Rule 1. A woman's power in the world is measured by her power to please. Whatever she may wish to accomplish she will best manage it by pleasing. A woman's grand social aim should be to please.

From the Louisville Post.

Last evening a couple of gentlemen walked up to the Galt house register and asked to see "Freddy's" autograph. The clerk pointed out the name, and after examining Rule 2. Modesty is the ground on which all a woman's charms appear to the best advantage. In manners, dress, conversation—remember always that modes! y must never be forgoften.

A woman's charms appear to the best marked: "That's his, is it? Well, the d—d fool!" Gebhard was standing just behind the man, and overheard the remark, but merely turned and walked away.

She asked the wind as it came from the south. The self-same question. The answer came: For a zephyr sprang up and kissed her mouth. And ruby red lips till they seemed affame.

She asked a youth who had chanced along, And the moral question was solved in a trice, For he answered, "O, maiden, it may be wrong, But"—here he proved it—"it's very nice!"
