THE PRIZE BIBLE—OUR CIRCULATION.—In December last, we invited our young readers to make an effort to extend our circulation and as an inducement, promised a pocket Bible to that of one of our young friends, who sent us "with a post paid remittance, the largest list of new subscribers." In one town, 60 subscribers were thus added to our list by the exertions of three little girls. As our friends in other parts of the country, did not respond to the invitation, we shall reward one of these little girls who sent us 30 subscribers, with the Bible, and shall give each of the other two, a testament. But though our readers did not avail themselves of our offer, will they not for love of the cause we plead make an effort for us? They can do wonders if they try, and each reader should act as an agent for us. We have now 2800 subscribers, and we expect yet to have 5000.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE HINDOOS.

The Hindoos are a very ancient people. Hundreds of years ago, when our forefathers were savages, clothed in skins and living in forests, the natives of India were comparatively civilized. Thus early, they had their cities, their states, and
