THE SERVICE OF PRAISE WAS AN ARTISTIC SUCCESS THROUGHOUT

Splendid Programme by St. Andrew's Church Choir, Aided by Outside Talent.

St. Andrew's Church choir has already received a reputation for its services of praise. That was why, most likely, despite the inclement weather of last evening, there was a large audience present to hear the latest service of praise by this popular organization. The high standard set on the previous occasions was maintained as alike a matter of gratification to the church, the choir and the choir leader, Mr. Charles E. Wheeler. The choir was assisted by two soloists of exceeding talent, Mrs. Ida McLean, soprano, and Mrs. Ida McLean, alto, both of Hamilton.

Rev. A. J. MacGillivray presided, opening with prayer and a congregational hymn. Although the initial number was "O Clap Your Hands," the audience was requested by the programmes as well as by the chairman to refrain from applause. By this the singers of the evening were saved from the usual attention from beginning to end that the programme was so much enjoyed that the audience would have liked to applaud and encore every number on it.

The festival anthem by Stainer was rendered by the choir. From first attack to last "Amen," the choir showed a perfect training, and, in fact, the same remark would apply to each of the choral numbers. The choir sang "Holy Art Thou," arranged from the celebrated "Largo" by Handel, in the first part, and the second part was in a most delightful manner. Individual parts were taken with equal ability and the ensemble was full of vim as well as harmony.

Following the anthem came an organ solo by Miss Madge Dearness. Miss Katie Moore also favored with an organ solo. These two young ladies, who are pupils of Mr. Wheeler, played with a mastery of technique and expression, that was a surprise to their friends, and it is safe to say, for both, that they show promise of much brilliancy in their organ work. Dearness gave two numbers (a) "Prelude in E Flat," op. 17 (Guilmant) and (b) "Prelude and Fugue in E Flat Major" (Bach). Miss Moore's selection was the "Grande Offertoire in D Minor," by Bistie.

The third number on the programme was by one of the outside talents, George Allan sang "He Is Risen," from Sullivan's "Light of the World." In this she at once won the audience, that was a surprise to a most beautiful contralto. Without effort her notes are far-reaching in their effect, with a sympathy in her tones that impress one. "Angel Land" (Pinsuti), and "Abide With Me" (Liddle), were also marked by the fascinating richness of her voice.

Mrs. Ida McLean Dilworth showed that she well merited the praise that had preceded her coming. In Mendelssohn's "Jerusalem," which she gave first, she showed her right to rank among the best high sopranos. Combined with her power of range, she has a sweetness of expression that is delightful. Only once or twice did she seem the slightest effort for her to soar into the treble, and in her last number, "The Publican" (Van de Water), there was even an improvement over her first number. Perhaps the most pleasing selection was her rendering of "A World of Praise" (Florence Ayer), which was more in the mezzo register, in which all the beauty of her tone came out perfectly. Mrs. Rowland Munro has always been one of the city's favorite contraltos, and last evening admirers of her voice had an opportunity to hear her in duo with Mr. Arnold Thomson, the bass soloist of St. Andrew's. Both Mr. Thomson and Mrs. Munro sang in their usual pleasant style, their number being "The Lord Is My Light" (Dudley Buck).

Last evening brought with it the last appearance of Miss Myra Pickard as soprano soloist of St. Andrew's Church. Next Sunday she begins her new duties in Ingersoll, and it was gratifying to her friends that last evening she sustained the reputation that she has gained in the past two years or more as soloist of this church. No soprano of the city has been better liked than Miss Pickard, and it is regretted by the congregation of St. Andrew's Church that her services are to be lost. She took the solo part in "The Bells At Easter," one of Dudley Buck's most beautiful anthems, in a distinctly charming manner, while the choir were especially to be commended on their part.

The choir also gave by request "The Ninety and Nine" (Wheeler). The arrangement by Mr. Wheeler is well-known to Londoners as a delightful work, and one for which the organist or St. Andrew's deserves the greatest credit. Last evening Mr. Wheeler played a Concert Fantasia of Scottish Melodies that was appreciated as much as anything on the programme, while the singing of his "Ninety and Nine" by the choir bore the marks of his able training. The service of praise throughout was an artistic success.

