bill was introduced by Mr. Hincks merely to fulfil a corrupt agreement made with the people of Dumfries and neighborhood, that if they would vote for Mr. Wetenhall at the Halton election the Government would form a new County to suit their convenience. But the ministry promised only carry it, nor did they intend to. Sir Franlast moment. Mr. Roebuck, and Mr. Aglionby, and opposed by Lord Ashley, Sir Robert Inglis, Mr. Muntz, and Mr. Gladstone-Lord John Russell moved the substitution of the following resolution :- "That an humble address be presented to her Majesty. praying that she will be graciously pleased to cause an inquiry to be made, whether the amount of Sunday labor might not be reduced, without completely putting an end to the collection and delivery of letters, &c., on Sundays." This amendment was carried against Mr. Locke's motion by a majority of 233 to 92. It was then put to the vote on its own merits, when the House adopted it by a majority of 83-the number standing 195 to 112. The effect of the motion is, that for the present the Postoffice remains closed on Sunday for the collection and delivery of letters. The enquiry pointed out by Lord John's amendment-namely, whether the Sunday labor could be reduced without a complete cessation of collection and delivery-will be prosecuted without delay, and upon the results of that enquiry her Majesty's Ministers will act. Should the enquiry be terminated before the end of the session, nicated to Parliament; but, whether Par-34.1y resolutions, as we understand, when once pared to bring them forward and prove to liament be sitting or not, the Ministerial formed, will be enforced without another vote of the House. The Premier stated and his colleagues was adverse to the suspension of Sunday labor now in force.— North of Scotland Gazette of July 16.
