

SUNLIGHT SOAP

HALF THE TOIL

of household work is taken away when Sunlight Soap is brought into the home. For thoroughly cleansing floors, metal-work, walls and woodwork, Sunlight is the most economical both in time and money.

Plenty of Play for Children

It is startling to learn that town life under even the best conditions is apt to make children unstable in mind. Yet this is the conviction of Dr. T. S. Clouston, a noted Scottish alienist, whose remarks on the subject are reported by a British exchange. Dr. Clouston makes a plea for good food, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and the fullest opportunities for play and exercise. No city or town or rural community for that matter is entitled to regard itself as modern which does not possess adequate playgrounds for the children, Dr. Clouston.

It is becoming more and more apparent that while we have little or no control over heredity we have everything to do with environment. We can make our mar the mental development of a child, may equip it physically to face the world and its work with ease or leave it a relatively miserable and incapable anaemic. The possibilities should be remembered, whenever the question of establishing, maintaining or acquiring playgrounds is made an issue. As the city grows the problem will become more difficult but so also are the people becoming more intelligent, less unintentionally brutal, more alive to the importance of economy in human life.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

KEEP THE SINK CLEAN.

Greasy sink's breed many things besides roaches. Tonsillitis, diphtheria and other diseases have been traced to unclean sinks. One cannot be too careful to keep every waste pipe in the house thoroughly clean. They should be a correspondent of the Paris Modes, be subjected to a scalding once a week, and if the habit is inculcated in the household it will soon become part of the daily routine. A pailful of boiling water in which three pounds of washing soda have been dissolved will cut through almost anything that is apt to stop up a waste pipe and will carry away with it all impurities. Every kitchen sink should have its accompaniment brush and scraper, and a careful servant leaves not one particle of grease or food in the sink when she has finished for the night.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable and have been raised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all dealers.

Acting upon rumors that have been circulating for some time respecting violation of the Game Law. Game Inspector C. O'Dell, of Annapolis Royal with L. D. Mitchell, of Mill Village. Game Warden, visited Sable River last Friday and arrested Tom Labrador and son, William, accused of killing seven moose in close season. The prisoners were taken to Shelburne and lodged in the jail there until trial tomorrow. Several others are suspected of a like offence, and are to be looked after.

WHEN APPETITE FAILS

It is because your food does not digest properly. Your stomach, liver and bowels need strengthening. Don't neglect the danger-sign!

GREENWOOD'S COURTESY.

Woman Journalist's Adventure With the Young Canadian M.P.

A former president of the Canadian Women's Press Club, who is widely known by her pen name, Mary Markwell, tells the following story:

"When I was in London a couple of years ago, the opening of the British Parliament seemed to be something I ought to see. Being the 'President' of the Canadian Women's Press Club, I considered it only necessary to send my 'official' card to the Lord High Chamberlain and forthwith receive a card of admission to peerage seats! I awaited this recognition of my own importance until two days before Parliament opened; the last mail brought me nothing—the official Source of Parliamentary favors had probably left his official pipe with my official card! Nevertheless, I began to realize how very big the British Parliament, and, incidentally, how very small the 'President' of the Canadian Press, etc., was. But the Canadian spirit dies hard—I wanted to witness this pageant of pageantry! Then I remembered:

"Wasn't Mr. Hamar Greenwood a House member? More, wasn't he a Canadian? I sat down and wrote Mr. Greenwood the following note:

"Dear Mr. Greenwood—Parliament opens to-morrow. I am a Canadian woman in London. I want to see my King, and the Lord High Chamberlain—some thing or other won't let me; can you help me? Signed M.M."

"That night I cried myself to sleep in my S. W. Kensington lodgings, feeling that this talk of the 'Imperial spirit' wanted some of its air 'at home.' I went to my desk and set about opening a Vesuvius of mail enquiries. My great-grand-mama's right to Debreff? How I hated Lord High Chamberlain!