MRS. SULLIVAN Could Not Walk or Raise Her Hands To Her Head.

The following letter from Mrs. S. W. Sullivan, Orillia, Ont., proves conclusively that Paine's Celery Compound cures rheumatism and nervousness: "Early last autumn I was so badly afflicted with rheumatism and nervousness that I was unable to walk or raise my hands to my head, and often could not walk owing to pains and stiffness of joints. At night I rarely slept owing to nervousness and feeling of exhaustion. I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and soon found myself greatly relieved. After using only a few bottles my pains and nervous feelings were banished. In order to make the cure complete, I used the second bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am as strong as ever before. I sleep well, appetite is always good, my digestive vigor all that I could wish for."

DEATH OF MRS. SMITH

Well Known Citizen Succumbs to Attack of Paralysis.

The death took place at Victoria Hospital, last night of Mrs. Catharine Smith, wife of Mr. John Smith, of 129 Mill street.

Mrs. Smith had been ill for upwards of three months. Ten weeks ago she was stricken with paralysis, the left side only being affected, but the disease gradually spread through the entire system, despite the best medical attention. The deceased was born near St. Catharines, coming to the city many years ago, and residing here continuously up to the time of her death. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, and was for years one of the most active members of the ladies' organization connected with the church. Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Wiley, of St. Thomas; one son, Mr. Morley Riley, C. P. R. conductor, of this city; three brothers, Messrs. William and George, of this city, and Alex. and St. Thomas; and one sister, Mrs. James Pirie, of Hill street.

The funeral, to be held tomorrow afternoon, will be private. Rev. W. J. Clark, of the First Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services. Interment will be at Woodland cemetery.

The Tax Rate Is Struck by Council at 23 Mills

Some Paring of Estimates Makes an Increase Unnecessary.

Large Industry Wants Inducements to Locate in London.

Street Railway Declines Payment of Account for Removing Snow—Bury Season of Aldermen.

Twenty-three mills on the dollar is the tax rate of London for 1934. Last night the city council met and fixed the rate at the same figure as last year, despite the fact that it had been declared by some weeks that the aldermen could not possibly conduct the city's business on a 23-mill rate this year.

The fact of the matter is, however, that had it not been for a single item on the estimates of No. 1, the people might have been called upon to pay 23½ mills on the dollar—and this was an item of $1,500 for increases in city hall salaries. Ald. Judd was busily engaged, explaining that the increased rate was an absolute necessity this year, when Ald. Garratt, Greer, and others, not "next" to the salary issue, of the Ald. Garratt promptly moved that it be struck out. Thus began the work of slashing the estimates with a view to striking a 23-mill rate, and the way the council attacked the estimates of the board of works caused the members of that committee to almost shed tears.

Besides striking the tax rate the council also transacted a large amount of other business and adjourned. The rate was made before 11 o'clock.

THE TAX RATE.

When the estimates came up Ald. Judd, chairman of No. 1 committee, said that it was absolutely impossible to get along with a rate less than 23½ mills. Going into the rate in detail, he said that it would take 10 mills to provide for the debt service of the city, 5.5 mills for public school purposes, 1.33 mills for the Collegiate Institute, .47 of a mill for the Public Library, .48 of a mill for other purposes. There was only one place a cut could be made, and that was on the 5.5 mills for public school purposes. A half-mill might be taken off this appropriation of 5.5, making it 5.0. With this half-mill reduction, the figures called for a 23-mill rate.

After Ald. Judd had concluded his explanation as to why the rate must be increased, Ald. Greer moved, seconded by Ald. Greenlee, that the estimates of Nos. 2 and 3 committees, and then asking the aldermen to submit a list of the estimates, as revised, to the two committees. He moved that the estimates of Nos. 2 and 3 committees be furnished with a printed copy of the estimates, so that all could plainly see what had been cut, and had not been cut off. Ald. Greer seconded.

