REDISTRIBUTION.

General disappointment will be felt at the unsatisfactory nature of the redistribution bill submitted in the legislature yesterday. It falls as far short of meeting with the approval of the people of the province as any redistribution could. A serious departure is contained in the increasing of the size of the legislature; it was considered quite large enough before, but required re-adjustment, a task which the bill now submitted significantly proves was entirely beyond the ability of the Turner government. The bill provides for an increase of four members. One of these is given to Vancouver city, which is thereby placed upon an equality with the city of Victoria in respect to representation. One member is given to Cassiar, making two members for this district. To provide the electors for Cassiar, a provision is inserted in the bill by which all that is required for the exercise of the franchise in that district is that the elector shall take his name off the roll in some other district and arrive in Cassiar in time to vote. With respect to Cassiar, the specific provision is made that the collector of votes shall place the names of applicants upon the register of votes without any evidence of the length of time they have resided in the district. This appears, to say the least of it, a somewhat extraordinary state of things, and is far from creditable to the government's sense of propriety, not to say honesty. Of the remaining two new meminspectorship? We do not say that such bers, one goes to East Kootenay, the preis the case, but we should like to have it sent district being divided into North from the premier that it is or is not the and South ridings with one member for each, instead of two members as formerly. The fourth member is divided between West Kootenay and Yale, the standingly. Boundary Creek section of Yale being put into West Kootenay. West Kootenay is thus divided into three ridings, Revelstoke riding taking in the North, Nelson riding the South, and that portion east of the Columbia river and Rossland, that portion south of the North riding and east of the Columbia river, and including Boundary Creek. How the people of the upper country will greet the bill they have waited for so patiently it is not hard to predict, and we think the feeling there will be that Hon, Mr. Turner has not proved true to his promises. It ought to be noted that basis from the Kootenays, although in both cases there is a good deal of the prospective rather than the actual in the conditions the bill is supposed to cover, only that Cassiar gets the benefit, while Kootenay comes off second best. The comments of the upper country press will be of an interesting character in regard to the new measure.

civilized warfare might have been respected by those men; but no, they must injure their political antagonist. It is which Mr. Deane is undoubtedly guilty Yale electors, and it is with the utmost shocking crimes. First of all it is charged against Mr. Deane that he is a young man. We all know that the late William Pitt was also charged with the same disgusting crime, and we all know his reply to the frightful accusation. It might also be mentioned here, as it may not be generally known, that across in the United States when contracts are made now with men who are to manage large concerns, and to bear heavy responsibilities, it is an invariable clause of the contract 'that the man engaged must be young, and frequently there is a proviso that he shall cease to act as manager when he reaches the age of forty years. In the States forty is considered old; a man is at his best between nineteen and thirty-eight; after that, according to the Americans, he degenerates mentally and physically and can no longer be entrusted with large responsibilities. And, the Americans know men thoroughly, too, because it pays them. Hence, Mr. Deane stands convicted of what is perhaps a crime in North Yale. but is a leading qualification for public office in the brightest, busiest, most practical communities in the world. We come now to Mr. Deane's second crime, and it is not so easy to deal with. Hon. Mr. Martin and his committee charge Mr. Deane with the crime of being a gentleman! This is awful. A gentleman running against Hon. Mr. Martin! Imposs-ible! This is really the most ungentlemanly thing Mr. Deane ever did; for surely no gentleman, except for grave cause would ever think of even opposing Hon. Mr. Martin. But to be a gentleman is a crime of the blackest and most infernal stripe in the eyes of Hon. Mr. Martin and his gang; they cannot understand how a gentleman can oppose them; they know all about blackguards and blackguardism; hoodlums and ho lumishness; they know the special kinds of mud that should be thrown at an election; they can forgive a person for being an unmitigated rascal, duffer, cad, sneak or heeler; but they cannot forgive a person for being a gentleman. Hence the bitterness of their attacks on this young gentleman who is the opponent of their -what shall we call him? We mean the Hon.