"Next morning dawned in a deluge of rain. Clad in nothing but a nightgown, I took the 'bus' for No. 12 Charing Cross, where, day after day I was enlightening 'decayed gentlemen' on chances in Canada. I had given up all hope of seeing my King in his royal robes, and I had too much Canuck spunk left to go out in a raincoat and 'glorshes' to see him passing by. I went to my desk and set about opening a Vesuvius of mail enquiries. "Suddenly the office door swung open and in whirled a strikingly handsome man, silk hat in hand and swinging a gold-headed cane-umbrella.

"Are you Mary Markwell?"

"Yes."

"My name is Greenwood. I got your note yesterday, but I wasn't able to secure you a ticket of admission until about an hour ago; by happy chance I got it for you" (extending an official looking envelope).

"Oh, Mr. Greenwood (this in a despairing wail) 'I haven't got a decent hat—it's miles to Kensington—and—' (here the tears came), 'and it's after ten o'clock—and—Parliament—opens—at—eleven—a—m.'"

"I'll call a cab!" said the gentleman briskly; "get ready—while home and get your hat" (consulting his watch with tremendous gravity). "You're just forty minutes left, and you can make it if you try."

"Then Hamar Greenwood, British M.P., silk-hatted and dressed for the great function, stepped to the door, summoned a hansom, white, which he drove to my house, and back to the British House of Commons in time to see Edward VII. open Parliament in the year 1907."

Mary Markwell, in telling the story, adds: "The only time I ever felt like joining the 'votes-for-women' order, I would like to be able to vote for Hamar Greenwood."

A Hero of Paardeburg.

Major J. Cooper Mason, son of Col. Mason of Toronto, B.A. of the Royal Grenadiers, was severely wounded the first day at Paardeburg (Feb. 18, 1903), and was awarded the D.S.O. in recognition of his services. In the earlier phases of the action he saved the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, under Lieut.-Col. Aldworth, to reinforce the point in the firing line where he happened to be by causing the men under his command to open steady volley firing so as to cover the Cornwall's advance. When the charge took place he was near a party of four officers who were near each other. Of these two, Lieut. Col. Aldworth, of the Cornwall's, and the adjutant of the same regiment, met death, and the other two Lieut. Mason and Lieut. Money, were the only survivors. Money, who was wounded, died of his wounds. That was perhaps the most desperate corner of the fight, and there the losses were the heaviest. One section of the Cornwall's lost eleven killed and ten wounded out of twenty-five men. After being hit, Lieut. Mason continued, as well as he was able, to direct the men who were near him. The point where he fell marked the extreme limit of the charge as a general advance. He was the last of the officers to fall and the furthest forward. Although seriously wounded, Lieut. Mason insisted upon joining his regiment at the earliest possible moment. In his report, of Jan. 25, 1902, Lieut. Col. Otter mentioned "The indomitable pluck of Lieut. Mason who, still suffering from a severe wound, forced his way to the front and took part in the battalion's last series of marches." I believe this is the only existing case of one family having father and son wounded on service in the militia of the Dominion.

Wily Talleyrand.

Louis XVIII., complimenting Talleyrand one day upon his abilities, asked him how he had contrived first to overturn the directory and finally Bonaparte.

The wily diplomat replied, with charming simplicity: "Really, sire, I have had nothing to do with this. There is something incredible about me which brings ill-luck on the governments that neglect me."

A Shivery Jest.

"What does chivalry mean, Tommy?"

"Please, ma'am, it's when you feel cold."

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES PAIN

MINISTER AND ZAM-BUK

Cured Him of a Bad Sore Which Defied All Other Remedies For Two Years.

Rev. Charles E. Stafford, of Bridgeburg, Ont., says: "I have been much troubled for over two years with a sore on my left cheek. I tried all kinds of salves and lotions, but nothing I procured seemed to have the least bit of effect towards healing the sore. Hearing of Zam-Buk, I decided to give it a trial and see if it would bring about a cure, as so many other things had failed. I purchased a supply, and commenced with the treatment. After several applications, to my great joy, Zam-Buk has effected what for two years I tried in vain to bring about—a complete cure."