Ald. Judd, in reply, said that the council was very sorry that the rate was this year, and if Ald. Garratt's motion carried the matter would be still further put off. He said that Ald. Wyatt, Ald. Matthews and Ald. Judd had taken into their own hands the work of striking the rate, and they had not been cut off. Ald. Greer seconded.

The latter's estimate should be cut and a 23-mill rate declared. Ald. Matthews declared that he favored the council's estimate, and he said an increase looked bad for the city, and he knew it. If it was possible to secure a 23-mill rate, he was in favor of it.

MORE SUGGESTIONS.

Finally, Ald. Judd went into the committee estimates in detail for the benefit of his confreres declaring again that it must be impossible to reduce them, and do what was right by the city. He said that the increase in the fire department was responsible, and that the council should reduce the proposed increase in the tax rate, as the city was compelled to pay out for fire purposes this year $200,000 more than last year, and this meant an increase of three-eighths of a mill on the rate. In the estimates of No. 2 committee, No. 1 committee had reduced the cost of streets and sewers, and in the estimates of No. 3 committee, the items for a north end house had been struck out. If the aldermen thought that the board of works could get along with $50,000 less for street cleaning, sewers, and $2,000 less for street cleaning, the rate might be reduced some, though not a half-mill. He said he would like to see the city reduce their estimates, if possible, but they had all declared it could not be done.

The Public Library board were asking for $400 more than last year, but, though asked to do so, had as yet failed to reduce their estimates. It might be possible to squeeze another $1,000 out of the waterworks, and perhaps the mayor might be able to induce the hospital trust to reduce their estimates another $1,000. Thus, if $3,000 were cut off the streets appropriations, $1,000 off the waterworks, $1,000 off the hospital estimates, $500 off the Public Library, and an additional $1,000 secured from the waterworks, it would mean that a 23-mill rate would be possible. But he did not think such a slaughter of the estimates was in the interests of the public, if a 23-mill rate was struck, it would mean a deficit at the end of the year.

Ald. Cooper began to declare that the estimates of No. 2 committee were easily understood. This insinuation of Ald. Judd's, no doubt, referred to the fact that Ald. Cooper, was much against his will, taken off No. 2 committee this year, and placed on No. 1.

When he concluded Ald. Cooper shouted: "It's only your imagination. You're a Christian."

The mayor immediately squelched Ald. Cooper, but Ald. Wyatt deigned no reply.

Ald. Garratt then moved that the item of $1,500 for increases in city hall salaries be struck out, Ald. Greer and others stating that if it was necessary to increase the tax rate to raise the stipends of the officials they were opposed to salary increases.

THE RATE STRUCK.

Mayor Beck called Ald. Judd to the chair, and began a speech in which he declared a 23-mill rate. If the city could worry along with a 23-mill rate this year, next year the taxes would be increased by about $20,000 from the increased assessment in the city and the expiration of the low tax rate in South London. Some of the aldermen had objected to raising the salaries of certain of the city hall officials. He thought this was wrong. When compared with the salaries paid in other cities, London's officials were underpaid. He would compromise on the matter, by making the salary increases operative beginning July, and this would mean a saving of $700. Then, he thought, $1,000 could be cut off the hospital, the waterworks would give the city $1,000 more, $500 could be saved on electric lights, by not having the proposed new lights put in until September next. $1,000 could be cut off culverts, $2,000 of street repairs, $1,000 off street cleaning, and $500 could be taken off the public library estimates. Thus, he would leave a 23-mill rate ample to cover all expenditures.

Finally the council acted on the mayor's suggestions and cut off $700 on salaries, $250 on lights, $1,000 off the hospital, $2,000 off sewers, $1,000 off street cleaning, $500 off bridges, and $2,000 off streets. This, with the $500 which the public library will be asked to cut off, and the extra $1,000, which the city will get from the waterworks, will mean $20,000 more to the city.
