SOFT INNER WARMTH AS WELL!

EXCLUSIVE LINES OF KNITTED UNDERCLOTHES

Layers of heavy outer clothes alone are insufficient for winter warmth. Inner warmth is required. And how better supplied than with English woven underwear of delicate softness?

English Knitted Underclothes, the special lines of great manufacturers, exclusive in London to SMALLMAN & INGRAM, have arrived in a newly open shipment. They combine beauty and durability with elasticity and softness. They are as smooth to the most sensitive skin, as the finest silk. They are light, warm and porous. To wear them means adequate protection from chill rains and from biting north winds.

NEW HOSIERY

Autumn shades of brown have their necessary complement in Hose. Black, log cabin, gray, brown and other shades complete the required range of colors; heavy silk, silk and wool, or the new Bi-Tex models of silk and lisle, are smart, yet sufficiently warm.

Bi-Tex Hose have been developed for the convenience of the woman who would wear silk, but at the same time requires warmth.

Bi-Tex Hose are actually two pairs joined in one at stocking foot and garter top. They are a heavy silk stocking worn over a warm lisle. In black, log cabin, gray and brown $2.50 pair

FAILLE AND BENGALINE FROCKS.

The wide use of faille and bengaline in the new frocks has permitted extensive and charming originations in the semi-tailored models for afternoon and general wear. Their simple, youthful lines achieve a fascinating touch of sophistry by the use of inset bands of material, long revers or pleated front panels.

The use of the pleated front panel is at its best in a frock of black bengaline, which maintains utter simplicity at back and sides, and then, reaching the front, flares open to reveal a sweeping, finely pleated panel of pussy-willow printed silk $50.00

A model in black faille works upon the new theme of the long tunic. Kimono sleeves create a graceful shoulder line, and the blouse opens under revers at the front to reveal a vest worked in chenille embroidery of crimson and black and gold $45.00

In a smartly youthful frock, satin-canton takes on the tailored appearance which gives it a rightful place with these models for general wear. Narrow tiers ornament the front of the skirt, and the air of utility is heightened by the tomboy collar and vest of canna crepe, corded in black and gold $35.00

Second Floor.
