A final act of the three days' June session of the Rhode Island legislature was the passage of a bill fixing the salary of legislative employees, and ending the scandal of treasury grants by members for extra services by making the compensation $10 per day for attendance at committee meetings during a legislative recess.

The London daily newspapers are famous for queer advertisements—if for nothing else. A "personal" which appeared recently in one of them reads: Wanted—A respectable gentleman—widower preferred—to marry the housekeeper of an aged gentleman, who has been an invalid for years and who respects her, whom he would like to see in the happy state of matrimony before he dies. She has had three husbands, but is willing for a fourth.

Francis L. Loring in New York has brought suit against Senor Mendonca to recover $4,725. Artists and art patrons are displaying much interest in the suit. It seems that Mr. Loring paid $4,550 for the "Magdalene" at the sale of the Brazilian minister's collection, held in New York recently. The picture was sold as a genuine work of Murillo. Experts—who have examined it say it is a copy and worthless. Senor Mendonca says he thought the painting was the original and seems quite ready to return the purchase money.

An interesting relic of the Confederate reunion at Charleston, S. C., was the iron 6-pounder cannon, "Old Secession," which was used in announcing the opening of the secession convention in that city, and was again fired when the ordinance of secession was passed. It was also used to announce the secession of each state as the news was received in Charleston, and whenever its roar was heard many persons rushed to see what state had joined South Carolina. The cannon has been moved by night to various places and buried since the evacuation of Charleston in 1864. It was recently dug up in Savannah and returned to Charleston.

A writer in the Century, who has made a study of the tramp, has come to the conclusion that the free riding on freight trains has not been the least incentive to trampdom. The custom grew up after the war, and it was tolerated so long that the tramp came to regard it as a right and fought to retain it. "Therewards pass from one section of the country to another, thus spreading the evil. Furthermore, traveling is so attractive to many men that it induces them to become tramps. The writer holds that if tramps were kept off freight trains, trampdom would not be so attractive, and that if railroad officials would make a concerted and energetic effort they might cut off the privilege of free transportation, which would confine the wanderers to limited areas, where they would soon become known to the officials and the custom be suppressed.

Cures Wear Men Free

A most successful remedy has been found for sexual weakness, such as impotency, varicocele, shrunken organs, nervous debility, lost manhood, night emissions, premature discharge and all other results of self-abuse or excess. It cures any case of the difficulty, never fails to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt giving the various ingredients to be used so that all men can obtain the cure themselves. He sends the receipt free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L. W. Knapp, M. D., 1719, Third Bldg., Detroit, Mich., enclosing the free receipt as reported in this paper. It is a generous offer and all men ought to be glad to have such an opportunity.

Wood pulp paper as military clothing is used by the Japanese troops. It is marvellously tough, and has an appearance that might well be regarded with satisfaction for summer wear. It holds stitching, and is so warm and well while its warmth is undoubted.

There are some women who seem to be perennially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the bounding heart, what is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has not ripened her charms. The secret of this marvellous health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of women is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" drives the debilitating drains, heals ulceration and inflammation, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their beauty have been made "robust and rosy checked" by the use of this marvellous medicine.

THE GOLF WIDOW.

Up to Date No Silver-Tongued Orator Has Pleaded Her Cause.

For several years now the golf widow's situation has been most pathetic, but she gets very little sympathy from any one save the other golf widows, and they are too busy sympathizing with themselves to feel any one's woes. The attitude of the general public toward the stricken one is: "Serve her right. Any one who is fool enough to play the game deserves any hard luck she gets." Your true zealot is proverbially hard-hearted.

A married woman to-day must play golf or give up her husband. Even when she plays she probably has only the melancholy satisfaction of occasionally seeing the fluttering of his golf coat across a far bunker; but that is something. It's a devoted and self-sacrificing wife who plays golf with her own wife, save at rare intervals, when no man friend is in sight or when he feels inclined to show his proud superiority by a little valuable instruction. Flattery, judiciously administered, will also bring the family together on the links occasionally. If a wife can only reduce herself to a condition of awe-struck appreciation, and knows just enough about the game to wonder and adore in technical sports terms, she may be allowed trailing around the links with her husband, and it takes tact to achieve this proud distinction. The most she can hope for under ordinary circumstances is to lunch or dine with her golf-mitten husband, and hear him fight his battles over again, but that is better than dining and lurching alone, and she may prevent complete and final estrangement.

