

I am sure Canadians will always be interested in and wish to see many things coming from the United States - and other countries. But we seem to want to be a nation of our own, and to express ourselves as such. Television can, and I believe will, be vital in the realization of our destiny as a nation in the years ahead if we as Canadians make it possible for it to do so - if advertisers, private stations, the public and its public agency work together to make it so.
