There were people who asked: "Is inoculation any good?" To such a question, it is not easy to give a direct ves or no, but if they asked if any good is done by the use of the serum, he would unhestitatingly answer favor of inoculation is that it can do no harm. Though they knew absolutely nothing of the germ that caused the disease, they knew a great deal of how to prevent it.

For some obscure reason, continued Dr. Fraser, the longer the spread of the disease, the less danger is there of newspapers that there was violent dissention in the convention respecting the value of the quarantine, but the fact was that there was not single objection offered.

He considered that sneezing and oughing was the most common cause of dissemination. He pointed out that while people coughed or sneezed into their handkerchiefs, they ethen by handling the article passed on the inection to the next person they shook nands with, or even deposited the germs on the door knob. He reprecated the habit of putting the fingers to the mouth, and declared that the mouth should not be and never was intended to be the receptacle of fingers, pencils or pens.

Value of Quarantine With respect to quarantine, the doc-Brothers on their farm four miles East tor argued that it was ofvalue in combatting the disease though there were some people who made a slavery of it. They were the worst persons of the community who having contracted the ply to the greatest possible extent has children moved from the farm into disease, failed to report it. Such a man was not fit to belong to any comnunity. It is imperative that all cases of the disease be reported, but in this connection, he was glad to say that the reporting was done better in Brandon than in any other place that he knew of. As to isolation, it did not follow that if there was a case of illness in any house and isolated in one