The wife of a commuter has an especially hard time. He is so hurried and he really doesn't have time to go home at all save for purposes of sleep. Yet, after all, the city man does the same thing, and it is harder for his wife to follow him to the links than it is for the wife of the commuter to follow him, so perhaps honors are easy. The business man doesn't go home from the office to change his clothes. Not he. He keeps golf tog in his locker at the club. As early as he can possibly cut business he leaves the office, races for a train, goes straight to the links, plays until dark and dines at the club house, where he and the other men tell what would have happened if what did happen hadn't happened.

Later he goes home so tired and sleepy that he doesn't stand upon the order of his going to bed, but goes at once, unless he stays awake long enough to tell his wife about his phenomenal drive from the sixth tee and the spectacular long put by which he halved the seventh hole. If she doesn't know the tee from the long putt so much the worse for her. The golfer goes to the office early, so that he can get away early, and in the gray dawn he talks across the breakfast table about the virtues of his new brassie and the approach he has learned from Vardon. Then he goes off, wondering whether the weather will be too heavy for good work across the green, and calling back over his shoulder that he will not be at home for dinner unless it rains.

Countless golf widows are praying for rain as ardently as a Texas farmer in time of drought. A wet season is their only hope, and the wetness must be of the wettest variety. No ordinary drizzle will stop a golf game. No thunder shower will daunt a golf fiend. "Over at home," says Willie, (every well-regulated and warranted golf professional is a Willie, though there is some slight variety in our names), "no one would think of stopping for a Scotch mist, and any Scotch mist is a deal worse than this bit of drizzle."

And the American devotees of the ancient royal game turn up their collars, take a grip upon their clubs and their stucco and paddle around the links, warmed by the thought that they are living up to Scotch tradition, and that the quality of the clubhouse "Scotch" is beyond reproach.

So only a summer of continuous and pouring rain can restore the golfing husband to the arms of a non-golfing wife, and, if there is anything in prayer, it's a lucky thing for the general public that the golfers are praying for fair weather as earnestly as the golf widows are praying for foul, and that the former class outnumber the latter.

Saturday and Sunday used to be the days for domestic joys, with the tired business man. They are field days now, and the insidious thing about the game is that there's no age limit immunity from attacks of the disease. Anything from the infant to the octogenarian is fair prey for the golf germ, and only paralysis or blindness can make masculinity immune. Local attacks of mortality have stopped Sunday playing in certain clubs, and there has been a good deal of eloquent arguing for and against it. There's no denying that a day on the links is a tremendous physical invigorator for a man confined to an office during the week, and when one gets into the morals of the problem the issues are widely complicated, but there's the golf widow. Some concession ought to be made to her. Up to date, no silver-tongued orator has pleaded her cause.

On the whole, the best thing the deserted wives can do is to get into the game, whether they like it or not. They may have violent exercise, and the sun may give them headaches and ruin their complexion, and they may get going so fatigued and time-consuming that it leaves no time or energy for social duties or care of home and children; but, if they are going to leave all things and cleave to their husbands, they will have to do their cleaving on the golf links. If health or home care absolutely prevent their playing the game, they will have to summon their feminine fortitude and resign themselves to the role of golf widow.

"Mrs. Strongmind is a warm advocate of women's rights," she says. "Oh, yes. If she had her way, men would not be eligible for anything more important than the vice-presidency."—Brooklyn Life.

PARENTS REMEMBER

Before your son is fitted for business he should be able to:
Write a good, legible hand.
Write a good, sensible letter.
Speak and write good English.
Draw an ordinary bank check.
Make out an ordinary account.
Write an ordinary promissory note.
Take it to the proper place in the bank to get it cashed.
Add a column of figures rapidly and accurately.
Spell all the words he knows how to use.
Make neat and correct entries in day-book and ledger.

WORTH KNOWING

To prevent salt from caking add a little arrowroot.
Mixed mustard will keep a better color if a pinch of salt is added.
To remove quickly the paper from the bottom of a cake hold it in front of the fire.

When an oven is too hot for the proper baking of its contents put a basin of cold water inside.
Never slam an oven door when anything is baking. Such a proceeding will ruin the contents.
To cut hard-boiled eggs in smooth slices dip the knife in water.