Case after case could be quoted, in which, as in above instance, Zam-Buk has worked cures when everything else tried had failed. There is reason for this. Away back in the days of Roman gladiators, secret balms were used for the healing of cuts and injuries sustained in the arena and in battle. Then came a period during which external balms were neglected, followed by a period in which all the salves and embrocations had as their base animal fats and oils. Zam-Buk marks a new epoch. It is absolutely devoid of all animal fats and all mineral coloring matters, and is composed entirely of rich medical herbs and extracts.

Skin diseases, such as eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, and psoriasis, are speedily overcome by it. For piles it is first—easing the pain and inflammation, and hastening a cure. It also cures burns, scalds, cuts, ulcers, children's sores and eruptions, blood-poisoning, scratches, old wounds, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free, for price, from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Co-operation in Eggs

A Suggestion to Cheese and Butter Factory Patrons.

W. H. Olds, Vice-President of the Norfolk Fruit Growers' Association is of opinion that as satisfactory results would be obtained by applying the co-operative principle to the handling of poultry and eggs as have been obtained by the application of the same principle to fruit growing.

"Beginning in this direction said Mr. Olds, 'should be made in the dairy districts. Where cheese or butter factories are already established eggs could be collected daily by the same men who haul the milk or cream to the factories and these factories could be made shipping stations for eggs as well as for cheese or butter. The machinery is in existence; all that is required is a little extension of the organization already created.'"

There is no doubt producers, as well as customers, would profit by the application of the co-operative system in this way, as it would ensure the placing of the product in the hands of customers in better condition than now, while the uniformity in grading, as to both color and size, would secure better returns for the producer than are obtained at present. Incidentally losses by breakage in shipping would be greatly reduced by arranging for grading as to size. Where large and small eggs are in the same case the covering is bound to be in some cases too tight, and in others to issue till it ends in a final victory.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickle in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all dealers.

MUST FIGHT TO A FINISH.

Winston Churchill is quoted as saying that the fight against the House of Lords must be begun by the Liberals the moment the House of Commons meets and then pursued to the bitter end, however long the struggle may take. It may take years and several elections to defeat the Lords, but it must remain the dominant party issue till it ends in a final victory.

HARRY REID KNOWS

S. N. Wear, the druggist does not guarantee Parisian Sake to grow hair on every bald head, but if there is any life left in the roots of your hair, Parisian Sake will stimulate the hair bulbs and cause your hair to grow again. Here is one case. "I am now using the second bottle of your Parisian Sake, and can notice a new crop of hair appearing. I am glad to say it is a darker color than my hair was before I became bald." Harry Reid 10 Manhattan St., Rochester, N. Y.

Don't wait till you're bald before using Parisian Sake, use it now. Kill the dandruff germ and prevent baldness. S. N. Wear, the druggist, sells Parisian Sake at 50 cents a large bottle, and he guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair, and cure all diseases of the scalp, or money back. Parisian Sake is a delightfully invigorating hair dressing; it makes the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful.

CANADIAN TREASURES.

Montreal Home of D. R. McCord is an Aladdin's Cave.

There is probably only one private house in all Canada in which a fire would prove a national calamity, says a writer in The Toronto Globe. That house is in Montreal and it shelters the quaintest, the most delightful, the most original, and the most interesting Canadian gentleman it has been my lot to meet. David Ross McCord is his name, and if you ask him his profession he will tell you he is Canada's only salmon-fly maker—which description requires a little explanation, especially as he happens to be entitled to put the letters M.A., B.C.L., and K.C. after his name.

He is not a salmon-fly maker in the sense in which good old Isaac Walton was. His salmon-fly is the term is his own—take the form of begging letters of the most alluring description and of the highest literary polish. With these as his bait he is constantly getting the most exciting sport, and landing gorgeous and valuable quarry. Begun as a pastime, this sport has become a perfect passion with him—so much so that, although he is a King's Counsel, he will be no more known to posterity as a lawyer than Isaac Walton is known as the London line-drafter that he was.

