FREDERICTON HIGH WON FROM NORMAL

Strengthened Claim to Second Position by Defeating P. N. S. in Overtime Game.

Fredricton High School improved its claim to second position in the New Brunswick Interscholastic Basketball League by defeating Provincial Normal School at the Armory yesterday afternoon in an overtime game, 24 to 20.

It was a strenuous exhibition of basketball in which both teams played pretty well hunched together. Normal leading 13 to 8 at the end of the first half. Fredricton High staged a come-back in the second half and tied up the score. Play was exceedingly fast during the closing minutes of the half with the lead changing in the balance.

An overtime period of five minutes was required to break the tie of 20 all. Dougan and Douglas both scored for High School in the overtime. Hickson for Normal made a remarkable shot from his knees below the basket, but the score did not count, as the whistle had gone for a foul, which resulted in the play being sent to his knees, from where he made the basket shot.

World Champions To Rely on Vets

The Senators to Have Seven Pitchers Who, Collectively, Form the Oldest Staff in American League This Year.

New York, Feb. 27.—While other major league managers are preparing to experiment with nearly one hundred young pitchers at the training camp "Ducky" Harris is satisfied to let seven veteran boxmen do most of the work for the world champion Senators. Excepting Zachary, Marberry and Egan, the Washington pitchers range all the way from 22 to 40 years of age.

Beginning with "Dutch" Ruesher, who is 32, Harris plans to use Russell, 33; Coveleskie, 34; Martinis, 35; McGriff, 36; Johnson, 38, and Greg, 40.

The Senators' young manager figures that it is a waste of valuable time to try out inexperienced and undeveloped recruits from the minors, the colleges and the sand lots. Quick and better results can be obtained, Harris argues, by leaving the pitching to seasoned performers who will be physically ready when the American League race gets under way. A few kids will be taken to the Senators' camp in Florida for inspection, and if they display traces of natural pitching ability they will be sent to minor league clubs to receive instructions calculated to round them into the state of efficiency required in the big show.

Of the Senators' veterans, Johnson is the only fast ball pitcher, although in recent seasons Sir Walter has learned to save his arm by employing "change of pace." Johnson is about to begin his nineteenth campaign with the American League, which would seem to indicate that speed merchants last longer than curve or spit-ball experts. Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Chicago Cubs has been using a fast ball delivery against National League batsmen for a dozen years or more, but, like Johnson, he has perfected the trick of "mixing 'em up" in order to relieve the strain on his salary wings. Alexander is among the oldest pitchers in the majors and still is a great winner in spite of serving speed exclusively for nearly ten straight campaigns.

The immortal Cy Young pitcher nothing but speed for twenty-two years in the majors and enjoyed his best season when he was 26. Young "broke in" with the Clevelandists in 1890 and didn't resort to curves until 1907, when his fast ball began to lack its usual momentum.

Kid Nichols of the Bostonians delivered speed for seventeen years in the National League. Though comparatively small and light, his fast ball was excelled by only three men, Ruste, Meekin and Young, in the middle nineties. The speed and endurance of Keeney, Clarkson, "Mines" Brown and others in their class kept them in baseball longer than the experts who depended almost entirely on curves.

Young pitched high class ball when he was 46. Nichols at 38 was just as effective as Johnson last season, when he was about the same age. "Ducky" Harris, therefore, believes that the use of old timers on the mound is the wisest policy.

ZACK WHEAT STILL GOING VERY STRONG

Brooklyn Outfielder is About to Start Seventeenth Season With Robins.

New York, Feb. 27.—Next week when all the members of the Robins are quartered in their spring training camp at Clearwater busily engaged in the task of preparing themselves for another championship season there will be composed of veterans who Robinson's direction a squad of about thirty-three players. In the squad there will be several ambitious youngsters who will be getting their first taste of spring training as it is done by major leaguers. To them the conditioning period will be a space of time crowded with events of interest. Another part of the squad will be composed of veterans, of whom the time spent in getting into playing condition will be nothing but a period of hard labor in which events of past training trips will be repeated.

Among the squad of veterans will be a player who will be putting his arms, legs and batting eye in shape for what may be his seventeenth season in a Robins uniform. Zack Wheat, captain of the team, is referred to. When joined the Robins during the playing season of 1909 when the team was known as the Trolley Dodgers. He made his debut in a game played against the Giants at the Polo grounds and Matty was the first major league pitcher he ever faced. "Wheat" made two hits in the contest. "Wheat" has made more than 2,000 hits since that day, but in spite of his long career he will not be engaged in a fight to retain his position in the Robins' outfield this year. For years Zack has been a permanent fixture in left field. Hundreds of youngsters have tried in vain to win his job, and in the coming training season it is not logical to believe that Zack will encounter the one who will take his place as a regular.

As far as his batting eyes are concerned, "Wheat" seems to improve with age, and last season there were many National League pitchers who said they would rather pitch to the invincible Rogers Hornsby than to Zack. When the 1924 campaign closed "Wheat" finished second to Hornsby in hitting. Below Zack were younger and faster players who were sensations at bat. Yet they were unable to out-hit the leading Robins slugger.

As long as "Wheat's" legs hold out he will be a regular in the Robins' batting order. He is 36 years old, but the time for him to put aside his bat and make room for a younger player has not yet arrived.

When Bernie Neis was a member of the Brooklyn outfit he drew remarks that "Wheat's" successor had not been discovered by the Robins' scouts. Bernie would add that when "Wheat" finally gives way to another outfielder the newcomers will have a difficult task in filling the job half as well as Zack. Of course "Wheat" cannot go on forever. During some future spring training trip he will be supplanted by a younger man and when that happens it will be interesting to note how his successor fares.

One thing is certain and that is who ever happens to replace Zack in the batting order will not be more popular than the Pole farmer.

Clever Boxer

SID TERRISS Of New York, whose defeat by Sammy Mandell was one of the boxing surprises of the season. Terriss is fast and clever, but a weak puncher.

GOES TO PACIFIC COAST.

TROJANS SWAMPED U. N. B. LAST NIGHT

Piled Up a 68-27 Score in Brilliant Fashion—U. N. B. Off Color.

Maintaining their string of unbroken victories on tour, the Trojans basketball team of St. John administered a heavy defeat to the University of New Brunswick at the College Gym last evening when they walked away from the Red and Black to the tune of 68-27.

U. N. B. showed occasional flashes of good basketball during the opening of the first half, when they obtained a small lead over their opponents. This was quickly smothered by the smooth-working St. John team, and at the end of the half U. N. B. was blanketed with a 34-20 score. The game was never in doubt from the beginning of the second period, although U. N. B. put up a game fight to overcome the lead.

The Trojans, whose weakened team dropped a game to U. N. B. last fall, were reinforced in their regular lineup with "Beef" Malcolm as pivot for most of the plays. His weight, strength and reach gave the Trojans a decided handicap over the collegians. U. N. B. on the other hand suffered from lack of practice and several times Southern took the game for a period of three weeks. Macaulay took the floor last evening but was unable to last out the game.

The game was one of the fastest on the college floor for some time. Dyson W. Wallace, a former U. N. B. intercollegiate basketball star, handled the whistle impartially.
