KING'S COVE, Last Night.

The Union candidates arrived at Newman's Cove yesterday at 3 p.m. The Union candidates arrived at Newman's Cove yesterday at 3 p.m. At Birchy Cove, a splendid arch of evergreen was erected in honor of the President, splendidly decorated and covered with Union mottoes, guns firing, flags flying and people cheering. At Newman's Cove four splendid arches were erected, the boys having erected one entirely of natural flowers, evergreen and tansy. The people met the candidates outside of the settlement and paraded throughout the settlement, headed by the L.O.A. band which rendered some good, stirring music; musketry was fired along the route of march and the women and children joined in the parade. The cheering was terrific and kept up continually. At five the public meeting opened at the Orange Hall, every inch of space occupied. The speakers were surounded with men and the most of the audience which applauded with a vim. John Abbott spoke for half an hour delivering a splendid address, exceeding even his effort at Bonavista, and astonished the audience. The cheering for each eanat Bonavista, and astonished the au-dience. The cheering for each ean-dience. The cheering for each ean-ably assisted by His brother fish and escorted by many friends, the send other men to the House of Ascandidates proceeded to Amherst sembly but to get there himself. After Cove. They were met at the Lower Cove and received with musketry. The people paraded to the S.U.F. Hall. A meeting was immediately opened and Alan Brown presided. John Abbott spoke first delivering another excellent address, which was received with constant cheers and soon secured the good will of the audience. Robert Winsor spoke next and his address was received. and his address was received With Great Cheering and Applause.

President Coaker delivered a most remarkable address, which at times brought tears to the eyes of the audience. The address had a great effect upon the audience. He was cheered again and again, the people rising and cheering at the close. The enthusiasm was extraordinary and not a dissenting sound in either meeting. love and solid union sentiment. At 11.15 the meeting closed. About 90 toters at Amherst Cove—every vote a Union vote—not one Graball vote. The Graball candidates being at Bonavista five days, held only one meeting and did not visit Newman's Cove or Amherst Cove. Coaker arrived at Bonavista on Monday night and held a meeting and immediately visited the shore. The following morning interviewed friends and was at Newman's Cove at 3 p.m. parad—us: they not only fired away all the and solid union sentiment. At At night we visited Me at Newman's Cove at 3 p.m. parading the decorated settlements, headed by a band and almost every living creature marching in the parade. At 7 p.m. he was to be seen heading for the hall escorted by all the men in the place and holding the grandest meeting ever witnessed at the place. What a contrast. Who can resist such energy, such wonderful enthusiasm. From Bonavista to Amherst asm. From Bonavista to Amherst Cove there are about 1,200 voters, out of which Coaker, Abbott and Robert Winsor will receive 900. Graballism will receive its death-blow, for we are a solid bay for the Union. Fancy bands playing, arches erected, torch light processions, firework displays, olleys of musketry, women marching in parade, arches erected out of matural flower's, gathered by the wo-men. Whoever witnessed such a scene before in political combat. Coaker is idolized, every fisherman to all Morris is solid for him and the biggest surrise of all will be Bonavista Bay, then the votes are counted. God lless Coaker.
