BERLIN REPORTS THAT GERMAN CRUISER HIT ONE OF ITS OWN MINES

Number of Crew Missing is 266—Commander and First Officer Were Picked Up—Mines Laid North of Ireland Explained by Admiralty.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

BERLIN, via Rome, Nov. 6.—Only the scantiest authentic details of the sinking of the German Cruiser York are available here. The admiralty has received from Wilhelmshafen, little but the announcement of the time and place of the accident and the number of men saved.

A fuller report, it is expected, will probably be available soon. It is definitely announced, however, that the sinking was due to a German mine and not to hostile attack. The ship which was under way presumably swung outside of the channel through a mine field and touched one of the powerful mines, which made short work of the big cruiser.

The conduct of the crew, in the moment of disaster, is described as exemplary and there is much regret over the destruction of the cruiser—the heaviest individual loss as yet sustained by the German navy.

The admiralty authorizes a positive denial of the assumption that the mines off the northwestern coast of Ireland, were laid by commercial steamers under a neutral flag. The mines, it is stated, were laid in a manner fully conformable to the usages of war. The exploits of the German submarines and the reported British annexation of the German squadron at Yarmouth, it is pointed out, are the clearest indications that Germany does not need to resort to any illegal methods to conduct activities in British waters.

The British announcement warning neutral ships using the northern entrances to the North Sea is our first taste of fire. Although we were told that there were only sharpshooters in front of us, I saw French cavalry and other foot. From this day onward the fighting was interrupted. On October 20, my section received orders to go forward to attack and our officers warned us that if we gave way fire would be opened up on us from behind. This threat was carried into effect when the losses we suffered compelled us to retire. Indeed, it was by a German bullet that I was wounded.

"Having fallen to the ground, I remained between the lines without food or care for two days at the end of which time I dragged myself to a ruined house. During all this time, German shells, which were short, were falling about my shelter, located a few hundred paces from the French lines. The French having advanced on October 24, I moved forward and called out to a passing patrol and surrendered.

"We have received no distribution of food since our arrival in France. The commandant of my company was a reserve lieutenant, 28 years old. The colonel, whose name I do not know, also belonged to the reserve, as did all the officers of the regiment. The officers told us that if we fell into the hands of the French, we would be sent to the foreign legion, and that we surely would be killed or bogged. Our airman also has been able to harass advancing hostile columns by bomb dropping and machine gun fire.

"The tactical transfer of troops behind the German front line is now carried out to a great extent by motor omnibuses, of which long lines are visible from above.

"During the past few days large numbers of refugees have been streaming back along all the roads from Belgium are crowding the empty trains returning from the front upon which the French have most humanely, allowed them to travel. In these trains whole families may be seen justled together in horse trucks, and having with them what few household goods they have been able to
