Leprosy Husband Brides Choice.

St. Louis, Aug. 11.—A test of a wife's devotion has presented itself here in the strange case of George Hartman, who is applying to a hospital of this city to have a skin disease treated and yesterday he was told that he was suffering from leprosy. He was forcibly detained and ordered to lifelong confinement on an isolated farm several miles from St. Louis.

His wife—a bride only a few months ago—has begun a fight of her own to restrain the authorities from taking her husband to this leper farm. But while the motion was being argued in court to-day an ambulance had started Hartman on the way to the leper hospital.

The young wife then rushed to the hospital sobbing that no matter where her husband might be taken her place was by his side; that she would go wherever he went.

Dr. H. C. Woodruff, whose diagnosis has been unqualifiedly given to the effect that Hartman was a leper, gently told Mrs. Hartman that she would do well to give her resolutions the most careful consideration.

"If you decide," said he, "to go with him you will have to stay. You cannot come and go at will and you cannot leave at any time, even after his death, unless it is certain that you are free from the disease."

Hartman went to the hospital with no suspicion of having leprosy, but when he heard the diagnosis he resignedly accepted the fact that he had caught the disease.

The only other leper on the farm is a Chinaman in the last stages of the disease.

"Well," said Hartman fiercely, "if I am sent down the river, there to keep company with that Chinese leper—well, there will be two less lepers in the world."

If Mrs. Hartman should go to the farm she may never approach nearer to her husband than twenty-five feet.

"Assumed portance and Ignorance."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—When such an important person as a newspaper editor begins to advise he should first ascertain that he is capable of doing so, for press statements, except those found in columns, carry weight. It is of vital importance, then, that they should be carefully considered before coming under the public eye. For instance, when an editor asks such a question as "What is wrong with the teacher?" he should be able to justify his question in fitting language, and in language as grammatically correct that both teachers and taught can smile at it.

Recently the Bay Roberts "Guardian" began an article with the above question and illustrated thus: "We put a very ample proposition before a boy in Number 3 Book. It was this: 'Take one from five. How many remain?'"

Another and similar question was put, but received no answer. Perhaps, the boy saw his interrogator's misuse of the singular verb and treated the whole affair as a huge joke. Further down the column the editor shows his ignorance of the grammatical function of "or." On the whole, the article shows such a mixture of assumed importance and ignorance that it becomes most ridiculous.

It would be well if the editor referred to would learn a little before acting as an advisor, and thus prevent his doing more harm than good.

Yours truly,

TEACHER.

Bay Roberts, Aug. 16th, 1913.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc."

That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. It is not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. It is it more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible. Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance.

With the quick hand of the practised operator Dr. Seaman made an incision. Men held their breath, women gasped. The surgeon's hand came out, and the aged spectators gradually became aware that he held an enormous ham. Apples, grapes, a loaf of bread and a pineapple next appeared, but it was only when the patient sat up and asked for refreshments that the semi-hysterical onlookers realized that they had been hoaxed.

New British Films

AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

Commencing this evening Mr. Kieley of the Nickel Theatre will present what patrons have been anxious to see for some time—British made films. By the last steamer he received a consignment of "Williams Animated News," one of the best known films of the Old Country. This evening's programme will show such recent scenes as "President Poincaré in London," "Alexandra Day in London," "The British Lawn Tennis Championships," "The King presenting the new colors to the Irish Guards at Buckingham Palace" and others. These pictures will, we feel certain give every satisfaction to all loyal Newfoundlanders. It reflects creditably on our Nickel Theatre when they can present these pictures almost as quickly as in London and in advance of many of the large cities. Mr. Myle's will sing "Wrecked and Saved."

On Saturday, at a disadvantage owing to the strong westerly wind that prevailed, Mr. W. H. Reimle, who shot over the long ranges made 33, which is the very best score for the season over the long ranges.

On Wednesday afternoon next the W. D. Field Cup will be completed. This trophy has been won by Mr. L. G. News three years in succession.

Camp Burnt Down.

A four year old boy named Hall amused himself in a rather unusual way on Saturday last when he set his to a light owned by Mr. G. Parsbua, and situated near Major's Path. The camp, which was unoccupied at the time, contained a lot of equipment. All was totally destroyed. Houses nearby were in imminent danger but were prevented from catching by women who acted as a bucket brigade.

The Fishery.

The trapping voyage is over at Bay de Verde. The catch altogether has not been a good one.

Within the past few days hook and line did well on the local grounds. The improvement is caused by the plentiful supply of squid.

North Sydney Gets First Sables Ever Imported to Canada

Three Beautiful Russian Sables, a Fur-bearing Animal, whose Coat is so Rich that Even Places Ban on its Exportation, Finds Their Way to North Sydney.

The North Sydney Herald to-day learns of the importation into this country by Mr. Ivan A. Bayley, of three valuable Russian sables, one male and two females. These animals are jet black and are without doubt the most precious fur in the world. The animals are about the size of a mink and are forest dwelling, climbing trees, and spending its time hunting among the branches.

The sables, just purchased by Mr. Bayley, were captured on the north shore of Lake Baikal, in Central Siberia, which district has always been famous for its black sables, some skins having sold for as much as 1,000 rubles, or equal to $730 a piece.

The fur of the sable consists of a very fine thick under-fur, overlaid by two coats of over-hair, which has the peculiar property of laying any way it is brushed, and here lies the value of the skins, being dependent on the thickness and fineness of the under-fur and the length, gloss and blackness of the beautiful over-hair.