Coming of a legal family of much distinction in the city of Montreal and the Province of Quebec, and being himself a man of unusual gifts, ready wit, and great culture, Mr. McCord could undoubtedly have piled up a big fortune if he had chosen to devote himself with a single eye to glory in the legal profession. But then "Pooh! what's money, after all?" That is what he says. His fortune, he declares, is like Isaac Walton, he withdraws from the crowded haunts of men, and takes wholeheartedly to "the excellent art of angling."

Unlike Isaac Walton, however, he does not distribute his riches among his friends. Every fish that he has landed during close upon half a century's ardent angling has been jealously seized and carried off home for preservation. As a result, his house has long since ceased to be a mere residence, and has become a museum, crammed with a collection of "catches" of extraordinary variety and value.

To put it plainly, Mr. McCord, who was born with the attributes of a fortune hunter, started out with the laudable desire of preserving for posterity the landmarks in Canadian history. Then he became seized with the collecting mania and gradually got possession—very largely by means of the aforesaid salmon-fly—of almost every portable thing of historical value on which his eyes ever rested. Now he aspires to get his collection housed in a public building, and officially called "The National Museum of Canada."

What is more, he says that, in Rooseveltian phrase, he will do it or bust. As his collection is one of great educational as well as monetary value, he wants it to be made available to as large a public as possible. He intends that his permanent home shall be in either Montreal or Toronto. Let it be given official standing as "The National Museum," and he will bestow it as a free gift on the city. He does not care which. First come, first served.

The house where this collection is at present stowed stands among the trees on the mountain slopes just off the Cote des Neiges road, in Montreal. It is an imposing structure, not unlike a Grecian temple in appearance; indeed, the resemblance was acknowledged by the owner in giving it the name of "Temple Grove."

When I called at Temple Grove a short time ago, the owner, a dapper little man in shirt-sleeves, with an alert, inquiring look, and an old look of youthfulness, despite his grey hair and beard, answered the door. The information that I had called to get I obtained in about ten minutes; yet it was close upon three hours before I got away—or wanted to. I was shown room after room crammed with historic treasures. Every cupboard in the place was filled with them; every table and every chair was piled up with them; every wall was hung with them. Something or other of value in connection with almost every great event in the history of Canada seemed to have found its way here. There were Indian relics innumerable, historical documents by the score, ancient costumes and armor, newspaper cuttings covering the best part of a century; portraits, pictures, autograph letters, rare old books, and so on by the hundred. To attempt to give even a partial list of this remarkable collection would be impossible.

She Can Sail Any Ship.

Mrs. Agnes J. Connell is the only woman in America who has papers permitting her to navigate a steamer of any class in any ocean. She is known all over the world, for a steamer is her only hobby, and she has sailed everywhere with her husband, Capt. William J. Connell.

She was born in the Thousand Islands, and grew up with the youth whom she later married. For a while she stayed at home while he made voyages, but she soon tired of that, and for the past twenty-two years she has sailed with him.

As a result of her knowledge and experience in seamanship Mrs. Connell received her sailing master's certificate from the port of San Francisco in 1901. She is an accredited pilot for the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River, and also holds a Government license, entitling her to navigate any kind of a craft in any waters. At any time she can relieve her husband, if necessary, handling the big 5,300-ton steamer with ease. On one occasion they ran into a spell of rough weather, accompanied by an almost impenetrable fog. After the captain had spent three days and two nights on the bridge without sleep she forced him to go below, and brought the ship into port herself.

Pearls In Oysters.

While eating oysters at the residence of Stephen Wilcox, 438 Shaw street, Toronto, Miss M. Preston found five pearls. All were in one oyster. They were about the size of buckshot. A jeweler will be asked to pass opinion on them. All seemed to be perfect.
