to draw attention to what we consider the illogical position of the city in respect of its Municipal Government, and we confess to having had misgivings that things might not be much improved at the end of this month. Briefly, the very purpose for which, in answer to the popular demand, our present Com-mission was called into being, has not yet, or has been only partially, ful-filled. It is not always that an election leth need be taken very seriously, but in this case it is very pertinent and to us it seems to sum up the whole

The Commissioners our congratulations to both the revare far more likely to be judged by erend gentlemen other achievements, which we may be many friends here. pardoned for thinking quite minor matters—whether or not these "hoppers" are a benefit to the localities in which they have been introduced; whether the Tarvia road were the state of the st the expense; and a number of other particular questions of the sort. This is quite understandable, and the Com-missioners are not to be blamed if they themselves subordinate other Sir,—

Men form judgments largely from in relation to a misleading article as their senses. They will not judge a nan favourably for introducing a which appeared in the Daily Express good policy if they think he has made of the 17th instant. I shall be glad if better than the policy. But these are after all pure acts of misunderstanding should any of our administration. If another, and quite different, body of men succeeded the press. Commission, they too would set about making roads. It is not likely they would make Tarvia roads. They would use a formula of their own. The result would probably be no less expensive, and it is very doubtful if it would be any better. So, too, with the hoppers, and a dozen other things. Now, if matters were as in former times, and we had to elect a Council to carry on the work of civic adminis-tration on the lines and under the laws governing their predecessors, these questions might be very material. But this is not the case: nothing could be further from the truth.

The Commission was appointed because the city needed, not new men, but a new system. The old system was—we can only find one word for it -hopeless. We do not contend, for the Commission, that they have found a perfect system: that would be absurd; but we can say this, that they have provided the means by which it can be as nearly approached as is reasonably possible. We will give an illustration, the most important we can think of, to explain our meaning. In the remarks of Councillors we find again and again recurring the phrase, "So far as the revenue would permit." From lepital of Mrs. Ruby Innis, wife of Mr the revenue would permit." From legal experience, we have had abundant opportunities of seeing how inadequate the revenue derived from the city has been to meet its need; how imperfectly it has been divided; how imperfectly it has been collected; and how uneconomically it has been ad-

But it is not enough for us to know that they do enough for us to know that they do not approve of the Tarvia road and look askance upon the "hoppers." We desire to know what their opinions are on the subject we have mentioned, and others the very foundation of Municipal Government. We can consider the superstructure later. So far they have merely told us generally that they will do the best they can for our welfare. Let them tell us what their is accepted by they will do the best they can for our welfare.
