FALL SUITS AND OVERCOATS FOR GENTLEMEN. $15, $18 AND $20.

Butler says, "A gentleman's taste in dress is upon principle the avoidance of all things extravagant; it consists in the quiet simplicity of exquisite neatness. My new fall suitings and overcoatings are very attractive, of Cashmere, plain and wale, Black Cheviots and Worsted. These goods are carefully handled in their manufacture, and are properly cut and trimmed. No city merchant tailor turns out handsemer, better fitting or more durable suits. LEEburn.

From our own correspondent. Mr John Potter, of Porter's Hill, gave our burg a visit this week.

Miss Janet Stirling is visiting relatives of the 4th con., Goderich township.

TAKEN ILL.—Mr Jeffreys, who for some years was a resident of Manitoba, and has been on a visit to relatives in Ontario, has been very ill at the residence of his son-in-law, J. G. Clutton, and as he prepared for press is somewhat better.

A pancake social with other refreshments is being gotten up by the I. O. G. T. No. 213, at their hall, on Friday night, November 8th, to commence at 7.30 p.m. A program will also be given and several members of sister lodges are expected to assist the lodge. Admission, 15 cts.

I. O. G. T. No. 213 has made no chances in their officers for the new quarter with the exception of electing S. B. Williams W. O. T. in place of F. B. Linfield, who has gone to Guelph. Meetings this past quarter were fairly attended. An open meeting with entertainment was very successful. The new officers of organist has aided much in the opening and closing exercises of the order; this duty is fulfilled by Miss Horton.

LEFT US AGAIN.—Our townsman F. B. Linfield, who has been in our midst since July last, and previous to that had been a student for two years at the Agricultural School at Guelph, passing the examinations there in June with credit and winning the silver medal in the two year course, his diligence and painstaking manner in learning winning the confidence of the teachers' staff there, received a few days ago an appointment as an assistant teacher under the supervision of Professor Shaw, which on Thursday of last week he went to Guelph to assume. His presence here will be much missed in our social circle and the Leeburn lodge loses one of its best workers.

WEDDING BELLS.—Wednesday morning of last week James Foley, son of our townsman, M. Foley, was married at Kingsbridge, K. C. church, by Rev. Father Boubat, to Isabella, fourth daughter of D. O'Laughlin. A large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties were present. Edward Foley was groomer and the bride's sister Theresa was bridesmaid. After the wedding the bridal pair and other guests were entertained at the bride's father's residence with a sumptuous repast, and later in the day they returned to Leeburn, with a large party of friends, and were joined by other guests, and all joined in a social evening in dancing and expressing many congratulations on the event to the bridal pair, wishing them many happy years. The bridal party was the recipient of a number of choice presents from a large circle of their friends.

The taffy social gotten up by the Sunday School staff proved a decided success in cash returns of about $13. The attendance at it on Thursday of last week was good and all seemed heartily to partake of the taffy and flakes of sugar in conjunction with cake and cups of tea. The local talent gave a good program in which Park Green, of Shipparton, assisted in several comical recitations in which he brought down the house with peals of laughter. Miss D. Hethington, of the Nile, recited "Over the Hills to the Poor House", acting and reciting the old lady's lament so as to win the rapt attention of the audience all through it. Miss Nellie Clark's recitation was well rendered. Mouth organ selections were given by A. Carter and P. Stuart. Mr James Linklater also played a violin selection. The accompaniment was played on the organ by Miss Hethington. All present departed for their homes well pleased with the evening's entertainment. The ladies' committee with the financial results, and also wish to thank the good householder for the use of his house for making the taffy.

PORT ALBERT.

From our own correspondent. OBITUARY.—James Finn, an old and respected resident of this village, died on Wednesday of last week. His remains were interred in the R. C. cemetery on Friday.

The average attendance of our school for the month of September was 63. At the late promotion examination held on October 18th eight of our third class pupils were promoted to the fourth class, also four of our second class to the third.