Recently the Russian government absolutely prohibited the catching or exportation of any of these animals, owing to their extreme scarcity, and the Russians are now fully alive to the huge possibilities of ranching these most precious furs, so that it is an offence liable to severe punishment for a Monack or Siberian peasant to dare to catch a sable.

Fortunately, these three animals in question were secured and taken from out of Russia before the passing of those laws, and these secured by Mr. Bayley are the first that have ever been imported into Canada, and will doubtless be the last for some years to come.

The three black beauties are to be the nucleus of a proprietary ranch, here for which a company is to be formed. And when it is considered that the Russian sable is about twelve times the value of the silver fox, comparison to size being duly considered, it can readily be seen that this is a move in the right direction.—North Sydney Herald, Aug. 13.

Robbery of $10,000.

A sensational robbery of $10,000, taken from the safe of Tooke Brothers, Limited, at their St. Henri factory, was reported recently, the perpetrators getting possession of papers and securities to that amount without the aid of dynamite or nitroglycerine to blow open the safe. The lock was opened by working the combination.

The daring burglar, or burglars made their successful attempt during the night, undiscovered by the watchman, the discovery of the robbery taking place in the morning when the certificates, and it is alleged currency, to the amount of $10,000 was found to be missing from the compartment where it had been placed the night before.

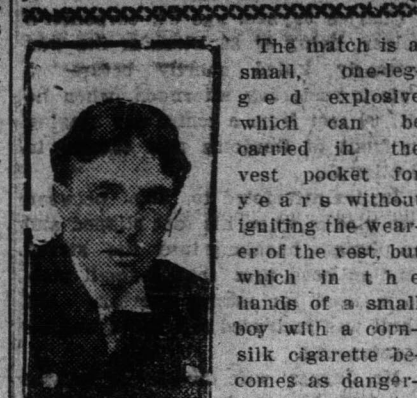

The robbery has had its effect on the employees, who have lived in fear and trembling, the news having generated from the office to the factory, where every man has been working day after day with the knowledge that he is being shadowed to and from his work.

At noon the same espionage is kept up, the sleuths who are on the case being spotted in turn by the employees, who are living in dread of the outcome.

The exact amount of the robbery is not known, but the figures which the alerted employees heard of were $10,000. An official of the company, however, stated that the amount was comparatively small.

How the office was entered with the watchman on guard, and the safe lifted without the use of anything but the knowledge possessed by the burglars of the combination is the strange feature of the case, as the combination was known but to a trusted few of the firm's employees.—Montreal Telegraph.

Matches.

The match is a small, one-legged explosive which can be carried in the vest pocket for years without igniting the wearer of the vest, but which in the hands of a small boy with a corn-silk cigarette comes as dangerous as a bonfire in a dynamite factory. It is a very insignificant-looking object, but is really of more value to the human race than the electric egg beater or the reversible pancake skillet.

Matches are made of a low grade of sulphur and a high grade of hope, and can usually be lighted easily after the fourth attempt. They are so constructed that when they are struck on anything but the seat of a pair of blue serge trousers they will leave a long, ragged footprint, which causes every several hair in the head of a neat housewife to stand erect. If you enter a house in which none of these footprints is discernible, you can tell at once who wears the pants, in that home. Many a man has started out in married life by striking matches on the sideboard and a white enameled plate rail, only to be tamed by a proud-spirited wife until he couldn't light his pipe without getting out of his chair and hitching one leg toward the ceiling.

The safety match is a recent invention which is designed to protect the American home and the over-hanging mustache. It comes in a box which is always up side down when you are in a hurry and is ignited by being struck in the face by the box. The life of the average safety match is one-sixteenth part of a second, and if a man is agile it won't take over twelve of them to light a cigar. These matches are furnished free by the sleeping car companies, so that patrons will not scratch their initials on the rosewood surroundings.

Matches are borrowed more often than anything else except trouble. The only time a man is out of matches is when he is on a fishing or hunting trip, when he is obliged to light one cigar from the other until all he can see is a glidy procession of shooting stars.

Violin Music Like The Singing of Angels.

SAYS HELEN KELLER.

Potoski, Mich., Aug. 13.—Miss Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb prodigy, has heard music for the first time. With her teeth held against the bridge of a violin, she caught the vibrations of the notes and they were carried to her brain.

Prof. Franz Kohler, of the Berlin Conservatory played for Miss Keller. The first note was sounded on the E string of the violin. Miss Keller was astonished. She had her teeth fairly against the instrument while Kohler played scales from Saint Saens, using the high and low registers. "Like the voices of singing angels," said Miss Keller, communicating to Miss Macey her teacher. She was exhausted from excitement. Miss Macey said that this was the first musical sound that has reached the brain of Miss Keller, despite reports of her previous knowledge of notes.

PRESCRIPTION "A."

Very Highly Recommended by An Outport Man.

Please send me by mail 1 large bottle of Stafford's Prescription "A." Enclosed you will find 50 cents, also 10 cents for postage. You send me a trial size a few days ago and it almost cured my wife. Another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicine, but I don't believe that there is any medicine that can cure a bad stomach like STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION "A."

Last night I was thankful that ever you advertised that medicine. Please forward as soon as possible as I am waiting anxiously for it.

Signed,
