"My wife would never be guilty of such a thing," saidCoi. Aubrey, stiffy. His peppery temper was always aroused by any remark on himself or his belongings, and Mr. Lingley hastened to propitiate him.

"Oh, well, you know, only a joke! Ladie's will be ladie's; but I know ladie's will be ladie's; but I know ladie's will be ladie's; but I know land was a bonnet box to such a thing," saidCoi. Aubrey, stiffy. He didn't read the papers, for they hadn't any news; at least they didn't coincide with his special views, and when he came to town one day with criticism ripe. He climbed to an electric lamp to light his ancient pipe; he hadn't read the papers — but he done just what was best: He simply touched the wire and the fluid-did the rest.