A SAD BEREAVEMENT.—We drop all our money out of the bank last week in order to enable us to bet on the Star under our supervision completely slugging the SIGNAL away out of existence, but the day and four horse wagon, which, full of our patent medicines, we fondly imagined we had secretly fastened in front of the saloon, broke loose from their moorings and smashed the business to pieces. This unfortunate occurrence has completely cleaned us out of both conceit and shekels, in fact has left us in possession of nothing but the satisfaction of knowing that we weren't in the rig to get our neck broke.

AN AWFUL NIGHT.—Oh, what a miserably wretched night we have spent. Even now that the sun is high up in the heavens and the horrors of that awful night are fast fading from our mind, it is still sufficient to make our very flesh creep, when we think of it. And when we think how miserably insignificant in horrors and terrors the night spent by the Duke of Clarence was, in comparison with ours, we must say that for the first time in our lives we have a slight contempt for poor old Shakespeare. It happened in this way: You see, the railway question has now arrived at such a stage that it requires the most constant watching, so we thought we would sit up till twelve o'clock and watch it with an eagle-eye. When we retired to bed and to sleep, it was alas, not to rest. Scarcely had poor Morpheus clasped his friendly arms around us, until our poor overwrought brain took complete possession not only of itself but of us and carried us off into—well, we might as well say Dante's Inferno. And for fear that you doubt it we'll give the particulars. We first commenced with a game of three hand, or what is known as "cutthroat" euchre, the other players being the Prince of Wales and Mr Van Horne, and the stakes a bottle of brandy against the main line of the C.P.R. By great good fortune and three "renegs" we succeeded in winning the road, and were just upon the point of yelling "Hurrah for Port Albert," when the infuriated Prince rushed madly at us and sent us whirling over the side of the balloon to go falling, falling, fifty thousand miles until we landed in a camp of screaming, yelling G. T. navvies, who at once seized us, and carried us, struggling, cursing, imploring, to the railway track, whereon they tied us to await a certain and terrible death from an advancing freight train. Oh, how we begged, and prayed, and entreated for mercy from that band of screaming, cursing, heathens. And how we threatened them. Yes, forgetful of our poor, miserable impotency we threatened them, only to receive their jeers and sneers. And the train is coming nearer and nearer. Oh! how we writhed, and struggled, and screamed, and cried. Now, we see the head-light and hear the hissing, spluttering monster rushing down upon us. Nearer, nearer, oh! may the Czar help us, oh! she is right down upon us, upon us. Oh, oh, oh—And a kindly, pleasant faced old gentleman, attired in the garb of a judge, rushed quickly to our side, cut the bonds and fetters, and snatched us from in front of that terrible monster, but alas, only to sentence us to death by hanging, for sending to some miserable tricker in Duncannon, some poisoned candy through the mail. And now our poor, trembling, shivering, emaciated

LOCHALSH.

From our own correspondent. Owing to the dry weather water has become very scarce, and many people are obliged to resort to the river, or to their neighbors for the life-giving fluid.

Miss Aggie McKenzie, who has been seriously ill for some time, we are sorry to state is not much better.

A young cattle buyer arrived recently at the residence of Mr David Stuart. Both mother and child are doing well.

Mr J D Matheson has purchased another new threshing machine. The machine he got at the first of the season did not prove satisfactory, so he shipped it back to the company.

Our tailor, Mr D G McBeath, is almost well from an attack of pleurisy. He threaded his needle today for the first.

ASHFIELD.

From our own correspondent. The quarterly services in connection with the Ashfield circuit will be held in Zion church next Sabbath at 10.30 a.m. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the close of the service.

At the promotion examinations held at Zion school the following pupils were promoted to higher grades: viz W. J. Webster, E. Wilson; from senior III to junior IV, G. Webster, J. Webster. From junior III to senior III, W. Gardner, A. Wilson, J. Wilson.

Mr Chamberlain, at a private caucus in Birmingham, expressed a strong desire to retire from political life.
