The Southdown sheep originated on the Southdown sheep originated on the Southdown hills in the county of Sussex, whence they derive the name of Sussex Downs, and are known to have existed there 800 years ago. They are, we believe, the oldest pure-bred sheep of all the English breeds. They were then a small, light fleeced sheep, of good quality of wool and mutton, and being of a hardy and lively nature, were well suited to their surroundings where the pasterrage was scarty.
